OUR 55TH YEAR | 10¢ PER COPY | SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1964 | NUMBER 61

THE LITTLE ELVES whose nimble fingers fabricate the toys and goodies for the annual globe circling trip of Santa Claus have nothing on the Brownies of Sikeston. Every year, for several years past, the Girl Scouts and Brownies have made toys and cooked goodies for the annual toy festival at which everything the girls made has been turned over to Mrs. Jewell Allen for distribution where they are most needed.

This year the Brownies, all 167 of them in the ten Brownie Troops of Sikeston are going it alone and for weeks the youngsters have been busy making toys, baking cookies, and making Christmas tree ornaments-all of which will be on display at the St. Francis Xavier School auditorium next Sunday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. And the public is invited to come and see what remarkable work these Brownies can do.

Recommends two Junior Colleges For The Bootheel

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The State Commission on Higher Education wants to take another look at the findings of its special consultant who studied the needs of the St. Joseph, Joplin and Bootheel areas.

Dr. George L. Hall, professor of higher education at the University of Michigan, recommended:

1. New two-year colleges in the Joplin and southeastern Missouri areas by 1970, but none at St. Joseph.

2. A big expansion of the junior college program with increased state aid and two new junior colleges in the Bootheel.

Meeting in Columbia Monday, commission agreed southeastern Missouri needs junior colleges. And it endorsed Dr. Hall' recommendation for a new junior college district in Buchanan and Andrew counties —a proposal that is already in the works.

The State Board of Education approved such a new district Monday.

But the commission did not give full approval to the Hall study. It questioned the interpretation of some of the data and wants to study it further.

As it did last week in its first report, the commission counseled a go-slow attitude for the next two years before setting up new institutions and programs. It said a hasty proliferation of facilities would be wasteful and inefficient.

The study of the three special areas was started after the 1963 Legislature passed a bill to set up branches of the University of Missouri at St. Joseph and Joplin.

Gov. John M. Dalton vetoed the bill as premature-especially since the Legislature already had approved M.U. branches at St. Louis and Kansas City.

Dr. Hall said the goal should be college educational opportunities within commuting distance of every high school graduate. But he said it obviously would be too expensive to set up complete four-year institutions on this basis.

"It appears that the multipurpose, comprehensive junior college offers the best method of meeting the varied educational needs," he said.

In the St. Joseph area, he concluded the needs could be met through a coordinated plan using the facilities of a comprehensive new junior college, Northwest Missouri State College at Maryville and the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

In the Joplin area, Dr. Hall recommended state aid to help with the building program of the new junior college district there, with a separate senior college to be set up by 1970 to accept the junior college transfers.

Dr. Hall found the greatest educational need in the Bootheel area.

He suggested one junior college district be set up to cover Pemiscot, Dunklin and part of New Madrid counties and another to include Butler, Stoddard and part of New Madrid.

He recommended a two-year senior college by 1970 in the southern district to take junior college transfers.

He suggested Southeast State College at Cape Girardeau continue its residence center at Malden until the new schools get going, then gradually abandon this operation.

To encourage more junior colleges, he said the state should pay half the building costs and increase state aid from $200 to $300 per student. The commission already has recommended a 25 per cent increase in state aid.

He predicted Missouri colleges will enroll 93,757 next year and 193,909 by 1975.

Forty Million Christmas Trees

WASHINGTON (AP) -- About 46 million Christmas trees will add glitter to the American holiday season this year, the Agriculture Department predicts.

Most of the trees will come from domestic forests and plantations, but about 850,000 will be cut in national forests.

The department said a six-foot tree may take as much as a quart of water daily to keep it fresh and fire-resistant after it is first brought indoors.

Second Library Sacked, Burned In Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) -- A mob protesting America's policies toward the Congo and Malaysia stormed the U. S. Information Service library in the East Java capital of Surabaja Monday night, burning books, furniture, a mobile unit and a car.

It was the second U. S. library attacked by Indonesian demonstrators in four days. A mob stoned and sacked the American cultural center in Jakarta and its library last Friday, destroying about a fourth of the library's 15,000 books.

The Communist - led demonstrators are protesting America's participation with Belgium in the rescue of white hostages from Congolese rebels and U. S. support of Malayisa, which Indonesian President Sukarno has threatened to crush.

USIS Director Paul Neilson told a news conference a mob of about 1,000 banner - waving demonstrators smashed windows to enter the Surabaja library, which had been closed and locked in anticipation of trouble.

The mob hauled down the American flag and raised the Indonesian flag, wrecked the interior of the library, then threw furniture and books outside and built a bonfire with them.

The director of the library, James McHale, informed Neilson about a fourth of the library's 16,000 books were destroyed.

No American staff members were in the building, and Indonesian employes in the building were not hurt.

Neilson said Allan McLean, American consul at Surabaja, reported the "lightning raid" lasted half an hour and police did not arrive until after the demonstrators left.

McLean tried to contact the Surabaja authorities but no one was available to see him, Neilson said.

American Ambassador Howard P. Jones is protesting the Surabaja attack to officials in Jakarta. The embassy has not yet received an answer to its note protesting the attack on the Jakarta center.

Neilson and Jones planned to fly to Surabaja Wednesday to assess the damage.

Rotarians In Party for the Rotary Anns

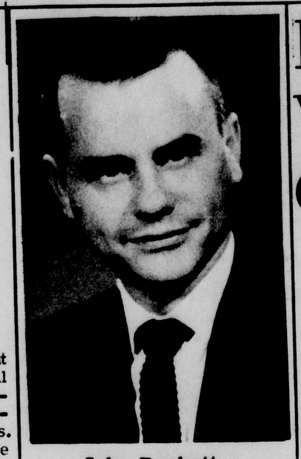
The Rotary Club entertained their Anns with a Christmas party last night at the Rustic Rock, when they had a 30-minute musical program, furnished by the Senior High Concert Choir. The choir with its 90 members, gave seven selections under the direction of Gordon Beaver. The choir was introduced by the program chairman, Alex Klein.

Guests present were Ed McClary, Jackson; Fred Schultz, St. Louis; Earl Dee and Al Tecklin, both of St. Louis and guests of Lennie Whitworth. Other guests were Ronnie Summers and Russ Felker, guests of Robert Summers.

Next Monday night will be installation night for new members.

LONDON (AP) -- Britain plans to ask its allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to endorse an economy reduction in the 51,000-man Rhine army it maintains in West Germany, political sources said Monday night.

MOSCOW (AP) -- Soviet working women are asking for less hours on the job and more time for household chores. Trud, the Soviet labor paper, said today they should have their way.



John Duckett

John Duckett, 207 W. Gladys Street, has been elected worshipful master of Sikeston Lodge, No. 310, A. F. & A. M. Other officers elected are: William Volner, senior warden; Robert Boyer, junior warden; Lester Rister, treasurer; Paul Slinkerd, secretary and Elmer Childress, trustee.

FHA Has Regional Meeting

Over 600 Future Homemakers of America and their advisors attended the Region 6 Area meeting Saturday, at Cape Central High School Auditorium.

The theme, "Education -- A Foundation for Tomorrow" was emphasized by the keynote speaker, Dr. William C. Healey, director of special education at Jefferson City. He stated that the majority of teenagers who quit school because they are unhappy, will be even more unhappy by the time they are twenty. He also pointed out the fact that learning has increased by four times and that soon children will be learning to read at the age of three and be studying algebra when in the third grade. We as the future parents must be able to cope with the problem of aiding them in their studies. Thus education is essential for our future.

Miss Linda Deevers, regional president, opened the meeting and introduced the regional officers and guests.

An officers' luncheon was held at the Colonial Dinner House honoring Mrs. Margaret Rahm who was elected honorary member.

"The Folk Four" a folk-singing quartet from Chaffee was the winner of the FHA talent show and will go to the Midsouth Fair at Memphis next September. A choral group from Oran was chosen as alternates.

Six Arrested By Police; 5 For County

Six arrests were made by the city police in the past 24 hours.

Earl G. Lott, 107 Dixie, charged with check forgery, was turned over to Scott county authorities.

Willie H. Lott, 107 Dixie, charged with check forgery, was turned over to Scott county authorities.

Larry E. Evans, 614 Delmar, charged on two counts, one on larceny, and the second for possession of another person's selective service card, was turned over to Scott County authorities.

Harry B. Hornback, 419 Kendall, charged with larceny, was turned over to Scott County authorities.

State Trooper Accidently Shot

Southwick and Jerome Cummings, both of Sedalia, were hunting in a brushy area when Cummings fired at some quail and the charge hit Southwick from a distance of 50 to 60 yards. Cummings said he thought Southwick was in another location.

LBJ And Wilson Confer

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Johnson and Prime Minister Harold Wilson continue their talks today with two main subjects expected on the agenda: the nuclear future of the Atlantic Alliance and the situation in Southeast Asia.

Wilson began to spell out his ideas on how to organize a nuclear weapons force within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization at a midafternoon session with Johnson Monday, their second of the day. The prime minister will conclude his presentation today and then, presumably, Johnson will present a defense of the multilateral force as conceived by the United States.

Wilson is cool to the idea. Instead, the Labor government is understood to propose the formation of a new NATO nuclear command, to include Britain's nuclear bombers and submarines and all or most of the nuclear tactical weapons already in Europe.

The U. S. suggested nuclear fleet, drastically reduced from the proposed 25 ships with 200 Polaris missiles, also would be part of the new command.

The two leaders will seek no decisions on this delicate and complex issue, observers on both sides cautioned Monday night. The word that no blueprint will emerge from the two-day conference was stressed repeatedly, with American and British officials using the same word.

What should be achieved in the talks is a mutual understanding on how to shape the West's nuclear defense, before the issue is taken up with the Allies in NATO, the officials said.

The Johnson-Wilson talks are going far beyond the NATO problem, it was emphasized after the first day. The aim is to formulate a joint philosophy on the role in the world of the only two Western powers with worldwide responsibilities.

While the mixed-manned nuclear missile fleet is at the heart of the NATO problem, it is but one factor, the British are saying. American observers are hopeful that this means Wilson would not rigidly oppose the fleet concept, if it can be submerged in a broader Atlantic force.

The prime minister is understood to be ready to talk today again about his country's growing tasks east of the Suez, in the Middle East and in Malaysia, while Johnson is expected to remind his guest of the need to apply the same to South Viet Nam.

Monday night Johnson gave a dinner at the White House for Wilson.

Rebel Students Spurn University Peace Overture

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A peace offer spurned by the University of California's rebel student group comes under the scrutiny of 1,200 faculty members on the Berkeley campus today with a return to order of continued demonstrations for unrestricted politico - social campaigning in the balance.

The Academic Senate — all faculty members with tenure — set a meeting for 3 p.m. to review the squelched peace proposal, listen to alternative plans and announce their opinion.

Insurgent students temporarily suspended until 8 a.m. Wednesday their strike and picketing of university entrances and classroom buildings in an effort to promote a general strike. They said whether or not they resume depends on the Academic Senate's report on the peace plan turned down Monday.

Rebel student leaders went to Sacramento saying they would place their protests before Gov. Edmund G. Brown today.

A minority of the 27,400-member student body is demanding the right to recruit volunteers and solicit funds anywhere on campus for off-campus politico-social activities, including civil rights work.

Their protests led to a loosening of regulations by the university Board of Regents last month. The regents gave permission for on-campus solicitation and recruitment in three designated areas for lawful off-campus activity.

A spokesman for the insurgent group, called Free Speech Movement, said the movement's prime demand is for removal of the word -- "lawful" from the regulations. He said students want to par-

Announce PTA Show Winners

Eleven contestants competed in the under 12 years of age group and nine in the over 12 years of age group of the Talent show sponsored by the Matthews R-V PTA Saturday evening. Cash awards of $3.00, $2.00, and $1.00 were made in the junior division and $15.00, $10.00, and $5.00 were made in the senior division. Mrs. Joe Schneider was in charge of the talent show and Randolph Kem served as master of ceremonies.

First place in the senior division went to Buck Cantwell of East Prairie for his vocal solo, "Roll Around Heaven All Day", second and third places went to Ann Merrick and Nancy Cain, respectively for acrobatic dances.

First place in the junior division went to Melinda Munson for her piano solo, "Norwegian Concerto", second to Barbara Kay Barnes for a tap dance, and third to Darrell McCroy for a vocal solo.

The program was opened with several selections by the Matthews high school pep band directed by Ralph Weinstein.

Approximately two hundred people attended the chili or stew supper served preceding the talent show. Proceeds will be used to pay for equipment used in the reading program in the elementary school.

The yuletide theme was used in the table decorations which were made by Mrs. David York, Mrs. Wm. Robets, and Mrs. R. B. Vann.

East Prairie Man Involved In Accident

There were four traffic injuries Monday in its territory, Troop E, State Highway Patrol reports, no fatalities or injuries. The only one in this vicinity involved was an East Prairie driver.

At 1 p.m. Monday, the Patrol reports, on Highway 61, eight miles north of Sikeston, Guy Turnbo, 44, of East Prairie, traveling south, came around a curve and ran into the rear of a wrecker driven by Gerald Ramey, 18, of St. Louis. There were no injuries but Turnbo was charged with careless and reckless driving.

Special Train For Missouri Democrats

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Some Missouri Democrats will go to the inauguration of President Lyndon B. Johnson, Jan. 20, aboard a train known as the LBJ Special.

Garrett L. Smalley, Jackson County Democratic chairman, said today three special sleeping cars will be made up here and en route to St. Louis will pick up passengers at Independence, Sedalia and Jefferson City.

Whether Independence's most famous citizen, former President Truman, would board the train has not been announced.

Smalley said Gov.-elect Warren E. Hearnes will board the train at Jefferson City to lead the party's state delegation.

Council Reappoints Day to Housing Authority Board

The city council, in its regular monthly meeting Monday night approved the re-appointment of A. J. Day as a member of the Housing Authority of Sikeston board for a four-year term, presented a commission as director of Civil Defense in Sikeston to W. P. Tedlie; passed a resolution calling on the public to support the Folklores in that group's trip to Miami, Fla., Friday and, later, to get out a vote for the young singers when they appear on the Ted Mack TV show next month.

Rev. K. E. Crump, appeared before Council to make two requests: first that the city try and do something about thinning out the dog population of Sunset Addition and, second, to provide better police protection. He was assured the city would do all it could.

Dr. John Doggett, president of the Southwest PTA spoke to Council to urge the installation of a traffic control signal at the Murray Lane crossing of the Frisco Railroad. He was assured the city has been trying to get something done about it for several years and would continue to do so.

Taylor Noles, vice mayor, on behalf of the mayor, presented a commission as director of Civil Defense in Sikeston to W. P. Tedlie. The commission was signed by Gov. John M. Dalton, Warren E. Hearnes as secretary of State and Frank H. Skelly, state director of Civil Defense.

Mayor Harry E. Dudley proposed that A. J. Day be reappointed as a member of the Housing Authority of Sikeston for a four-year term and the council approved the appointment.

The Council also voted that a letter be written to Gov. Dalton thanking him for his efforts in securing the gasoline tax refund to the city. This additional money, Mayor Dudley pointed out, has enabled the city to do much needed street building and repair work.

Several street and sidewalk matters were disposed of.

A petition to pave Pine street was presented by Jack Brady and accepted.

Petitions to pave Petroleum from Kentucky to Indiana and Indiana from Missouri to Petroleum were received and accepted and the necessary resolutions adopted.

A petition to pave Daniel from School to Olive street was accepted and the required resolution adopted.

Ordinances were adopted accepting the sidewalks on Felker street from Osage to North and on Young street from Osage to North and tax bills ordered issued.

There was also a discussion period during which the councilmen discussed fire protection service to Miner and it is probable a proposal will be made that in the future the fire trucks will not be permitted to answer calls in Miner except on a fee basis. This will come up at a later meeting.

Also discussed was the matter of car licenses. It was suggested that in 1965 those wishing to purchase city auto licenses must show their bills of sale or something showing the horsepower of the machine they want licensed.

Also discussed was a possible ordinance making it mandatory that whenever a workman goes into a manhole that there be someone else with him. There is always danger, W. Raymert Miller, city manager, pointed out of gas in these underground openings and as a matter of safety somebody should be on hand if needed.

Seal Sale Ahead of Last Year

Receipts as of Friday, December 7, 1964 total $1,054.25 compared with $823.00 at the same date in 1963. By towns the contributions to date are as follows: Sikeston - $747.75, Chaffee $133.50, Benton $46.00, Oran $46.00, Vanduser $18.00, Morley $7.00, Illmo $20.00, Commerce $2.00, Scott City $29.00, Kelso $3.00, New Hamburg $1.00.

The Christmas Seal Association is highly gratified at the increase shown so far. Mr. Leslie says, "Of course the campaign isn't over and it's our hope and prayer that all those who haven't yet answered their Christmas Seal appeals will do so promptly and help maintain this lead right to the finish line. The Scott County Tuberculosis Association is anxious to expand its activities aimed at wiping out TB and controlling the other respiratory diseases, which disable more Americans than any other groups of illnesses. In order to make this hope an actuality the need for funds is greater now than ever."

Emergency Cases

Two persons were treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Monday. Patricia Parker, Benton, fell and hit head and James Boze, Bell City, cut his hand.

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP) -- A female beagle has been sent to Washington as a gift for President Johnson, whose 5-year-old Beagle died recently.

Judge Montgomery Has 22 Cases Today

Magistrate Judge M. E. Montgomery returned to the bench today after an absence of two weeks, due to an operation at Barnes Hospital, St. Louis. He is recovering satisfactorily, but will take a leave of absence soon to recuperate. The judge, however, was able to hear 22 cases, and has appointed John H. Sides as acting judge, to sit on the bench during his absence.

The case of Frederick Butler, on a bad check charge, was dismissed by the state and costs ordered certified.

Ours is the age of specialization; a complex era of machines and processes requiring specialized knowledge. The average individual, when confronted by a problem outside his particular specialty, has to call upon outside help. If the car develops transmission trouble, he calls his garageman. If the automatic washer suddenly becomes neurotic, the appliance repairman is a necessity.

The habit of relying on others, however, has its serious disadvantages when applied indiscriminately. Our governmental life, like home life, has grown highly complex and has spawned with it a host of self-styled experts who are only too willing to diagnose governmental ills in the light of their own convictions. The easy way out for John Q. Public is to turn over the important matters of government to these "experts" -- just as one does with the mechanical problems arising in the operation of a household.

But America did not grow the easy way, and it will not persist with a citizenry willing to abdicate individual responsibilities in favor of the "easy" way.

Consider for a moment the general mode of life in the days of this country's founding: the colonial pioneer was largely self-sufficient. He grew his own food and preserved it, cleared his own land and built his own buildings. The fabric of clothing often came from the home spinning wheel. He cut his own firewood, butchered his own meat and cured his own leather. He prepared many of his medicinal home remedies, and often delivered his own off-spring. In essence, he was by necessity the original American "do-it-yourself" practitioner.

This rugged individual, accustomed to making his own decisions in matters of daily living, wanted also to govern himself. He was not kindly disposed toward unnecessary restriction of his personal activities imposed by distant authority, be it autocratic or bureaucratic. Out of this spirit of personal independence came the Revolutionary War and the American Republic.

A basic tent of our early government is becoming obscured today by the overworked idea of "rule by majority." Our Founding Fathers intended majority rule in matters of importance to the populace at large; matters such as diplomatic relations with other countries, questions of war and national protection, tariffs and international trade, and in all areas where government must do what the people cannot do by themselves.

However, an important concept of a true Democratic Republic is protection of the minority. The very foundation of our government was built upon the rights of that smallest and most important minority; the individual. It is those very same minority rights and freedoms which are being eroded gradually by trends of modern government.

Each of us, as an individual, must resist the modern temptation to place our liberties in the hands of erstwhile "experts" in influential places. From the "brain trust" days of three decades ago to the present, personal freedom has diminished in areas which are not the legitimate concern of government -- and the trend continues. The "majority," unthinkingly led by the "experts," have increasingly demanded conformity through edict.

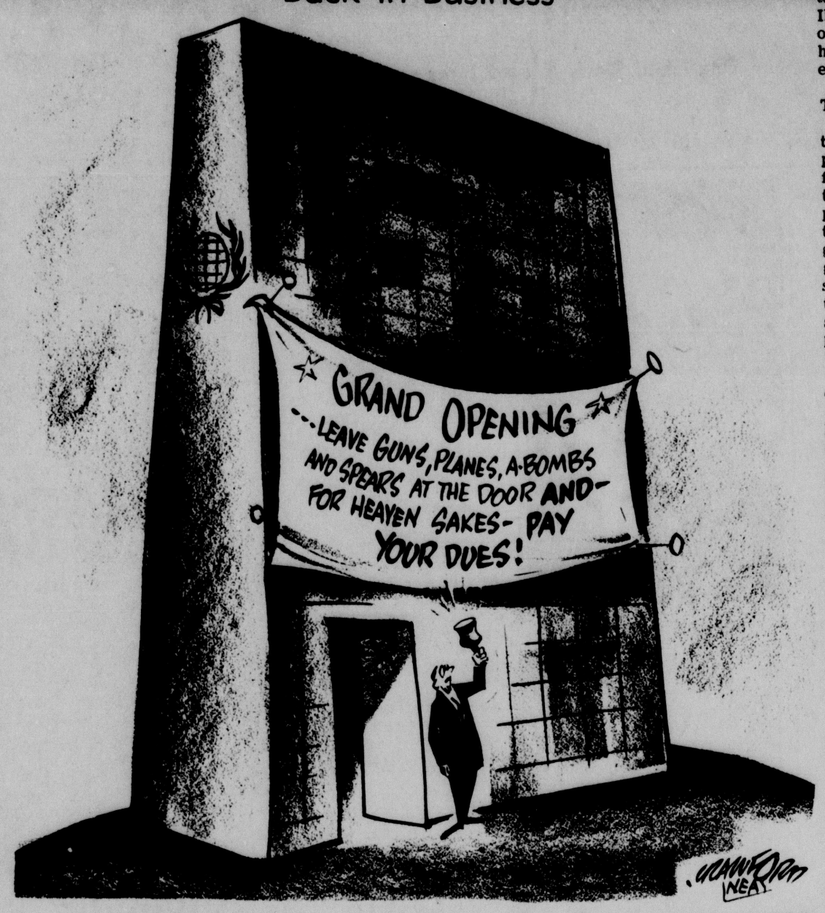
We should recognize the obvious: in a day of modern technology the problems and solutions arising in our society take on a different appearance from those of 200 years ago. On the other hand, let us not overlook the fact that the underlying causes of those problems are still the same: unchanging human nature.

An old saying throws a little light on human nature: "If you would have a thing done well, do it yourself." This simply states that no one else can apply himself to your interests as wholeheartedly as you. This holds true in regard to individual freedoms as well as elsewhere. Therefore, if you would have your personal interests in government protected fully, you will not simply sit back and let the "experts" guide you. Your individual freedoms are most important to you, and it is necessary for you to be your own "expert."

This in this age of specialization, every citizen must extend his range of specialties to include his government in order to wield the voice in its affairs to which he is justly entitled.

Granted, the town hall form of government is no longer practical, and we do elect "experts" to leadership in our government to speak for us. However, it is too commonplace for many of us to place a man in office and then expect him to carry the ball alone. We can rectify the situation only through individual action, based on informed opinions expressed frequently to those who represent us.

Back in Business



Is there an issue before your legislature? You should know of it and how it may affect your freedoms.

You should then discharge your responsibility by communicating your conclusions to your representatives. Urge your neighbor to do the same.

No elected official can long ignore the mandate of his constituents; but he cannot know it if he is not informed by his constituents. He never will be accurately informed if each of us chooses to sit back and "let George do it."

The colonist didn't "let George do it" when it came to his personal needs, because George either was no more an expert or was not readily available. Today we must let the experts handle the problems which arise in areas outside our own knowledge and abilities, but like the early Americans, each of us must be knowledgeable in matters of government. The personal participation in government in which the colonists took such pride is still a requisite for our successful and continuing Democracy in a Republic. We must not lose sight of this fact.

To counter the oft-heard argument that today's government is of necessity so much more complex than in colonial times that the individual cannot keep up with it, consider this:

Modern methods of communication far outstrip the facilities available to the colonists who still made it a point to be informed in their day. How much simpler it is to be well informed today on all sides of controversial issues and to communicate conclusions to those in responsible places. There is no basis for excusing modern lethargy.

It is the minority of one -- you, the individual -- which America was uniquely designed to protect. As an American, it is your duty to do it yourself!

NEW YORK (AP) — The office Christmas party today is in about the same plight as the whooping crane.

It isn't extinct — but it's in danger of becoming so.

"What were they really like?" they ask curiously about this time of year. "Were they really as wild as the old-timers say they were?"

That depends. The memories of the survivors of office Christmas parties are as undependable as those of the veterans of any other war, and a tendency to gory up the picture develops as the years pass.

Actually, in the old days — say a quarter of a century ago — many office Christmas parties were so sedate that not one member of the staff wound up with a black eye or broken bone. You might not even have had to call the cops.

But the classic, old-fashioned office Christmas celebration — at least as it is fondly recalled by many — was somewhere in between a Roman orgy, a Sioux scalping raid, and the attack on the Bastille.

Some, or all, of the following events might happen:

Somebody fulfilled the dream of a lifetime and put gin in the office water cooler.

At least 15 employes went up to the boss and told him what they really thought of him — and the boss made a mental note to start off the New Year by giving 15 merit decreases in pay.

Six middle-aged married men suffered ankle sprains chasing the girls from the stenographic pool from desktop to desktop.

By 10 p.m. — the party was supposed to end by 7 o'clock — the place looked like it had been hit by a hurricane, and the office boy was sent out for four more bottles.

By midnight, the boss was wearing mistletoe in his hair, had his arm around the janitor, and was promoting him to executive assistant.

At least five husbands didn't get home until Christmas morning.

Another fellow wouldn't be heard of until the third of January. Then a telegram would arrive from Montreal or Rio de Janeiro saying: "Where am I? Please send money."

It gave the indoor peasants one day on which to blow off 364 days of accumulated steam. It enabled the boss to find out who really loved him for himself, and who merely gave him lip service the rest of the year. It made the girls feel more like girls and less like typewriting robots.

The question arises then as to why these annual staff frolics have practically died out.

Some say it was because of the objections made by wives. Some say it was because of a growing tendency by employes to file suits against management for injuries and other mishaps suffered at the parties or on the way home afterward.

But others find a simpler explanation for the doom of the old-fashioned office Christmas party: the younger generation just doesn't have the stamina to endure them, and the older generation doesn't have the strength left to enjoy them properly.

THE SPARROW'S FALL

Our Government, in its concern with minutia, has yet to mark the sparrow's fall, but through the National Labor Relations Board it has become involved with the passing of dogs and cats.

It seems that the Teamsters Union set out to organize a couple of pet cemeteries in Peoria, Ill., and wanted an N. L. R. B. election. In order for the N. L. R. B. to order such an election, it is necessary for the pet cemeteries to be in interstate commerce to a significant degree.

As few out-of-state owners of defunct animals seem to ship them to Peoria for burial, and as local pets, once laid to rest, remain in Illinois soil, it was a little hard to decide that Cemetery Service Corporation was, indeed, in interstate commerce. But the three Board members who weighed the case were equal to the task.

Aha, they said, so to speak, this outfit does not ship animal cadavers in and out, but they must ship something in and out.

The Board, with some help from the Teamsters and the General Counsel, painstakingly totted up what the cemeteries had bought. Among the items was more than a thousand dollars worth of asphalt, some marble for making mausoleums, and some typewriters for communicating with suppliers and bereft pet owners. Still, more items were needed to reach the $50,000 point at which N. L. R. B. could claim jurisdiction.

Still not enough? Well, how about that statue. Sure enough, toss on the statue and the scales swing. Hooray! The N. L. R. B. won the day, apparently by the heft of an idealized rendering of Rover or Tom. The N. L. R. B.'s interest in the sculpture didn't extend to saying in its decision whether it was of dog or cat.

The result is that the Teamsters will be privileged to hold their election in a pet cemetery. That's a new twist for Illinois, although the occupants of ordinary cemeteries there have been known to vote in general elections.

THE PEOPLE FEEL THE PAIN

Politicians learned long ago that there's nothing like a whipping boy to get them on the front pages. Take any industry that's big enough to have a public "image," place it over the Congressional barrel and get out the paddles. Investigations of the have-you-stopped - beating - your - wife type unfailingly produce restrictive legislation, more paper work and, of course, more Federal jobs.

Francis C. Brown, president of the Schering Corporation, in noting this phenomenon of public life, pointed out to his stockholders at their annual meeting in Bloomfield, N.J., the historic parade of America's whipping boys: the railroads, then the oil companies, then "Wall Street," next our national defense contractors and more recently, the drug industry. Since the sympathetic American people "are essentially considerate of the sick and the unfortunate," said Mr. Brown, the latter show was a great success from the producers' standpoint, resulting in legislation, regulation and red tape that have slowed the introduction of new drugs to the lowest level in 16 years -- and threaten a system of health care unequalled anywhere in the world.

But the Schering chief executive, who admits he is an optimist, suggested to the meeting a practical means of directing the massive Government controls "along a more constructive course." Mr. Brown urged the appointment by the President of a board of distinguished representatives of industry, Government and private practice, to be directly responsible to the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and thus "in an advantageous position to arbitrate grave divisions of opinion between industry and the Food and Drugs Administration or scientific community."

As chairman, he suggested "an outstanding physician, such as Jonas Salk, discoverer of the Salk vaccine, or a Nobel laureate distinguished in the field of biological sciences, such as Dr. Philip Hench, who did the early work on cortisone." In his discussion, Mr. Brown applauded the recent appointment of Dr. Joseph F. Sadusk as medical director of the FDA as "the first real move toward an improvement of the recent climate."

If the dedicated efforts of such a board can assure "optimum protection" for the public and minimum restriction on scientific investigation -- as Mr. Brown believes -- it will not only get the latest whipping boy out of the Congressional woodshed, but will speed the day when the industry will achieve controls for heart and circulatory ailments and cancer -- which still elude us, and are leading causes of death in these United States.

THE CONSUMER'S FRIEND

Milk has gone up five cents a half - gallon at the I. G. A. Foodliner store in the little town of Front Royal, Va., and throughout the land Agriculture Department and White House figures have been speaking out for consumers who pay high food prices.

Oddly, there is no rational connection whatever between these two facts.

The Agriculture Department, through its milk marketing order arrangements allows local commissions to fix milk prices. What they fix is a floor under the prices which must be paid by consumers.

In Front Royal, the price of milk didn't go up at the I. G. A. until the owner, Robert H. Trumbo had been hauled into court and fined $250 for refusing to raise the price. He was also enjoined against selling milk below the official figure.

Those in the government who complain about high food prices seem absolutely oblivious to the part their own actions play in those increases. The Federal government fixes prices high on sugar, coffee, wheat and a number of other commodities. It taxes producers and processors heavily, and such taxes must be covered by prices. It encourages union demands for ever higher wages and more restrictive work rules in food industries.

Is this the kind of friend the consumer needs?

And the end is not yet. A group set up by the Administration to study our farm programs has recommended that the prices of many more commodities be covered by such marketing orders as have just raised the price of milk more than ten percent to housewives in Front Royal.

When food prices go up, there's a chance the weather might have caused it, or some other random factor. But mainly you can bet that Uncle Sam's heavy hand has entered the transaction somewhere.

DEEP PROBLEM

The dream of building an underwater tunnel from England to the continent dates back a hundred years or more and work was actually begun on such a tunnel back in the 1880's. Sections over a mile long were driven under the channel from both England and France. The project was abandoned not so much because of technical difficulties as because of the apprehension felt by many Englishmen that the tunnel might one day be used for an invasion of their island from France.

"What wife?" asked the doctor. "I'm still trying to open my satchel?"

The books on an upper shelf were out of the reach of the housekeeper, and so I gave her an assist at dusting time last spring. In handling the books I glanced at the titles and names of the authors. These were books published three and four decades ago.

Among the authors were Lafcadio Hearn, Andrew Carnegie, Harold Laski, Norman Douglas, James M. Cain, Olive Schreiner, Henry Adams, Stephen Leacock, Edward Carpenter, Thorstein Veblen, and Thomas Nixon Carver.

These are books that meant a lot to me, and therefore were saved when hundreds of other books were discarded because my living quarters shrank.

What impressed me about all the books on this shelf and other shelves was their lack of bulk. In the twenties and before, and in the thirties, an author could say what he needed to say in 250 pages, even less, and the book could be sold for $2, or $3 at the most. Today it seems that an author, who got his Ph.D. only yesterday, needs 500 to 800 pages to say anything, or nothing.

Why is this?

I say it's because a hard-cover book can't be produced and distributed at a price of less than $5. The public won't shell out five or seven bucks for a small book. And so almost all books, including fiction, are fat, wordy, and dull.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 — Within 24 hours of each other, two "pocketbook" stories were published in Washington.

One said that American Telephone and Telegraph Co., due to technological progress and efficiency, is to reduce its long-distance rates by $100 million a year. That was just the latest in a long series of such reductions.

The other said that Postmaster General Grounowski has been ordered to study increasing second- and third-class mail rates by an estimated $300 million a year. And so is contemplated the latest in a long series of such increases.

Meanwhile, any user can tell you that over the years long-distance telephone service has become faster and more reliable, as well as cheaper.

As to the postal service—well, Congress has heard so many complaints lately that a number of Representatives took a full hour to discuss them in the last busy days of the 88th Congress. That it hasn't been better since is attested, ironically, by the Mail Handler's Union which is seeking to set aside representation election results because of the Post Office's slow delivery of the ballots.

All this is only some late data on something that has been developing over a long period—a story which effectively points up the difference between free, profit-making enterprise and Federal operations of services for sale.

Since 1932, the cost of mailing a first-class letter has risen from two to five cents, air mail from five to eight cents. The cost of making a long-distance phone call from Boston to San Francisco, for instance, has dropped from $9.50 to $2.25. (After 9, you can make the call for a dollar.)

The telephone companies have increased their volume of calls by 288 percent since 1930, hiring 77 percent more employees to do it. The Post Office has increased its piece volume of mail 143 percent, and hired 73 percent more people to do it. The additions to the payroll are almost the same percentage—but the increase in the volume of work is about twice in the telephone system what it is in the Post Office.

Well, while the Government was raising prices more than 100 percent on mail, and the telephone companies were reducing prices by far more, how did they make out financially?

Since 1932, the Post Office has lost more than 10 billion dollars which has had to be made up out of taxes or added to the national debt.

The telephone companies have made profits for their stockholders in that period, and in addition have paid more than $22 billion into the Treasury. In other words, taxes on the telephone system have been more than double the deficits of the Post Office operations.

C. Northcote Parkinson, the British economist and humorist, set down as one of his laws: "nationalized industries tend to go bankrupt."

He wasn't kidding.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington -- A bitter battle is raging inside the Steelworkers' Union which may affect the entire economy of the nation. President Johnson is watching it carefully. Some advisers would like to have him intervene in order to prevent a serious round of inflation.

The battle is between his friend David McDonald, now president of the Steelworkers' Union, and I. W. Abel, the union's secretary-treasurer, who is challenging Dave for the presidency.

Both sides are doing some colorful name-calling. The opposition to McDonald is calling the handsome, silver-haired Steelworkers' president a "frustrated actor who enjoys glamor more than the grime of the rolling mills." They assert Dave spends more time in Palm Springs, Calif., or the "21" Club in New York than in Pittsburgh or South Chicago.

They also point to McDonald's $50,000 salary plus expenses last year of $30,126.37--total $80,126.37.

They also point to his brother Joe's union salary of $13,219.50 plus expenses of $14,465.26, for a total of $27,684.76.

Finally, they point out that Dave's chief lobbyist, ex-Notre Dame football star Frank "Nordy" Hoffman, gets an expense account of $48,808.22 plus his salary of $16,000. Hoffman's job is to entertain members of Congress and get legislation passed in Washington.

On the other hand, McDonald's supporters accuse Abel of drawing expenses of $20,584.21 plus a salary of $35,000, for a total of $55,584.21.

Incidentally, the union last year paid its top officials the rather generous total of $8,051,320 in salaries, plus personal expenses of $4,141,240.38.

--MCDONALD'S ACHIEVEMENTS--

What McDonald's critics overlook is that he has done one of the most outstanding jobs in the trade union movement by setting up the Human Relations Council which has ironed out labor disputes without strikes.

However, this type of bargaining has taken McDonald out of the rolling mills and in the DuQuesne Club, the sacred inner sanctum of the steel executives. As a result, if Dave walked through one of the plants outside Youngstown or Chicago today, few of his men would recognize him.

This is what his opponents are making the most of. They are led by Joe Germano of South Chicago and Joe Malony of New York, both close to the picket line and both backing I. W. Abel.

Abel has the reputation of being a trouble - maker, and in his campaign literature against McDonald promises union members that he will give jurisdiction back to the locals. This means more likelihood of strikes.

This is where President Johnson is deeply concerned. It isn't merely that McDonald happens to be a friend who went down the line for him in the recent election.

It's also the fact that either a steel strike or a wage boost would almost certainly lead to an increase in the price of steel.

--DISASTROUS INFLATION?--

Johnson was on the long distance telephone last fall persuading steel executives not to increase prices. So far he has been successful. At one time they were on the verge of a price increase, and it was only Lyndon's compulsive eloquence that persuaded them to change their minds.

But the round of rough bargaining and wage increases that would almost certainly follow the election of the anti-McDonald faction would make it impossible for Johnson to further prevent price increases.

As a young congressman under Franklin Roosevelt, the President vividly remembers what happened when FDR let the steel industry increase prices in 1937. Simultaneously, the Federal Reserve Board upped the discount rate -- as the Federal Reserve Board did last month. The combination led to the disastrous 1938 depression. And it took two years and the war to bring the United States out.

Ten years later, Johnson watched a similar situation under Eisenhower when in 1957 the steel industry raised prices, though operating at only around 50 per cent capacity. In '57, automobile production had been 6.1 million cars. Next year, 1958, auto production dropped to 4.2 million cars.

If there is a steel price increase in 1965 -- as is certain if there is a wage increase -- it will mean higher priced automobiles, less automobile production, less housing construction, and possibly the start of an economic tailspin.

All this is why President Johnson is watching the bitter feud inside the Steelworkers' Union. It's also why he lectured the bankers so eloquently against increasing interest rates that the First National Bank of Boston rescinded its rate hike.

The President may be forced to throw his weight behind McDonald and make clear the reasons he supports him -- namely, that another round of inflation would mean depreciation of labor's pension values, an increase in the cost of labor's food, and increase in the cost of housing. Furthermore, it would affect the pocketbook of every citizen in the nation.

Large white satin bows marked the pews of the First Methodist Church of Benton when Miss Sheila Ann McDonald of Benton became the bride of Aubrey Lee Michael, Jr., also of Benton in a beautiful afternoon wedding.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester McDonald of Route 1, Benton and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Lee Michael, Route 1, Benton.

The Rev. Albert Gibbs performed the impressive double ring ceremony on Friday, November 25th at two o'clock in the afternoon before a tasteful setting of flowers and candelabra. Arched candelabra holding lighted cathedral tapers were entwined with greenery and large baskets of white gladioli banked either side of the candelabra. Immediately in front was the prieu dieu where the bridal couple knelt for the benediction.

Miss Lou Ann Lough, pianist, rendered appropriate pre-nuptial selections and the traditional wedding marches while ushers seated guests and lighted candles preceding the ceremony. Miss Lough accompanied the soloist, Miss Judy Alcorn, cousin of the bride, as she sang "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer".

Lester McDonald escorted his daughter down the aisle to the altar where he gave her in marriage. The bride chose for her wedding, a gown of imported re-embroidered Alencon lace and silk tulle. The molded bodice was accented with a sweetheart neckline and small cap sleeves. A full skirt over petti hoops was created of tiers with a dome front skirt adorned with tiny motifs of lace. The back of the skirt fell into a chapel length train.

Her fingertip veil of misty silk was secured to a crown of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of snowdrift pom-poms centered with a white lace Bible.

The bride was preceded down the aisle by her attendants. Miss Susie Michael, sister of the groom, served as maid of honor. Serving as bridesmaid was Miss Connie Chaney, a cousin of the bride of Poplar Bluff. They were dressed in full skirted dresses of taffeta in turquoise and frosted teal. The fitted bodice featured a rounded neckline and cap sleeves. A dropped waistline was accented with pleated fabric in the frosted teal, the darker shade, falling into panels at the back held with three cabbage roses of taffeta with long streamers ending at the hemline.

Master Denny Alcorn served as ring bearer and Tammy Sue McDonald, sister of the bride was flower girl. She wore a dress of turquoise velvet and taffeta like the attendants fashioned by her grandmother, Mrs. Ellis Alcorn. Her headdress was a headband of taffeta and net. She wore white gloves and carried a basket of white pompoms.

The groom chose Mike McDonald, brother of the bride, as his best man. Groomsmen were Norbert Ziegler of Benton. Ushers were Jerry Taylor, and Joe Stuckey of Benton. The men of the wedding party wore formal attire of dark trousers and white dinner jackets.

Mrs. Mike McDonald of Sikeston, Mrs. Bill Alcorn of Effingham, Ill., and Miss Diane Swinger of Benton assisted with the serving.

Miss Janie Michael, sister of the groom was in charge of the guest book. The table was covered in white overlaid with turquoise net and wedding bells. Also placed on the table were silver trays holding rice bags. Miss Linda Michael, sister of the groom and Van Chaney, cousin of the bride of Poplar Bluff passed out the rice bags.

Upon their return they will make their home at 424 Missouri Ave. Sikeston. The former Miss McDonald is a student at Kelly High School and Mr. Michael is engaged in farming.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Alcorn of Morley, aunt and uncle of the bride, entertained the McDonald-Michael wedding party with a rehearsal dinner. Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Lester McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Mike McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chaney, Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Ziegler, Jerry Taylor, Joe Stuckey, Van Chaney, Denny Alcorn, Connie Chaney, Miss Judy Alcorn, Miss Lou Ann Lough, Miss Diane Swinger, Miss Tammy McDonald, and Miss Pat Fodge. At this time the bridal couple presented gifts to their attendants.

The table was beautifully decorated with branched silver candelabra. A cake was decorated with the names of Sheila and Aubrey enscribed.

Francis Schumacher

His interest in acting began at Sikeston High School his freshman year in "Tom Sawyer". He participated in a number of plays including "Our Town" and Shakespearian production while attending Christian Brothers College in Memphis. While in Alaska, he was active in the Anchorage Community College Little Theatre, which was a semi-pro group. This group usually hired the Broadway productions. However, Francis played the leading role in "Tea House of the August Moon".

His interest in drama continued at Cape State where he took courses in modern drama, principles of direction, and theatre techniques. He also appeared in several plays there, including "Henry IV".

Season's tickets for Sikeston Little Theatre are still available and may be obtained from Mrs. Barbara Smith, GR 1-1077, or by sending your check to "Sikeston Little Theatre, Box 126, Sikeston". The cost of tickets for the season is 1 for $3.50, 2 for $6.00, 3 for $9.00.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Does the octopus have a shell?

A—None whatever, although all its closer relatives have at least a trace of one.

Q—When did the term "United States" become official?

A—On Sept. 9, 1776, the Continental Congress approved a resolution that all continental commissions and other instruments use the words "United States" instead of "United Colonies."

Q—What American tree has the longest thorns?

A—Honey locust.

Q—Is Saint Peter's death recorded in the Bible?

A—No.

Richland And Puxico Win

RICHLAND TOURNEY--Richland and Puxico opened the tournament action last night, Richland winning easily, 92-53.

Richland, though beaten earlier by Fisk, was out in front to stay in the opening minute of the game. Before the first quarter of play had ended, they were leading 28-13. The Rebels were to win, and in a big way, again outscoring the Pirates in the second period 21-13, making the score at the half 49-26.

In the third frame, the Rebels went to their reserves, being outscored 18-16 by Fisk. The final quarter Richland went back to their starters to finish the game, scoring 27, limiting Fisk to 9.

The second game was fought and fought hard, between Puxico and Notre Dame. Puxico won it in an overtime, 58-50.

Down by 8 points going into the second half, Notre Dame got hot, led by Flaker, who drilled 14 for the night, and caught up in the closing minute of play to tie the score at 47. From there, it was Indian time, Puxico getting 11 while Notre Dame managed 3 in the overtime period.

Oran Wins and Woodland Upsets Scott Central

ORAN INVITATIONAL -- In the Oran Invitational two games were played.

Led in scoring by Johnson and Anderson, Oran won the opening game 77-46. They jumped out front early, to lead at halftime 36-29. From there, Chaffee never saw daylight again.

In the second game, Woodland owning a not to good season record, scored an upset, winning from Scott Central 58-56.

As the buzzer ended play the third quarter, Woodland found themselves trailing by 1, 42-41. In the fourth period they sank 17 compared to Scott Centrals 14, to win by two.

Bragg City Opens

BRAGG CITY -- Action was plentiful down here as three games were played.

Led by hotshot Carroll, who sank 23, Senath-Hornersville downed Southland 64-56 in a come from behind effort in the opening game.

In the second game, Hayti found themselves overly matched, going down to defeat at the hands of Braggadocia, 74-53. Russell and Watkins led the Eagle attack with 42 big points scored between them.

The third and final game was fought out between South-Pemiscot and Greenway, with South Pemiscot winning from the much taller Arkansas team, 74-52, with a strong second half effort. Crawford and Fullerton led the South Pemiscot scoring with 19 each.

With the results in from last nights area loop action, it was found that I came through with a sparkling performance, hitting six out of the seven that I predicted.

The games tonight are:

Parma and Malden - Parma, though they lost just last week to Lilbourn, will resume playing winning ball tonight. Parma by 15.

Wardell versus Caruthersville -War will be proclaimed by Wardell. Wardell by 15.

Oran Invitational:

Delta and Scott City - Delta will and they should. Delta by 15.

Kelly and College High - The Hawks will have to play good ball to win, but they will. Kelly by 10.

Chance Gave Up 51 Over The Season

Chance yielded only 51 earned runs in 278 innings for a 1.65 mark, the best since Spud Chandler of the New York Yankees finished with 1.64 in 1943. Chance was named winner of the Cy Young as the majors' outstanding pitcher in 1964 last month.

The Angels' star also pitched the most innings, 278, the most complete games, 15, and the most shutouts, 11. Five of his 20 victories were by 1-0 scores, tying a major league record.

Joel Horlen of the Chicago White Sox was second in the ERA competition with 1.88. He was followed by Whitey Ford of the Yankees, a two-time earned run king, 2.13; Gary Peters of the White Sox 2.50, Juan Pizarro, another Chicago left-hander, 2.56, and rookie Wally Bunker of Baltimore, 2.69.

Bunker had the highest winning percentage, .792, on a record of 19 victories and only five defeats.

Al Downing, the Yanks' southpaw fireballer, was the strikeout leader with 217. He also issued the most bases on balls, 120.

Baltimore reliever Stu Miller gave up the most intentional bases, on balls, 14, while Bill Monbouquette of Boston allowed the most hits, 258. Orlando Pena, veteran Kansas City right-hander, permitted the most runs, 126, and home runs, 40.

Major College Top Ten

By BOB GREEN

Michigan's powerful, veteran Wolverines, who have romped through three games without major diffculty, dominated The Associated Press' first regular season basketball poll today and confirmed their pre-season selection as the nation's best collegiate crew.

The Wolverines, who lost only one regular from the team that finished third in the nation last year, gained 32 of the 34 first-place votes cast and had a whopping 100-point margin over second-place Wichita.

Michigan, which already has survived two major tests, gained 337 points in the balloting on the basis of 10 points for first, 9 for second, 8 for third etc. Wichita, winner of its only start this season, moved up from third in the pre-season poll to second with 236 points.

A flock of upsets and surprises in the first week prompted a major shuffling of the first weekly ratings from the pre-season poll, with only top-ranking Michigan and 10th ranked St. John's of New York holding on to the same spots.

Three of the pre-season elite, fourth-ranked Davidson, No. 7 Syracuse and No. 8 Kansas State, split their two first-week starts and dropped from the top ten. UCLA, the defending national champion and No. 2 in the pre-season picks, also split, plummeted to No. 7 after an opening loss to Illinois, 110-83.

The top ten, with first-place votes in parentheses, and points:

1.	Michigan (32)	337
2.	Wichita	236
3.	Vanderbilt	189
4.	St. Louis	170
5.	San Francisco	140
6.	Minnesota (1)	133
7.	UCLA	86
8.	Duke	83
9.	Kentucky	62
10.	St. John's, N.Y.	59

KANSAS CITY (AP) -- Alphonse Dotson, 6-feet-4, 262-pound lineman at Grambling College, La., has signed a contract with the Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League.

Mizzou Loses

Kansas State used a zone defense for an impressive 61-4 victory over Southern Illinois and top - ranked Michigan knocked Missouri from the unbeaten ranks as Big Eight basketball teams gained an even break in four non - conference games Monday night.

Michigan had little trouble clipping Missouri 91-61 at Ann Arbor. Potent Indiana beat Oklahoma 87-69 at Bloomington and Nebraska beat South Dakota 74-63 at Lincoln in other games.

It's a six-way tie at 2-1 in the non - league standings among Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma State, K-State and Nebraska, with Oklahoma and Iowa State both 0-2.

The conference teams will be idle tonight, but Wednesday Missouri is at Air Force, Iowa State at Kentucky and Arkansas at Oklahoma State.

At Manhattan, K-State moved in front for good, 49-48, on a 15-foot goal by 6-foot-8 Gary Williams with 5:50 left, then reeled off 12 more points in a row to clinch the game. Meanwhile SIU was choked by the Wildcat zone defense. Williams led K-State with 17.

Michigan simply had too much height, strength and shooting skill for Missouri. George Flamank led the Tigers with 14.

Indiana threw a full court zone defense and fast break at Oklahoma and jumped to a 10-0 lead in the first 86 seconds. The top OU scorer was Jim Gatewood with 16.

Nebraska had unexpected trouble with South Dakota in the second half but sophomore Fred Hare came to the rescue with 15 points and some excellent floor play.

Cards Chances Rest On Saturday

ST. LOUIS, Mo. -- The banner that hung from the upper deck in Busch Stadium last week said "Dec. 27 Here" and the Football Cardinals hope they have a chance to make it come true when they wind up the 1964 season against the Philadelphia Eagles here Sunday.

Kickoff is scheduled for 1:05 p.m., with radio originating over KMOX Radio and television over KMOX-TV.

The Cardinals' chances for a championship, however, will rest on Saturday's game between the Cleveland Browns and the New York Giants at Yankee Stadium.

A victory for the Browns would clinch the Eastern Division crown for Cleveland and make the Browns the host for the Dec. 27 title game against the Baltimore Colts. The Big Red, in second place, would represent the East in the playoff Bowl at Miami on Jan. 3, 1965 against either the Green Bay Packers or the Minnesota Vikings, both of whom are still in the running for second place in the West.

A tie between the Browns and Giants, plus a Cardinal victory against the Eagles, would make the Eastern Division race wind up a tie as the teams would post 9-3-2 records. That would necessitate a one-game playoff between the Browns and Cardinals on Dec. 20 at a site still to be determined.

A loss for the Browns against the Giants would put the Big Red in a spot to pick up all the marbles. If the Browns lose, either a victory or a tie for the Cardinals would produce the division crown.

A Cleveland loss would leave the Browns with a 9-4-1 record. A Cardinal victory would make the Big Red 9-3-2, and a Cardinal tie would leave St. Louis at 8-3-3. On a percentage basis, that would give the Cardinals the crown, .727 to .692.

When the Cardinals and Eagles met earlier this season, at Philadelphia, the Big Red notched a 38-13 victory as Charley Johnson connected on two touchdown passes to Bobby Joe Conrad, and Bill Thornton had his best day as a pro with 128 yards in 12 carries, including a 31-yard touchdown run.

The Cardinals own a five-game winning streak over the Eagles, but the Philadelphians came up with a big victory over Dallas last Sunday as rookie Jack Concannon had a sterling day in his first appearance as a quarterback. Concannon completed 10 of 20 passes, including two touchdown tosses, and also ran for 99 yards in eight carries.

Looking to Sunday's game, Jim Bakken will set a team record with his first conversion. The blond from Wisconsin has converted 81 consecutive times, matching the team career mark set by Pat Harder in 1948 and 1949.

John David Crow, who lugged the ball 21 times for 72 yards against the Browns, now is the hardest-working ball carrier in Cardinal history. The big guy has carried the ball on 767 rushing plays in his seven seasons, and he passed Ollie Matson's old standard of 761 against the Browns last week.

The halftime program Sunday will be presented by the Kemper Military School marching band, and a special rugby match will serve as post-game entertainment.

Libya Is A Country That is Overwhelmed by Money

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) —With the coming of darkness, the muezzin's Koran chant floats nightly from the hilltop Gurgi mosque calling the Islamic faithful to the day's final prayer.

It has been thus in Tripoli for centuries — even before it was famed as the Barbary Coast, a lair for pirates.

Nowadays, a new and discordant refrain is added.

"Craps, snake eyes, Little Joe" rises from the Italian-run casino almost in the shadow of the minaret. Boisterous American oilmen crowd the city's busy roulette wheels; slot machines jangle merrily.

Until the oil boom the casino had been sliding gloomily downhill for years. Its current gaudy affluence emphasizes what is happening in Libya — a placid Mediterranean country being overwhelmed with money.

Horse-drawn gharries that once provided leisurely transportation are giving way to meter taxis, with New York rates. Women clutch their veils tightly in public, peering at the world through one exposed eye. But beneath their shroudlike "barracans" some are now sporting sheer stockings and Dior gowns.

A few years ago Zelten and Dahra were oases known only to desert Bedouins. Now the names designate oilfields famed wherever oilmen gather. They have put this once little-known nation among the world's top 10 oil countries.

As recently as 1960 the bureaucrats of ascetic King Idriss got along on $50 million yearly — half of it from American and British handouts and rental for military bases.

Since then, the oil companies, mostly American, have spent more than a billion dollars here. This year Libya will get $150 million in oil income. Next year it will be $230 million. The Esso company is preparing to invest many more millions for plants to liquefy natural gas and ship it to Europe in refrigerated tankers -- insuring even more millions for Libya.

All this in a nation with less than 1.5 million mostly illiterate people. These are scattered over 1,500 miles of coastline and deserts almost the size of Western Europe.

It is proving too much. The economy is spiraling wildly. United Nations figures make Tripoli the 13th most expensive city in the world to live in — and getting worse.

Last month the government added to the spiral by doubling civil service salaries. A top bureaucrat will now get about $9,000 yearly, an unthinkable salary only a few years ago. The government newspaper which announced the happy tidings was hardly on the streets before merchants began marking up prices.

Responsible oil company officials shudder to think they are sitting on political quicksand. They can handle only about 10 per cent of Libya's labor force. The government bureaucracy and private business take in a few more. The rest, now flocking into the cities and, in many cases abandoning farms, are being squeezed by the inflation.

National sensitivity is also mounting over the big U.S. air base at Tripoli and a British base agreement. Money from base rentals is no longer needed and increasingly vocal Arab nationalists want them out.

Preferring the isolation of his palace at Tobruk, he rules by long distance and with Oriental suspicion, frequently juggling his ministers.

Such situations are increasingly irksome to the slowly growing number of young officials and students. Until recently politics in Libya largely revolved around separatist movements in the provinces of Tripolitania and Cyrenaica. Now they swirl around the monarchy, particularly the crown prince, the king's nephew.

The king's popularity dropped sharply this year at parliamentary elections. His police arrested possible opposition candidates on the eve of the day they were to register.

The U.S. Embassy is watching all this nervously. With more than a billion-dollar investment to protect, it has reasons. The Libyans, however, are more and more disdainful of advice, even from such agencies as the United Nations.

MAIN STREET, U.S.A.

by Bert Mills
Distributed by National Editorial Association

Washington, D. C.-- A Merry Christmas followed by a Happy New Year is in prospect for almost all businessmen, according to all the available evidence.

Christmas selling by retailers is booming along, and merchants up and down the Main Streets of America are forecasting a record season, with dollar volume up 6 to 10 per cent over last year.

Personal income hit a new peak last fall and is expected to continue to rise, although perhaps at not so rapid a pace as in the recent past. Part two of the income tax cut takes effect in 1965 and is sure to provide a further stimulus.

National Retail Merchants Association makes an annual survey of its members from coast to coast on prospective Christmas sales volume. The finding this year was the most optimistic in three years, with 94 per cent of those responding forecasting higher volume this season than last.

Merchants are "imbued with Christmas cheer", according to the association, and their composite forecast is for a 6 per cent rise over 1963 volume. Some soothsayers regard this figure as conservative and predict a 10 per cent increase.

PROSPERITY 46 MONTHS OLD

As Democratic politicians keep reminding us, the economic upswing has lasted for an unprecedented period. The trend has been up for 46 consecutive months now. Some economists have had to throw away their rules because on the record there should have been a downturn by now.

President Johnson, a beneficiary of good times, is a leading cheerleader for an onward-and-upward economy. He said recently: "The coming holiday season will find our economy setting new records for production, employment, income and sales."

Automobile strikes in October and November did take their toll but the President conceded only that the stoppages "dampened our economic performance" and pointed to "encouraging evidence that the underlying economic forces remain strong."

Department of Commerce forecasters predict that business barometers which slumped this fall due to the auto strikes will bounce back to new highs in December. Preliminary figures suggest that automobile sales are recovering nicely since General Motors and Ford got back into full production.

INDUSTRY BETS ON '65 RISE

Optimistic talk is one thing but optimistic action is more convincing. One of the best barometers for determining the future climate is the capital spending plans of industry. There is good news on that front for 1965.

The annual McGraw-Hill Publishing Company survey of plans for new plants and equipment points to a 5 per cent rise next year, which would mean a new record of $46.9 million invested in productive equipment. This comes on top of three boom years for industrial investment -- up 9 per cent in 1962, 5 per cent in 1963, and 14 per cent this year.

According to the McGraw-Hill survey, business plans to raise the prices of the goods and services it sells by only 1 per cent next year, although expecting to pay 3 per cent more than this year for new plants and equipment added in 1965.

Nation's Business, the magazine for the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, surveyed 314 business leaders and reported "most top businessmen believe our current prosperity will continue into the new year and beyond." In fact, 80 per cent expect the rising trend to continue beyond 1965.

Reasons for optimism vary, the magazine found. Some businessmen cite the tax cut while others point to heavy investments by business and the generally healthy financial position of consumers.

STEEL STRIKE A THREAT

Some forecasters are hedging their '65 bets by pointing to one big "if". This is the possibility of a prolonged steel strike next year. Steel is a basic raw material and if supplies are cut off, the whole economy slows down.

A leadership fight within the United Steelworkers of America complicates the outlook. The result may be prohibitive demands from the union. Wage negotiations start in January and a strike could begin as early as May.

The Administration will do everything it can to prevent a crippling steel strike. But there is no certainty these efforts will succeed.

Univ. of Missouri Modifies Campus for Handicapped

One of several modifications made for handicapped students this year at the University of Missouri is this bus for use of handicapped students only. The bus, equipped with a hydrolic lift for wheelchairs at the door, makes regular stops around the campus to transport students to and from classes.

Lightest Mexico

by John Abney

Mexico City -- We have here before us a letter from a fellow in Minnesota who says the snow is so thick around him he can scarcely get out of the house without a shovel and he wants to know how is the weather in Cozumel. Also, he wants to know about hotels there and the chances of getting quarters as well as what's the fishing like.

The weather in Cozumel is nice and tropical so don't bother with your snow shovel. Just bring a fishing pole and some magazines. This time of year you should write ahead and check for reservations. In the town (it's San Miguel; the island is Cozumel) you have the Hotel Isleno and Hotel Playa. If you like coconut groves on a beach away from civilization, try the Hotel Playa Azul. Fishing is good the year around and skin diving is superb. The water is so clear you can spot a pin on the bottom thirty feet down and you can charter boats for deep water fishing. Sailfish and marlin, or small ones. A press agent's dream.

SHOULD WE WRITE AHEAD FOR RESERVATIONS IN OAXACA FOR SPRING? WHICH HOTELS WOULD YOU RECOMMEND?

It wouldn't hurt to have reservations although in the Spring you probably won't find things overflowing. Holy Week (just before Easter) will be jammed. I prefer the Hotel Monte Alban, just half a block off the main plaza in the center of town. It's a modernized old bishopry with atmosphere, up-to-date plumbing, food and rates are very respectable.

WOULD LIKE TO DO SOME TROPICAL HUNTING AROUND PACIFIC COAST; IS THERE A PLACE WHERE WE CAN FIND GUIDES AND GOOD ACCOMODATIONS?

You might try Zihuatanejo, a short distance up the coast from Acapulco. It still is relatively undiscovered although a local airline makes regular runs and they have good bus service. The Hotel Safari has guides and all sorts of equipment plus a bar where you can swap lies about the one you almost shot. Deer and jaguar hunting is supposed to be good in the mountains a little way inland. If you need more details, you can write the Hotel Safari, Zihuatanejo, Guerrero, Mexico.

PLAN ON DRIVING TO SEVERAL POINTS ON GULF COAST NEAR VERACRUZ AND WOULD LIKE TO VISIT TUXPAN. DOES IT HAVE A HOTEL?

Check the Yacht Club in Tuxpan. They have pretty good accomodations and food but if it doesn't appeal to you, Veracruz is close enough to drive back.

MY HOBBY IS GEM CUTTING AND I WOULD LIKE TO KNOW WHERE YOU BUY ROUGH STONES OR CRYSTALS IN MEXICO; ALSO IF THERE ARE ANY RESTRICTIONS ON TAKING THEM OUT OF THE COUNTRY?

Queretaro is a mining center for all sorts of semi-precious stones so you can buy rough items from dealers there. No restrictions on taking them out but getting them into the U.S. is a matter to settle with American Customs. Be sure to get a receipt for anything you buy to show with your declaration.

"My advice, sir-get DE-ICER!"
Gas line freeze can happen to anybody, but when you're young and in a hurry, it's a disaster. Here's what gas line freeze is. Moisture collects in a gas line. It freezes. The flow of fuel to the engine of the car is choked off, frozen tight. You're stopped cold. Luckily, there's a simple solution to this wintertime worry. Be a steady user of either American Regular Gasoline or American Super-Premium. They contain the real thing—DE-ICER—to prevent gas line freeze. No extra cost. No wonder Standard Oil Dealers say: "My advice, sir-get DE-ICER!"

The Woman's Corner

She Means What She Says

That's Edna Pinnell, District 10 secretary, reporter on the News-and a gracious lady.

"Don't write much about me," said Edna Pinnell, District 10 secretary and Highway News reporter. "I don't do much."

She smiled so disarmingly that you'd almost believe her. Almost. But it turned out that the disarming smile hid two things --a completely false picture of her duties and a way of meaning what she said about not writing much.

Her "not doing much" consists of handling stenographic chores for Dale Carney, District 10 engineer; and Mark Weston and Deane Sprout, both district engineer's assistants. On top of that, she answers the ever-ringing telephone, greets the many visitors to the district office and "whatever else there is to do."

She's been doing "not much" since 1950 when she started with the Department as a stenographer for the District 10 office manager. In 1954 she was promoted to secretary to Merrit Gwinn, then district engineer. Before that she worked for the Federal Lank Bank of Sikeston and the Bank of America in Compton, Calif.

And one who means what she says.

Goodwill Truck To Make Stop In Town Dec. 29th

The silver and yellow truck from Goodwill Industries will be in Sikeston area December 29.

Residents of this area will have an opportunity to contribute used clothing, shoes, and other small household items. These will be used by Goodwill Industries to provide opportunities for training, rehabilitation and sheltered employment for handicapped men and women.

Contributors will receive yellow reminder cards in the mail. These should be returned to Goodwill Industries so that the driver will know where to stop.

For those who have not contributed to this program a post card addressed to Goodwill Industries, 4140 Forest Park Blvd., St. Louis, Mo. 63103, will serve as a notice for the truck to stop.

All materials should be marked "For Goodwill" and on the front porch by 8 A.M. on the date scheduled. It is suggested that contributions be placed so they can be easily seen from the street by the driver.

Goodwill Industries can continue its program only as long as interested persons contribute the necessary materials. Handicapped men and women who are being trained and rehabilitated thru the Goodwill Program sincerely appreciate all contributions.

Rebekah Lodge Elect Officers For Coming Year

The Sikeston Rebekah Lodge met at the Odd Fellows Hall, Friday night for their regular meeting. This meeting also consisted of the election of officers.

All members present cast their ballots for the State Assembly Officers, delegate to the State Assembly meeting for May, 1965; and the Local Lodge Officers.

Noble Grand - Mrs. Addie Brothers; Vice Grand - Mrs. Alma Mackley; Recording secretary - Mrs. Mildred Vincent; Financial secretary, Mrs. Bobbie Taylor; Treasurer - Mrs. Opal Greer.

All members present cast their Ballot for Mrs. E. T. Wyman for Delegate to the State Assembly. Installation of Officers will be announced later.

Southeast Mo. Iris Society Elect Officers

The S. E. Mo. Iris Society held its first annual Christmas party Saturday night, December 5th, in the banquet room of the Town Plaza Cafeteria in Cape Girardeau.

In the business meeting the following officers were re-elected for the year 1965: President, Eugene Buckles, Sikeston; vice-president, Norman Gossling, Jackson; secretary, Mrs. Mary Smith, Jackson; treasurer, Edward Arnold, Cape Girardeau; corresponding secretary, Miss Margaret Powell, Cape Girardeau.

The first meeting of the New Year will be held on the first Saturday night in February at the studio of the K. F. V. S. at 7:30 p.m. The program will be on Flower Photography.

Visitors are welcome.

Homemakers Class Have Xmas Party; Install Officers

The Homemakers Class met December 1st at the home of Mrs. Estalee Mulcahy with 8 present and one guest. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Thelma Black. A Christmas basket, tree and clothes were decided upon to give to a family for Christmas.

An installation service was solomized by Mrs. Thelma Day. The topic "The Convoy" was used by Mrs. Day as she called each officer and presented them with a ship that had been floating in a dish of blue water. Using Bible verses from Proverbs and Psalms she told how important each officer should be. Installed were: Mrs. Thelma Black, president, vice president, Mrs. Mary Rister; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Evelyn Kinsey; penmanship and stewardship, Mrs. Evelyn Kinsey; publicity chairman, Mrs. Estalee Mulcahy, group captains, Pat Clark and Guynell Beal; extension chairman, Mrs. Dixie Wheeler; and teacher Mrs. Thelma Beaird.

Mrs. Day closed the installation by calling Mrs. Mary Louise Alsup to close with prayer. Christmas gifts were then exchanged and then presented Mrs. Day with a beautiful broach and Mrs. Beaird with a lovely blouse. The refreshments were served from a decorated table using the theme of the holiday season.

Matter of Fact

Coffee is associated with our national independence. The first license to sell coffee in the colonies was issued to a Dorothy Jones of Boston in 1670. The Merchants' Coffeehouse, established in New York in 1737, is said by some authorities to have been the "birthplace of the American Union."

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: A few days ago I witnessed an incredible scene. A hulk of a middle-aged man, about 60 pounds overweight, was sprawled across the form of his critically ill mother as she lay semiconscious in a hospital bed. The man was sobbing uncontrollably, begging his mother to try to remember what she had done with her will -- the one leaving everything to him.

The other members of the family were outraged by his indecent display of avarice. Suddenly he pulled himself together and bellowed, "I hope you have good hospitalization insurance, Mother. These lingering illnesses can cost a fortune."

His brothers and sisters want nothing more to do with him and he has asked me to patch things up. He said his mother loved peace and harmony and that she would be unhappy about the trouble in the family.

I believe they are justified in drumming him out of the tribe. What shall I do? -- THERE

Dear There: Stay out of this meat grinder. Whatever truce you might negotiate would be short-lived at best. This is their problem and it should be settled by them.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a married woman with two teenage children. Five years ago I became involved with a bachelor and became pregnant. My doctor told me I had a tumor -- until I was seven months along. You can imagine my shock when he told me I would have a baby within eight weeks.

The little boy is almost three years old, and unfortunately, is a carbon copy of my bachelor friend. No one has said anything but a person would have to be blind not to see the resemblance.

Should I tell the boy who his real father is as soon as he is old enough to go to school? I'm afraid if I don't tell him someone else will and I'd hate to have the child hurt that way. I need your advice. -- VIRGO

Dear Virgo: Many look-alikes are not related. Because of your guilty conscience you probably are exaggerating the resemblance in your mind's eye.

Don't tell the child -- or anyone else -- that your husband is not the boy's father. And for heaven's sake, get another doctor !!!

Dear Ann Landers: My wife is one of the sweetest girls in the world. Delores has given me a fine family and we have just about everything we could ask for.

The problem is that whenever we go to a party Delores passes out cold as a mackerel after two cocktails. The poor girl gets into arguments and says insulting things to her best friends. When she begins to remember what she said and did she goes into a depression.

I know Delores is not an alcoholic because she never drinks at home -- only when we go out. Moreover, if she were an alcolholic she'd be able to hold more than two drinks, wouldn't she?

This has been going on for two years. Every time it happens Delores takes an oath on her mother's life that she will never touch another drop of alcohol but when she gets out of my sight at a party she's as good as passed out. What can I do to help her? D.F.L.

Dear D.F.L.: Your wife's form of alcoholism is unusual. And she needs help. It's useless, however, to try to force help on people who do not believe they need it. When (and if) she expresses the need for help, suggest A. A.

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married live, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 ¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

One thing certain about parenthood is that the way you treat your children will turn out five years from now to have been completely wrong.-- Bill Vaughan

A Good Smoke

THE GLOBE-DEMOCRAT

Cigarettes are a health menace to all smokers and those who use them are risking cancer of the lungs and larynx and associated ailments.

A study conducted by 10 scientists recruited by the United States Public Health Service has come up with some arresting findings, but, as Surgeon General Luther Terry says, the Service has no power to impose regulations but hopes that a program of general education will result in decreased use.

So, another bone of contention has been tossed to Congress which is already up to its ears in problems which have a more popular appeal, such as taxes and civil rights.

I suppose some effort will be made to secure Federal legislation but my guess is that as of this year the cigarette issue will be tossed into a pigeonhole to await "further study."

Meanwhile, we will have to endure the routine of television and radio commercials which extol each particular brand as the best as to satisfaction and stimulation.

The Public Health Service panel, however, was specific when it said "there is simply no evidence that filters on cigarettes have had any effect in reducing the health hazard from smoking."

So there you have it, and my guess is that the uninhibited smokers will still go their merry and satisfying way, but prospective smokers -- the teen agers -- may not take up the habit if the ding-dong about the menace is continued.

I cannot become too excited over the hullabaloo. As a truck driver told an inquiring Globe-Democrat reporter: "I have smoked cigarettes for 50 years and I don't have cancer of the lungs, so I'll continue. If cigarettes don't get me, something else will." This reflects, I believe, a popular sentiment.

A comparative few will stop the habit, some will not acquire it because of the warning, but cigarette manufacturers will not be forced out of business, although the Federal Trade Commission may insist on modification of advertising.

The scientists may be right but I predict no serious legislative action against the sale and use of cigarettes. We have not forgotten the fiasco of Prohibition. But the Food and Drug Administration might get into the act.

I am a cigar smoker and the renowned panel of scientists said nothing to discourage me. The committee's findings were that cigar and pipe smoking have little significance in comparison with cigarettes. The lung cancer death rate of cigar and pipe smokers is approximately that of non-smokers probably because they don't inhale.

Cigars are a luxury and pleasure I do not intend to discontinue. I probably smoke too many per day but my doctor has not banned them. So I continue to puff and enjoy myself, one of the aids to contentment and meditation left to me.

The habit becomes particularly active during the Christmas season, as relatives and friends who are aware of my addiction keep me in abundant supply. My situation is complicated by the fact that my birthday comes shortly after Christmas and cigars are the accustomed and welcome gift. I am just now recovering from my annual binge.

My case history of smoking is probably average. My father smoked cigars and I learned as a boy the hard way. I collected the cold butts he left around the house, took them to a secluded spot where I wouldn't be watched, lit up and was in business. Even today, after years of practice, I can't do what I did then -- smoke a cigar that has been lighted, burned to a butt and allowed to cool. But I did it many times, was nauseated an equal number of times but was not discouraged.

Years later I learned that my parents knew what I was doing, were not alarmed at my sickness and decided the best way to cure me of the habit was to let me smoke until I decided a sick stomach wasn't worth the pleasure of playing like a man.

So, I started smoking like every other American boy novice. I went through the routine of corn silks wrapped in any kind of paper, grape vine, catalpa pods and almost any twig through which smoke might be inhaled. I graduated to Cubebs and Sweet Caps and tried rolling my own with Bull Durham and Duke's Mixture.

I tried to imitate cowboys I saw in pictures -- this was before the days of the Westerns which later cluttered the movies and television. I could not roll them successfully with two hands, let alone one as the experts do it. Along the way I tried cigars again, but this time they were fresh and were not so vicious as those butts I shot cold.

Before I entered high school father stopped smoking to set me a good example -- and he never smoked again the rest of his life, except one cigar each Christmas. It was at this time that I really launched my smoking career.

I tried them all -- Home Runs, Picayunes and Piedmonts. By the time I entered college my favorite cigarettes were Melachrinos, with straw tips. They were quite fashionable and went well with my derby hat, pegtopped trousers and yellow shoes. Not to mention my pink shirt with a high collar pinched together in the front from which was suspended a black string tie.

Just the things to go along with the Charleston, the new dance craze. However accoutered I may have been to be a jazzbo kid, I really was no Fred Astaire on the dance floor. I did considerable sitting out dances during those days when a cigarette was my best friend. The girls did not object. They said they liked to smell cigarette smoke -- nice girls didn't smoke them.

None of us knew anything about the filtered product which is the chattering content of cigarette commercials these days. Nor did we have to look at the back of the pack to influence our opinion as to the best brand.

While still in college I took up pipe smoking, a habit I retained until I made a final surrender to cigars. Pipes were also a chic contribution to the well-dressed fellow, along with a raccoon coat -- if one could afford one which I couldn't. My pipes were really collegiate--curved stems which I remember they called bulldogs. Classy, eh?

There is something about a pipe smoker that sets him just a little apart from his fellows. Gives him a touch of dignity and urbanity.

General MacArthur smokes a corncob. I assume some of his collection came from Washington, Mo., where making such pipes is an industry with sales running into millions annually. The corncob kind is not restricted to hillbilly country or men in overalls and one gallus, although I have seen plenty of such in the Ozarks, including both men and women.

Ever smoke a clay pipe? Nor have I but I am told they "taste good," like a certain advertised beer. Andrew Jackson's wife Rachel smoked a pipe, probably a clay, but this was just one of the unkind comments made by the critics of "Old Hickory" and his family.

I am told that many women today have taken up cigar smoking, not as a fad but because they like them. And they don't smoke those little fellows that are the size of a cigarette, but the big boys which are strong and a challenge to the innards.

The first time I ever saw a woman smoke a cigar was years ago in Mexico City. I was late arriving at a dinner party given by the American colony, and when I entered the dining room there sat "Lady Margaret" at the head of the table, puffing a cigar with the nonchalance born of long acquaintance. She was a highly respected dowager who had no fear of violating custom. She smoked cigars because she liked them, as women do today.

More power to them! If they can drink our highballs, why can't they smoke our cigars?

The warning against cigarettes doesn't touch me personally. They provide me with about as much satisfaction as eating lettuce.

But I do like cigars, even those black ropes of Italian origin and the almost impossible creations they call cigars in Guatemala. Years ago one of my favorites was made in the Philippines.

I'ms with former Vice-President Marshall who is credited with saying: "What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar." Amend it to read: "a good cigar at any price."

With the thermometer bobbing around 14 degrees above zero Friday morning gave us a real touch of winter weather. Long ones and heavy ones would have been very comfortable if they had been in style.

Eleven Sikeston Bulldogs were pushed, rolled, skidded and more or less man-handled all over their own gridiron Thanksgiving afternoon by as many Charleston Bluejays, who proceeded to romp around gleefully and finally carried away the long end of a 35 to 0 whitewash score, as a memento of the annual clash.

Mary Imogene Edwards, infant of Mr. and Mrs. James Edwards, died November 27 at the age of seven months. The babe was scalded three weeks ago by pulling a cup of hot coffee over herself and inflammation set in the last few days. The Edwards family came from New Burnsides, Ill., four months ago to the Bud Jones farm south of Sikeston.

Sale of the Marshall Hotel building by the C. D. Matthews Estate, Inc., to the Dunn Hotel interests of Poplar Bluff was announced Tuesday by Murray Phillips. "Commodore" J. I. Dunn of Poplar Bluff told the Standard the hotel would be taken over March 1 and extensive remodeling would begin immediately. The building was purchased in the name of Mr. Dunn's son, Ernest Dunn, who will manage the business here, under the name of "Dunn Hotel."

Equipment for decorating the city for Christmas has been ordered and is expected here the latter part of this week, according to C. C. Scott, president of the Chamber of Commerce. Lights and evergreen streamers will be placed at downtown intersections and at the Highway 60-61 intersection by the Shoe Factory, like last year.

Talk New Plan For Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor and South Vietnamese Premier Tran Van Huong yesterday opened planning talks expected to lead to bombing of Viet Cong supply lines in Laos.

Taylor returned to Saigon Sunday from Washington amid increasing speculation that the war against the Communists would be broadened. It was believed that President Johnson had ruled out attacks against North Viet Nam, but the Red supply routes through southern Laos were considered likely targets.

Taylor on his return said new measures by both the United States and the South Vietnamese would be discussed. He refused to say what they were.

The ambassador said Johnsor had "reaffirmed the basic U.S. policy of providing all possible useful assistance to the South Viet Nam people and the Huong government in their struggle to defeat the externally supported insurgency and aggression being conducted against them."

Thousands of police were strung out along Taylor's route from the airport into town. There had been rumors that Buddhists planned a demonstration against the Huong government. None materialized.

The South Vietnamese forces scored a major victory against the Viet Cong in a fierce nine-hour battle Saturday on the Ca Mau Peninsula, at the southern tip of South Viet Nam. The government said 115 Communists were killed in the encounter at Tan Lac village, about 150 miles southwest of Saigon.

South Vietnamese officials said their side suffered 86 casualties, but the battle was regarded as a psychological boost for the government's war effort, which had been sagging badly.

Six U.S. airmen were wounded in the attack as U.S. helicopters raked the Communist battalion with rockets and light bombers dropped 500-pound bombs. Communist fire damaged 14 helicopters.

In another weekend battle at Binh Ghia, 40 miles southeast of Saigon, government forces ambushed a Communist hamlet, killing 23 Viet Cong and seizing 16 civilian hostages. The government lost seven men and five were missing. Fourteen were wounded.

The population of the world in mid-1964 was an estimated 3,283,000,000 people.

Each year the world total is now increasing by some 65 million people, enough to populate a new nation larger than West Germany or the United Kingdom.

Over 56 percent of the world's people -- 1.8 billion -- live in Asia. Latin America and Africa account for another 16 percent. The remaining 28 percent are in Europe, Northern America, Oceania and the Soviet Union.

In 1980, world population will approximate 4.3 billion, according to a new United Nations projection. Latin America is expected to have the largest proportional gain between 1964 and 1980, 58 percent. The populations of Northern America and Latin America were each about 200 million in 1960. By 1980, Latin America's 374 million people will exceed Northern America's total by over 100 million!

These and other facts are contained in the 1964 World Population Data Sheet issued by the Population Reference Bureau, Washington, D. C., to mark the 19th session of the United Nations General Assembly at which the population question is scheduled for debate.

The Data Sheet shows the current population projected to 1980, and birth, death and growth rates for 129 countries. These data are derived from the most recent United Nations statistics.

Since 1960, nearly every country in the world has had a census. There are a few exceptions, Ethiopia being one nation which has the distinction of never having had a census. The Bureau cautioned that the registration of births and deaths remains unreliable in many developing countries and that the quality of censuses leaves much to be desired. In the African area, for instance, the tiny island of Mauritius, a British territory, has the demographic distinction of being the only entity which is classed as having good data on births and deaths. Nevertheless, information about the population of the world is far more accurate than when the United Nations began the regular compilation of world statistics in 1948.

Among Asian lands, only Israel, Ceylon, Malaysia, Taiwan, Japan and Hong Kong have reliable birth and death statistics. Virtually every European nation has excellent data; and in the Americas, about half of the Latin American nations have adequate vital statistics.

Africa, Asia and Latin America have birth rates ranging from 40 to 50 births per 1,000 population per year. European birth rates are generally below 20. Birth rates in Northern America, Oceania and the U. S. S. R. are 20 to 25 per 1,000 population. Death rates range from over 20 per 1,000 in Africa and Asia to below 10 in Europe and Northern America (U. S. and Canada).

One of the most important facts concerning world population is that today about a third of the world's people have gained -- or are gaining -- control of the birth rate. Two-thirds of the people have not. And the high-birth-rate areas are the developing countries, with low levels of living.

No accurate information is available for the population of mainland China. The latest estimate is 690 million. There is no question that China is by far the most populous nation in the world of today. By p980, mainland China is expected to add another 150 million people -- equivalent to the total U. S. population in 1950.

India, the world's second largest nation with a 1964 population of 468.5 million, gains an additional 10 million people each year. This number is larger than the population of Sweden.

Ranking behind China and India among the world's ten largest nations are the U. S. S. R. (229 million people); the United States (192); Indonesia (102); Pakistan (101); Japan (97); Brazil (80); West Germany (56); and the United Kingdom (54).

There has been an increase in the number of countries with city - size populations. Malta, Kuwait, Luxembourg, Iceland, and Gabon have populations smaller than that of Atlanta, Georgia (487,000). Altogether about two-thirds of the countries have populations less than metropolitan New York's 11 million.

In all the millennia of human existence on earth prior to the 20th Century, world population grew at less than 1 percent per year. World population at the time of Christ was only about 250 million. The first billion mark was reached after 1800. Today, world population is growing at a rate of over 2 percent a year. At this rate, a population doubles in only 35 years. If today's growth trend continues unchanged, the number of people on earth will double to nearly 7 billion by the year 2000.

A wide range exists in growth rates of different countries. The highest rates of increase are in some Latin American countries. Brazil, the South American giant, has a 3 percent rate of growth. This would double Brazil's population every 23 years.

The current population of Mexico of 40 million is expected to grow to 71 million by 1980. This means that Mexico's 3.1 percent annual rate of growth will increase further to add over 30 million new Mexicans in only 16 years.

Nigeria's 1963 census pulled a startling surprise for that country's planners. The census counted 56 million people -- a number 19 million more than the highest estimate had anticipated (37 million). Such expected and enormous growth poses severe problems for those straining to raise standards of living.

On the other end of the scale are the countries with the slowest rates of growth -- 0.5 percent or less. Belgium, Sweden and Hungary fall in this group. Their populations would take 140 years to double.

Japan has the lowest rate of growth in Asia, 0.9 percent a year. The United States rate of 1.6 percent a year is about twice the growth rate of most European countries.

Shopping Spree For the Disabled

NEW YORK AP -- Alexander's department store threw open its doors and cleared the aisles on a Christmas shopping day for 400 disabled oldsters and 30 handicapped children Sunday.

Proceeds from the third annual Sunday open house -- which helps the customers who can't walk to their Christmas shopping without the usual weekday hustle and bustle - went to the 12-non-profit hospitals and homes from which the shoppers came.

Board Okehs Jr College District

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Board of Education today approved plans for a new junior college district and nine reorganized public school districts.

The board accepted the plan of expanding the St. Joseph Junior College District to encompass all of Buchanan County and the southern part of Andrew County. It set the date for an election Jan. 19 for local residents to approve or disapprove the change.

These local reorganization plans were approved, with the local school boards required to set the dates of local elections providing they come within 60 days:

Jasper County R-8, encompassing Duenweg and two common school districts in Newton County.

Laclede County R-3, including 28 common school districts, a part of one common school district, two consolidated elementary districts and the Lebanon High School District.

Schuyler County R-1, encompassing all the present districts in the county.

St. Francois County R-7, the Farmington district and one common district in Ste. Genevieve County.

Webster County R-1, including 12 common districts, part of two and the Marshfield High School district.

Webster County R-2, including Seymour, part of two common districts and all of three common districts.

Webster County R-3, two common school districts and Fordland district.

Webster County R-5, Niangua and three common school districts.

Industry Confident A Good Year Lies Ahead in 1965

NEW YORK (AP) — Winter's first onslaughts may be putting a crimp on construction here and there but not in the industry's confidence that still another good year lies ahead.

Construction poured about $62 billion into the economy in 1963, and in the first 11 months of this year was running 6 per cent ahead of that.

Once feared as a possible drag on 1965's economic growth because of a slowdown in home building, construction in general now is billed to add at least a moderate lift next year.

Housing accounts for about one-third of the total and may be less than spectacular. Many elements in the other two-thirds continue to boom.

Census Bureau figures for November show actual construction, figured at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, running at $65.6 billion, ahead of both October 1964 and November 1963.

This helps offset the pessimism generated by the October tract awards. These had dropped 7 per cent from a year ago, largely because of the sharpest decline of this year in the residential field.

Contract awards point ahead and any drop if prolonged is disturbing. But economists point out that other forward-looking signs are good. Spending for several other forms of construction seem sure to rise.

These include new highways, school building, manufacturing plants. Plans have been announced for expansion in all three fields.

Office building has topped out in some regions, continues at a fast pace in others. For the nation as a whole, office building may stay around this year's rate — far from a drag on the economy, but still no boost.

And the utilities should spend more for expansion because Americans go right on talking more on the phone and using more electricity and gas.

Much of the slowdown has been charged to overbuilding in some communities, and largely in apartment houses where vacancy rates have been rising.

All of this is expected to change in the next few years as the many who were born in the middle and late '40s become young adults and move, first into apartments, and then into homes of their own.

But next year, if construction is to help the economy grow, the accent will be more on spending by federal, state and local governments, and expansion by industries.

ticipate in such activities as civil rights demonstrations in the South because they feel they are worthy though unlawful.

Only the regents can change the regulations.

Free Speech Movement demonstrations, protest rallies and picketing have produced turmoil on the campus over the past two months.

The group staged a sit-in at the university's administration building which was broken up with the arrest last Thursday of 814 demonstrators on orders of Gov. Brown.

Those arrested included 590 students, 89 teaching assistants, researchers and university employes, and 135 persons not connected with the university.

The Alameda County district attorney's office said that because of the large number arrested it has been unable to identify the 135 non-students.

At a mass arraignment Monday the total number dropped to 768 with dismissal of charges against teen-agers caught in the sit-in.

Municipal Judge Ruppert Crittenden told the 768 they face charges which "may seriously affect your future." He continued their cases to Monday so attorneys could prepare their defense.

In a dramatic convocation in the university's Greek Theater Monday, university president Clark Kerr offered a peace plan drafted by the Council of Department Chairmen which included dropping of university charges against four student leaders of the Free Speech Movement.

As he finished, the FSM president, Mario Savio, sought to address the crowd of about 17,-000 over the microphone just relinquished by Kerr.

Campus police quickly seized Savio and hauled him offstage as members of the audience booed and shouted: "Let him speak."

He was released moments later and allowed to speak. He said that all he wanted to do was announce an immediate student rally. Savio said he had been "hustled off" by the police and had not been struck.

Savio later told the rally the peace proposal was "totally unacceptable."

Kerr said after the incident he noted unfavorable crowd reaction to the police action which took place in full view of the audience.

CHRISTMAS MEMORIES

"The memory of the just is blessed." Prov. 10:7

As Christmas lights begin to glow. . .My thoughts go back to long ago . . .To pop-corn balls, cranberry strings. . .Wax candles and old fashioned things. . .The tree adorned with paper-chains. . .The apples, nuts and candy canes. . . In long black stockings and the toys. . .Church pageants, tinsel and the noise. . . .Of fire-cracker, drum and horn. . .And church-attendance Christmas morn.

OUR 55TH YEAR | 10¢ PER COPY | SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1964 | NUMBER 61

THE LITTLE ELVES whose nimble fingers fabricate the toys and goodies for the annual globe circling trip of Santa Claus have nothing on the Brownies of Sikeston. Every year, for several years past, the Girl Scouts and Brownies have made toys and cooked goodies for the annual toy festival at which everything the girls made has been turned over to Mrs. Jewell Allen for distribution where they are most needed.

This year the Brownies, all 167 of them in the ten Brownie Troops of Sikeston are going it alone and for weeks the youngsters have been busy making toys, baking cookies, and making Christmas tree ornaments-all of which will be on display at the St. Francis Xavier School auditorium next Sunday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. And the public is invited to come and see what remarkable work these Brownies can do.

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The State Commission on Higher Education wants to take another look at the findings of its special consultant who studied the needs of the St. Joseph, Joplin and Bootheel areas.

Dr. George L. Hall, professor of higher education at the University of Michigan, recommended:

1. New two-year colleges in the Joplin and southeastern Missouri areas by 1970, but none at St. Joseph.

2. A big expansion of the junior college program with increased state aid and two new junior colleges in the Bootheel.

Meeting in Columbia Monday, commission agreed southeastern Missouri needs junior colleges. And it endorsed Dr. Hall' recommendation for a new junior college district in Buchanan and Andrew counties —a proposal that is already in the works.

The State Board of Education approved such a new district Monday.

But the commission did not give full approval to the Hall study. It questioned the interpretation of some of the data and wants to study it further.

As it did last week in its first report, the commission counseled a go-slow attitude for the next two years before setting up new institutions and programs. It said a hasty proliferation of facilities would be wasteful and inefficient.

The study of the three special areas was started after the 1963 Legislature passed a bill to set up branches of the University of Missouri at St. Joseph and Joplin.

Gov. John M. Dalton vetoed the bill as premature-especially since the Legislature already had approved M.U. branches at St. Louis and Kansas City.

Dr. Hall said the goal should be college educational opportunities within commuting distance of every high school graduate. But he said it obviously would be too expensive to set up complete four-year institutions on this basis.

"It appears that the multipurpose, comprehensive junior college offers the best method of meeting the varied educational needs," he said.

In the St. Joseph area, he concluded the needs could be met through a coordinated plan using the facilities of a comprehensive new junior college, Northwest Missouri State College at Maryville and the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

In the Joplin area, Dr. Hall recommended state aid to help with the building program of the new junior college district there, with a separate senior college to be set up by 1970 to accept the junior college transfers.

Dr. Hall found the greatest educational need in the Bootheel area.

He suggested one junior college district be set up to cover Pemiscot, Dunklin and part of New Madrid counties and another to include Butler, Stoddard and part of New Madrid.

He recommended a two-year senior college by 1970 in the southern district to take junior college transfers.

He suggested Southeast State College at Cape Girardeau continue its residence center at Malden until the new schools get going, then gradually abandon this operation.

To encourage more junior colleges, he said the state should pay half the building costs and increase state aid from $200 to $300 per student. The commission already has recommended a 25 per cent increase in state aid.

He predicted Missouri colleges will enroll 93,757 next year and 193,909 by 1975.

Forty Million Christmas Trees

WASHINGTON (AP) -- About 46 million Christmas trees will add glitter to the American holiday season this year, the Agriculture Department predicts.

Most of the trees will come from domestic forests and plantations, but about 850,000 will be cut in national forests.

The department said a six-foot tree may take as much as a quart of water daily to keep it fresh and fire-resistant after it is first brought indoors.

Second Library Sacked, Burned In Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) -- A mob protesting America's policies toward the Congo and Malaysia stormed the U. S. Information Service library in the East Java capital of Surabaja Monday night, burning books, furniture, a mobile unit and a car.

It was the second U. S. library attacked by Indonesian demonstrators in four days. A mob stoned and sacked the American cultural center in Jakarta and its library last Friday, destroying about a fourth of the library's 15,000 books.

The Communist - led demonstrators are protesting America's participation with Belgium in the rescue of white hostages from Congolese rebels and U. S. support of Malayisa, which Indonesian President Sukarno has threatened to crush.

USIS Director Paul Neilson told a news conference a mob of about 1,000 banner - waving demonstrators smashed windows to enter the Surabaja library, which had been closed and locked in anticipation of trouble.

The mob hauled down the American flag and raised the Indonesian flag, wrecked the interior of the library, then threw furniture and books outside and built a bonfire with them.

The director of the library, James McHale, informed Neilson about a fourth of the library's 16,000 books were destroyed.

No American staff members were in the building, and Indonesian employes in the building were not hurt.

Neilson said Allan McLean, American consul at Surabaja, reported the "lightning raid" lasted half an hour and police did not arrive until after the demonstrators left.

McLean tried to contact the Surabaja authorities but no one was available to see him, Neilson said.

American Ambassador Howard P. Jones is protesting the Surabaja attack to officials in Jakarta. The embassy has not yet received an answer to its note protesting the attack on the Jakarta center.

Neilson and Jones planned to fly to Surabaja Wednesday to assess the damage.

Rotarians In Party for the Rotary Anns

The Rotary Club entertained their Anns with a Christmas party last night at the Rustic Rock, when they had a 30-minute musical program, furnished by the Senior High Concert Choir. The choir with its 90 members, gave seven selections under the direction of Gordon Beaver. The choir was introduced by the program chairman, Alex Klein.

Guests present were Ed McClary, Jackson; Fred Schultz, St. Louis; Earl Dee and Al Tecklin, both of St. Louis and guests of Lennie Whitworth. Other guests were Ronnie Summers and Russ Felker, guests of Robert Summers.

Next Monday night will be installation night for new members.

FHA Has Regional Meeting

Over 600 Future Homemakers of America and their advisors attended the Region 6 Area meeting Saturday, at Cape Central High School Auditorium.

The theme, "Education -- A Foundation for Tomorrow" was emphasized by the keynote speaker, Dr. William C. Healey, director of special education at Jefferson City. He stated that the majority of teenagers who quit school because they are unhappy, will be even more unhappy by the time they are twenty. He also pointed out the fact that learning has increased by four times and that soon children will be learning to read at the age of three and be studying algebra when in the third grade. We as the future parents must be able to cope with the problem of aiding them in their studies. Thus education is essential for our future.

Miss Linda Deevers. regional president, opened the meeting and introduced the regional officers and guests.

An officers' luncheon was held at the Colonial Dinner House honoring Mrs. Margaret Rahm who was elected honorary member.

"The Folk Four" a folk-singing quartet from Chaffee was the winner of the FHA talent show and will go to the Midsouth Fair at Memphis next September. A choral group from Oran was chosen as alternates.

Six Arrested By Police; 5 For County

Six arrests were made by the city police in the past 24 hours.

Earl G. Lott, 107 Dixie, charged with check forgery, was turned over to Scott county authorities.

Willie H. Lott, 107 Dixie, charged with check forgery, was turned over to Scott county authorities.

Larry E. Evans, 614 Delmar, charged on two counts, one on larceny, and the second for possession of another person's selective service card, was turned over to Scott County authorities.

Harry B. Hornback, 419 Kendall, charged with larceny, was turned over to Scott County authorities.

State Trooper Accidently Shot

Southwick and Jerome Cummings, both of Sedalia, were hunting in a brushy area when Cummings fired at some quail and the charge hit Southwick from a distance of 50 to 60 yards. Cummings said he thought Southwick was in another location.

LBJ And Wilson Confer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and Prime Minister Harold Wilson continue their talks today with two main subjects expected on the agenda: the nuclear future of the Atlantic Alliance and the situation in Southeast Asia.

Wilson began to spell out his ideas on how to organize a nuclear weapons force within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization at a midafternoon session with Johnson Monday, their second of the day. The prime minister will conclude his presentation today and then, presumably, Johnson will present a defense of the multilateral force as conceived by the United States.

Wilson is cool to the idea. Instead, the Labor government is understood to propose the formation of a new NATO nuclear command, to include Britain's nuclear bombers and submarines and all or most of the nuclear tactical weapons already in Europe.

The U. S. suggested nuclear fleet, drastically reduced from the proposed 25 ships with 200 Polaris missiles, also would be part of the new command.

The two leaders will seek no decisions on this delicate and complex issue, observers on both sides cautioned Monday night. The word that no blueprint will emerge from the two-day conference was stressed repeatedly, with American and British officials using the same word.

What should be achieved in the talks is a mutual understanding on how to shape the West's nuclear defense, before the issue is taken up with the Allies in NATO, the officials said.

The Johnson-Wilson talks are going far beyond the NATO problem, it was emphasized after the first day. The aim is to formulate a joint philosophy on the role in the world of the only two Western powers with worldwide responsibilities.

While the mixed-manned nuclear missile fleet is at the heart of the NATO problem, it is but one factor, the British are saying. American observers are hopeful that this means Wilson would not rigidly oppose the fleet concept, if it can be submerged in a broader Atlantic force.

The prime minister is understood to be ready to talk today again about his country's growing tasks east of the Suez, in the Middle East and in Malaysia, while Johnson is expected to remind his guest of the need to apply the same to South Viet Nam.

Monday night Johnson gave a dinner at the White House for Wilson.

Rebel Students Spurn University Peace Overture

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A peace offer spurned by the University of California's rebel student group comes under the scrutiny of 1,200 faculty members on the Berkeley campus today with a return to order of continued demonstrations for unrestricted politico - social campaigning in the balance.

The Academic Senate — all faculty members with tenure — set a meeting for 3 p.m. to review the squelched peace proposal, listen to alternative plans and announce their opinion.

Insurgent students temporarily suspended until 8 a.m. Wednesday their strike and picketing of university entrances and classroom buildings in an effort to promote a general strike. They said whether or not they resume depends on the Academic Senate's report on the peace plan turned down Monday.

Rebel student leaders went to Sacramento saying they would place their protests before Gov. Edmund G. Brown today.

A minority of the 27,400-member student body is demanding the right to recruit volunteers and solicit funds anywhere on campus for off-campus politico-social activities, including civil rights work.

Their protests led to a loosening of regulations by the university Board of Regents last month. The regents gave permission for on-campus solicitation and recruitment in three designated areas for lawful off-campus activity.

A spokesman for the insurgent group, called Free Speech Movement, said the movement's prime demand is for removal of the word -- "lawful" from the regulations. He said students want to par-

August V. Butler

AUGUST V. BUTLER was elected illustrious master of El Camino Council, No. 52, Royal and Select Masons, at that organization's meeting Monday night in the Masonic Temple. Other officers elected are: Arlie D. Denbow, deputy master; Leslie Rister, principal conductor of the work; John M. Duckett, treasurer and Elbert F. Sloan, recorder. They will be installed in office on Jan. 4.

Announce PTA Show Winners

Eleven contestants competed in the under 12 years of age group and nine in the over 12 years of age group of the Talent show sponsored by the Matthews R-V PTA Saturday evening. Cash awards of $3.00, $2.00, and $1.00 were made in the junior division and $15.00, $10.00, and $5.00 were made in the senior division. Mrs. Joe Schneider was in charge of the talent show and Randolph Kem served as master of ceremonies.

First place in the senior division went to Buck Cantwell of East Prairie for his vocal solo, "Roll Around Heaven All Day", second and third places went to Ann Merrick and Nancy Cain, respectively for acrobatic dances.

First place in the junior division went to Melinda Munson for her piano solo, "Norwegian Concerto", second to Barbara Kay Barnes for a tap dance, and third to Darrell McCroy for a vocal solo.

The program was opened with several selections by the Matthews high school pep band directed by Ralph Weinstein.

Approximately two hundred people attended the chili or stew supper served preceding the talent show. Proceeds will be used to pay for equipment used in the reading program in the elementary school.

The yuletide theme was used in the table decorations which were made by Mrs. David York, Mrs. Wm. Robets, and Mrs. R. B. Vann.

East Prairie Man Involved In Accident

There were four traffic injuries Monday in its territory, Troop E, State Highway Patrol reports, no fatalities or injuries. The only one in this vicinity involved was an East Prairie driver.

At 1 p.m. Monday, the Patrol reports, on Highway 61, eight miles north of Sikeston, Guy Turnbo, 44, of East Prairie, traveling south, came around a curve and ran into the rear of a wrecker driven by Gerald Ramey, 18, of St. Louis. There were no injuries but Turnbo was charged with careless and reckless driving.

Special Train For Missouri Democrats

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Some Missouri Democrats will go to the inauguration of President Lyndon B. Johnson, Jan. 20, aboard a train known as the LBJ Special.

Garrett L. Smalley, Jackson County Democratic chairman, said today three special sleeping cars will be made up here and en route to St. Louis will pick up passengers at Independence, Sedalia and Jefferson City.

Whether Independence's most famous citizen, former President Truman, would board the train has not been announced.

Smalley said Gov.-elect Warren E. Hearnes will board the train at Jefferson City to lead the party's state delegation.

Council Reappoints Day to Housing Authority Board

The city council, in its regular monthly meeting Monday night approved the re-appointment of A. J. Day as a member of the Housing Authority of Sikeston board for a four-year term, presented a commission as director of Civil Defense of Sikeston to W. P. Tedlie; passed a resolution calling on the public to support the Folklores in that group's trip to Miami, Fla., Friday and, later, to get out a vote for the young singers when they appear on the Ted Mack TV show next month.

Rev. K. E. Crump, appeared before Council to make two requests: first that the city try and do something about thinning out the dog population of Sunset Addition and, second, to provide better police protection. He was assured the city would do all it could.

Dr. John Doggett, president of the Southwest PTA spoke to Council to urge the installation of a traffic control signal at the Murray Lane crossing of the Frisco Railroad. He was assured the city has been trying to get something done about it for several years and would continue to do so.

Taylor Noles, vice mayor, on behalf of the mayor, presented a commission as director of Civil Defense in Sikeston to W. P. Tedlie. The commission was signed by Gov. John M. Dalton, Warren E. Hearnes as secretary of State and Frank H. Skelly, state director of Civil Defense.

Mayor Harry E. Dudley proposed that A. J. Day be reappointed as a member of the Housing Authority of Sikeston for a four-year term and the council approved the appointment.

The Council also voted that a letter be written to Gov. Dalton thanking him for his efforts in securing the gasoline tax refund to the city. This additional money, Mayor Dudley pointed out, has enabled the city to do much needed street building and repair work.

Several street and sidewalk matters were disposed of.

A petition to pave Pine street was presented by Jack Brady and accepted.

Petitions to pave Petroleum from Kentucky to Indiana and Indiana from Missouri to Petroleum were received and accepted and the necessary resolutions adopted.

A petition to pave Daniel from School to Olive street was accepted and the required resolution adopted.

Ordinances were adopted accepting the sidewalks on Felker street from Osage to North and on Young street from Osage to North and tax bills ordered issued.

There was also a discussion period during which the councilmen discussed fire protection service to Miner and it is probable a proposal will be made that in the future the fire trucks will not be permitted to answer calls in Miner except on a fee basis. This will come up at a later meeting.

Also discussed was the matter of car licenses. It was suggested that in 1965 those wishing to purchase city auto licenses must show their bills of sale or something showing the horsepower of the machine they want licensed.

Also discussed was a possible ordinance making it mandatory that whenever a workman goes into a manhole that there be someone else with him. There is always danger, W. Raymert Miller, city manager, pointed out of gas in these underground openings and as a matter of safety somebody should be on hand if needed.

Seal Sale Ahead of Last Year

Receipts as of Friday, December 7, 1964 total $1,054.25 compared with $823.00 at the same date in 1963. By towns the contributions to date are as follows: Sikeston - $747.75, Chaffee $133.50, Benton $46.00, Oran $46.00, Vanduser $18.00, Morley $7.00, Illmo $20.00, Commerce $2.00, Scott City $29.00, Kelso $3.00, New Hamburg $1.00.

The Christmas Seal Association is highly gratified at the increase shown so far. Mr. Leslie says, "Of course the campaign isn't over and it's our hope and prayer that all those who haven't yet answered their Christmas Seal appeals will do so promptly and help maintain this lead right to the finish line. The Scott County Tuberculosis Association is anxious to expand its activities aimed at wiping out TB and controlling the other respiratory diseases, which disable more Americans than any other groups of illnesses. In order to make this hope an actuality the need for funds is greater now than ever."

Emergency Cases

Two persons were treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Monday. Patricia Parker, Benton, fell and hit head and James Boze, Bell City, cut his hand.

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP) -- A female beagle has been sent to Washington as a gift for President Johnson, whose 5-year-old Beagle died recently.

Judge Montgomery Has 22 Cases Today

Magistrate Judge M. E. Montgomery returned to the bench today after an absence of two weeks, due to an operation at Barnes Hospital, St. Louis. He is recovering satisfactorily, but will take a leave of absence soon to recuperate. The judge, however, was able to hear 22 cases, and has appointed John H. Sides as acting judge, to sit on the bench during his absence.

The case of Frederick Butler, on a bad check charge, was dismissed by the state and costs ordered certified.

Marvin Mackley, St. Joseph, charged with driving motor vehicle without proper registration, plead guilty, and fined $10 and costs.

Charles Parker, 226 Helen, charged with careless and reckless driving, plead guilty and was fined $5 and costs.

Royce Gates, route two, Sikeston, charged with careless and reckless driving, and being under the influence of intoxicating liquor, had his case continued to Dec. 15.

William E. Mullins, charged on two counts, careless and reckless driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, and also improper registration, had his $200 cash bond forfeited.

Doyle D. Stokes, 407 W. Gladys, charged with burglary, had his case continued to Dec. 15.

Walter J. Wilson, 301 Kay Drive, charged with burglary, case was continued and bond set at $500.

THE LITTLE ELVES whose nimble fingers fabricate the toys and goodies for the annual globe circling trip of Santa Claus have nothing on the Brownies of Sikeston. Every year, for several years past, the Girl Scouts and Brownies have made toys and cooked goodies for the annual toy festival at which everything the girls made has been turned over to Mrs. Jewell Allen for distribution where they are most needed.

This year the Brownies, all 167 of them in the ten Brownie Troops of Sikeston are going it alone and for weeks the youngsters have been busy making toys, baking cookies, and making Christmas tree ornaments-all of which will be on display at the St. Francis Xavier School auditorium next Sunday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. And the public is invited to come and see what remarkable work these Brownies can do.

Recommends two Junior Colleges For The Bootheel

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The State Commission on Higher Education wants to take another look at the findings of its special consultant who studied the needs of the St. Joseph, Joplin and Bootheel areas.

Dr. George L. Hall, professor of higher education at the University of Michigan, recommended:

1. New two-year colleges in the Joplin and southeastern Missouri areas by 1970, but none at St. Joseph.

2. A big expansion of the junior college program with increased state aid and two new junior colleges in the Bootheel.

Meeting in Columbia Monday, commission agreed southeastern Missouri needs junior colleges. And it endorsed Dr. Hall' recommendation for a new junior college district in Buchanan and Andrew counties —a proposal that is already in the works.

The State Board of Education approved such a new district Monday.

But the commission did not give full approval to the Hall study. It questioned the interpretation of some of the data and wants to study it further.

As it did last week in its first report, the commission counseled a go-slow attitude for the next two years before setting up new institutions and programs. It said a hasty proliferation of facilities would be wasteful and inefficient.

The study of the three special areas was started after the 1963 Legislature passed a bill to set up branches of the University of Missouri at St. Joseph and Joplin.

Gov. John M. Dalton vetoed the bill as premature-especially since the Legislature already had approved M.U. branches at St. Louis and Kansas City.

Dr. Hall said the goal should be college educational opportunies within commuting distance of every high school graduate. But he said it obviously would be too expensive to set up complete four-year institutions on this basis.

"It appears that the multi-purpose, comprehensive junior college offers the best method of meeting the varied educational needs," he said.

In the St. Joseph area, he concluded the needs could be met through a coordinated plan using the facilities of a comprehensive new junior college, Northwest Missouri State College at Maryville and the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

In the Joplin area, Dr. Hall recommended state aid to help with the building program of the new junior college district there, with a separate senior college to be set up by 1970 to accept the junior college transfers.

Dr. Hall found the greatest educational need in the Bootheel area.

He suggested one junior college district be set up to cover Pemiscot, Dunklin and part of New Madrid counties and another to include Butler, Stoddard and part of New Madrid.

He recommended a two-year senior college by 1970 in the southern district to take junior college transfers.

He suggested Southeast State College at Cape Girardeau continue its residence center at Malden until the new schools get going, then gradually abandon this operation.

To encourage more junior colleges, he said the state should pay half the building costs and increase state aid from $200 to $300 per student. The commission already has recommended a 25 per cent increase in state aid.

He predicted Missouri colleges will enroll 93,757 next year and 193,909 by 1975.

Forty Million Christmas Trees

WASHINGTON (AP) -- About 46 million Christmas trees will add glitter to the American holiday season this year, the Agriculture Department predicts.

Most of the trees will come from domestic forests and plantations, but about 850,000 will be cut in national forests.

The department said a six-foot tree may take as much as a quart of water daily to keep it fresh and fire-resistant after it is first brought indoors.

Second Library Sacked, Burned In Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) -- A mob protesting America's policies toward the Congo and Malaysia stormed the U. S. Information Service library in the East Java capital of Surabaja Monday night, burning books, furniture, a mobile unit and a car.

It was the second U. S. library attacked by Indonesian demonstrators in four days. A mob stoned and sacked the American cultural center in Jakarta and its library last Friday, destroying about a fourth of the library's 15,000 books.

The Communist - led demonstrators are protesting America's participation with Belgium in the rescue of white hostages from Congolese rebels and U. S. support of Malayisa, which Indonesian President Sukarno has threatened to crush.

USIS Director Paul Neilson told a news conference a mob of about 1,000 banner - waving demonstrators smashed windows to enter the Surabaja library, which had been closed and locked in anticipation of trouble.

The mob hauled down the American flag and raised the Indonesian flag, wrecked the interior of the library, then threw furniture and books outside and built a bonfire with them.

The director of the library, James McHale, informed Neilson about a fourth of the library's 16,000 books were destroyed.

No American staff members were in the building, and Indonesian employes in the building were not hurt.

Neilson said Allan McLean, American consul at Surabaja, reported the "lightning raid" lasted half an hour and police did not arrive until after the demonstrators left.

McLean tried to contact the Surabaja authorities but no one was available to see him, Neilson said.

American Ambassador Howard P. Jones is protesting the Surabaja attack to officials in Jakarta. The embassy has not yet received an answer to its note protesting the attack on the Jakarta center.

Neilson and Jones planned to fly to Surabaja Wednesday to assess the damage.

Rotarians In Party for the Rotary Anns

The Rotary Club entertained their Anns with a Christmas party last night at the Rustic Rock, when they had a 30-minute musical program, furnished by the Senior High Concert Choir. The choir with its 90 members, gave seven selections under the direction of Gordon Beaver. The choir was introduced by the program chairman, Alex Klein.

Guests present were Ed McClary, Jackson; Fred Schultz, St. Louis; Earl Dee and Al Tecklin, both of St. Louis and guests of Lennie Whitworth. Other guests were Ronnie Summers and Russ Felker, guests of Robert Summers.

Next Monday night will be installation night for new members.

FHA Has Regional Meeting

Over 600 Future Homemakers of America and their advisors attended the Region 6 Area meeting Saturday, at Cape Central High School Auditorium.

The theme, "Education -- A Foundation for Tomorrow" was emphasized by the keynote speaker, Dr. William C. Healey, director of special education at Jefferson City. He stated that the majority of teenagers who quit school because they are unhappy, will be even more unhappy by the time they are twenty. He also pointed out the fact that learning has increased by four times and that soon children will be learning to read at the age of three and be studying algebra when in the third grade. We as the future parents must be able to cope with the problem of aiding them in their studies. Thus education is essential for our future.

Miss Linda Deevers, regional president, opened the meeting and introduced the regional officers and guests.

An officers' luncheon was held at the Colonial Dinner House honoring Mrs. Margaret Rahm who was elected honorary member.

"The Folk Four" a folk-singing quartet from Chaffee was the winner of the FHA talent show and will go to the Midsouth Fair at Memphis next September. A choral group from Oran was chosen as alternates.

Six Arrested By Police; 5 For County

Six arrests were made by the city police in the past 24 hours.

Willie H. Lott, 107 Dixie, charged with check forgery, was turned over to Scott county authorities.

Larry E. Evans, 614 Delmar, charged on two counts, one on larceny, and the second for possession of another person's selective service card, was turned over to Scott County authorities.

Harry B. Hornback, 419 Kendall, charged with larceny, was turned over to Scott County authorities.

State Trooper Accidently Shot

Southwick and Jerome Cummings, both of Sedalia, were hunting in a brushy area when Cummings fired at some quail and the charge hit Southwick from a distance of 50 to 60 yards. Cummings said he thought Southwick was in another location.

LBJ And Wilson Confer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and Prime Minister Harold Wilson continue their talks today with two main subjects expected on the agenda: the nuclear future of the Atlantic Alliance and the situation in Southeast Asia.

Wilson began to spell out his ideas on how to organize a nuclear weapons force within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization at a midafternoon session with Johnson Monday, their second of the day. The prime minister will conclude his presentation today and then, presumably, Johnson will present a defense of the multilateral force as conceived by the United States.

Wilson is cool to the idea. Instead, the Labor government is understood to propose the formation of a new NATO nuclear command, to include Britain's nuclear bombers and submarines and all or most of the nuclear tactical weapons already in Europe.

The U. S. suggested nuclear fleet, drastically reduced from the proposed 25 ships with 200 Polaris missiles, also would be part of the new command.

The two leaders will seek no decisions on this delicate and complex issue, observers on both sides cautioned Monday night. The word that no blueprint will emerge from the two-day conference was stressed repeatedly, with American and British officials using the same word.

What should be achieved in the talks is a mutual understanding on how to shape the West's nuclear defense, before the issue is taken up with the Allies in NATO, the officials said.

The Johnson-Wilson talks are going far beyond the NATO problem, it was emphasized after the first day. The aim is to formulate a joint philosophy on the role in the world of the only two Western powers with worldwide responsibilities.

While the mixed-manned nuclear missile fleet is at the heart of the NATO problem, it is but one factor, the British are saying. American observers are hopeful that this means Wilson would not rigidly oppose the fleet concept, if it can be submerged in a broader Atlantic force.

The prime minister is understood to be ready to talk today again about his country's growing tasks east of the Suez, in the Middle East and in Malaysia, while Johnson is expected to remind his guest of the need to apply the same to South Viet Nam.

Monday night Johnson gave a dinner at the White House for Wilson.

Rebel Students Spurn University Peace Overture

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A peace offer spurned by the University of California's rebel student group comes under the scrutiny of 1,200 faculty members on the Berkeley campus today with a return to order of continued demonstrations for unrestricted politico - social campaigning in the balance.

The Academic Senate — all faculty members with tenure — set a meeting for 3 p.m. to review the squelched peace proposal, listen to alternative plans and announce their opinion.

Insurgent students temporarily suspended until 8 a.m. Wednesday their strike and picketing of university entrances and classroom buildings in an effort to promote a general strike. They said whether or not they resume depends on the Academic Senate's report on the peace plan turned down Monday.

Rebel student leaders went to Sacramento saying they would place their protests before Gov. Edmund G. Brown today.

A minority of the 27,400-member student body is demanding the right to recruit volunteers and solicit funds anywhere on campus for off-campus politico-social activities, including civil rights work.

Their protests led to a loosening of regulations by the university Board of Regents last month. The regents gave permission for on-campus solicitation and recruitment in three designated areas for lawful off-campus activity.

A spokesman for the insurgent group, called Free Speech Movement, said the movement's prime demand is for removal of the word -- "lawful" from the regulations. He said students want to par-

They will be installed in office on Jan. 4.

Announce PTA Show Winners

Eleven contestants competed in the under 12 years of age group and nine in the over 12 years of age group of the Talent show sponsored by the Matthews R-V PTA Saturday evening. Cash awards of $3.00, $2.00, and $1.00 were made in the junior division and $15.00, $10.00, and $5.00 were made in the senior division. Mrs. Joe Schneider was in charge of the talent show and Randolph Kem served as master of ceremonies.

First place in the senior division went to Buck Cantwell of East Prairie for his vocal solo, "Roll Around Heaven All Day", second and third places went to Ann Merrick and Nancy Cain, respectively for acrobatic dances.

First place in the junior division went to Melinda Munson for her piano solo, "Norwegian Concerto", second to Barbara Kay Barnes for a tap dance, and third to Darrell McCroy for a vocal solo.

The program was opened with several selections by the Matthews high school pep band directed by Ralph Weinstein.

Approximately two hundred people attended the chili or stew supper served preceding the talent show. Proceeds will be used to pay for equipment used in the reading program in the elementary school.

The yuletide theme was used in the table decorations which were made by Mrs. David York, Mrs. Wm. Robets, and Mrs. R. B. Vann.

East Prairie Man Involved In Accident

There were four traffic injuries Monday in its territory, Troop E, State Highway Patrol reports, no fatalities or injuries. The only one in this vicinity involved was an East Prairie driver.

At 1 p.m. Monday, the Patrol reports, on Highway 61, eight miles north of Sikeston, Guy Turnbo, 44, of East Prairie, traveling south, came around a curve and ran into the rear of a wrecker driven by Gerald Ramey, 18, of St. Louis. There were no injuries but Turnbo was charged with careless and reckless driving.

Special Train For Missouri Democrats

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Some Missouri Democrats will go to the inauguration of President Lyndon B. Johnson, Jan. 20, aboard a train known as the LBJ Special.

Garrett L. Smalley, Jackson County Democratic chairman, said today three special sleeping cars will be made up here and en route to St. Louis will pick up passengers at Independence, Sedalia and Jefferson City.

Whether Independence's most famous citizen, former President Truman, would board the train has not been announced.

Smalley said Gov.-elect Warren E. Hearnes will board the train at Jefferson City to lead the party's state delegation.

Council Reappoints Day to Housing Authority Board

The city council, in its regular monthly meeting Monday night approved the re-appointment of A. J. Day as a member of the Housing Authority of Sikeston board for a four-year term, presented a commission as director of Civil Defense of Sikeston to W. P. Tedlie; passed a resolution calling on the public to support the Folklores in that group's trip to Miami, Fla., Friday and, later, to get out a vote for the young singers when they appear on the Ted Mack TV show next month.

Rev. K. E. Crump, appeared before Council to make two requests: first that the city try and do something about thinning out the dog population of Sunset Addition and, second, to provide better police protection. He was assured the city would do all it could.

Dr. John Doggett, president of the Southwest PTA spoke to Council to urge the installation of a traffic control signal at the Murray Lane crossing of the Frisco Railroad. He was assured the city has been trying to get something done about it for several years and would continue to do so.

Taylor Noles, vice mayor, on behalf of the mayor, presented a commission as director of Civil Defense in Sikeston to W. P. Tedlie. The commission was signed by Gov. John M. Dalton, Warren E. Hearnes as secretary of State and Frank H. Skelly, state director of Civil Defense.

Mayor Harry E. Dudley proposed that A. J. Day be reappointed as a member of the Housing Authority of Sikeston for a four-year term and the council approved the appointment.

The Council also voted that a letter be written to Gov. Dalton thanking him for his efforts in securing the gasoline tax refund to the city. This additional money, Mayor Dudley pointed out, has enabled the city to do much needed street building and repair work.

Several street and sidewalk matters were disposed of.

A petition to pave Pine street was presented by Jack Brady and accepted.

Petitions to pave Petroleum from Kentucky to Indiana and Indiana from Missouri to Petroleum were received and accepted and the necessary resolutions adopted.

A petition to pave Daniel from School to Olive street was accepted and the required resolution adopted.

Ordinances were adopted accepting the sidewalks on Felker street from Osage to North and on Young street from Osage to North and tax bills ordered issued.

There was also a discussion period during which the councilmen discussed fire protection service to Miner and it is probable a proposal will be made that in the future the fire trucks will not be permitted to answer calls in Miner except on a fee basis. This will come up at a later meeting.

Also discussed was the matter of car licenses. It was suggested that in 1965 those wishing to purchase city auto licenses must show their bills of sale or something showing the horsepower of the machine they want licensed.

Also discussed was a possible ordinance making it mandatory that whenever a workman goes into a manhole that there be someone else with him. There is always danger, W. Raymert Miller, city manager, pointed out of gas in these underground openings and as a matter of safety somebody should be on hand if needed.

Seal Sale Ahead of Last Year

Receipts as of Friday, December 7, 1964 total $1,054.25 compared with $823.00 at the same date in 1963. By towns the contributions to date are as follows: Sikeston - $747.75, Chaffee $133.50, Benton $46.00, Oran $46.00, Vanduser $18.00, Morley $7.00, Illmo $20.00, Commerce $2.00, Scott City $29.00, Kelso $3.00, New Hamburg $1.00.

The Christmas Seal Association is highly gratified at the increase shown so far. Mr. Leslie says, "Of course the campaign isn't over and it's our hope and prayer that all those who haven't yet answered their Christmas Seal appeals will do so promptly and help maintain this lead right to the finish line. The Scott County Tuberculosis Association is anxious to expand its activities aimed at wiping out TB and controlling the other respiratory diseases, which disable more Americans than any other groups of illnesses. In order to make this hope an actuality the need for funds is greater now than ever."

Emergency Cases

Two persons were treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Monday. Patricia Parker, Benton, fell and hit head and James Boze, Bell City, cut his hand.

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP) -- A female beagle has been sent to Washington as a gift for President Johnson, whose 5-year-old Beagle died recently.

Ours is the age of specialization; a complex era of machines and processes requiring specialized knowledge. The average individual, when confronted by a problem outside his particular specialty, has to call upon outside help. If the car develops transmission trouble, he calls his garageman. If the automatic washer suddenly becomes neurotic, the appliance repairman is a necessity.

The habit of relying on others, however, has its serious disadvantages when applied indiscriminately. Our governmental life, like home life, has grown highly complex and has spawned with it a host of self-styled experts who are only too willing to diagnose governmental ills in the light of their own convictions. The easy way out for John Q. Public is to turn over the important matters of government to these "experts" -- just as one does with the mechanical problems arising in the operation of a household.

But America did not grow the easy way, and it will not persist with a citizenry willing to abdicate individual responsibilities in favor of the "easy" way.

Consider for a moment the general mode of life in the days of this country's founding: the colonial pioneer was largely self-sufficient. He grew his own food and preserved it, cleared his own land and built his own buildings. The fabric of clothing often came from the home spinning wheel. He cut his own firewood, butchered his own meat and cured his own leather. He prepared many of his medicinal home remedies, and often delivered his own off-spring. In essence, he was by necessity the original American "do-it-yourself" practitioner.

This rugged individual, accustomed to making his own decisions in matters of daily living, wanted also to govern himself. He was not kindly disposed toward unnecessary restriction of his personal activities imposed by distant authority, be it autocratic or bureaucratic. Out of this spirit of personal independence came the Revolutionary War and the American Republic.

A basic tent of our early government is becoming obscured today by the overworked idea of "rule by majority." Our Founding Fathers intended majority rule in matters of importance to the populace at large; matters such as diplomatic relations with other countries, questions of war and national protection, tariffs and international trade, and in all areas where government must do what the people cannot do by themselves.

However, an important concept of a true Democratic Republic is protection of the minority. The very foundation of our government was built upon the rights of that smallest and most important minority; the individual. It is those very same minority rights and freedoms which are being eroded gradually by trends of modern government.

Each of us, as an individual, must resist the modern temptation to place our liberties in the hands of erstwhile "experts" in influential places. From the "brain trust" days of three decades ago to the present, personal freedom has diminished in areas which are not the legitimate concern of government -- and the trend continues. The "majority," unthinkingly led by the "experts," have increasingly demanded conformity through edict.

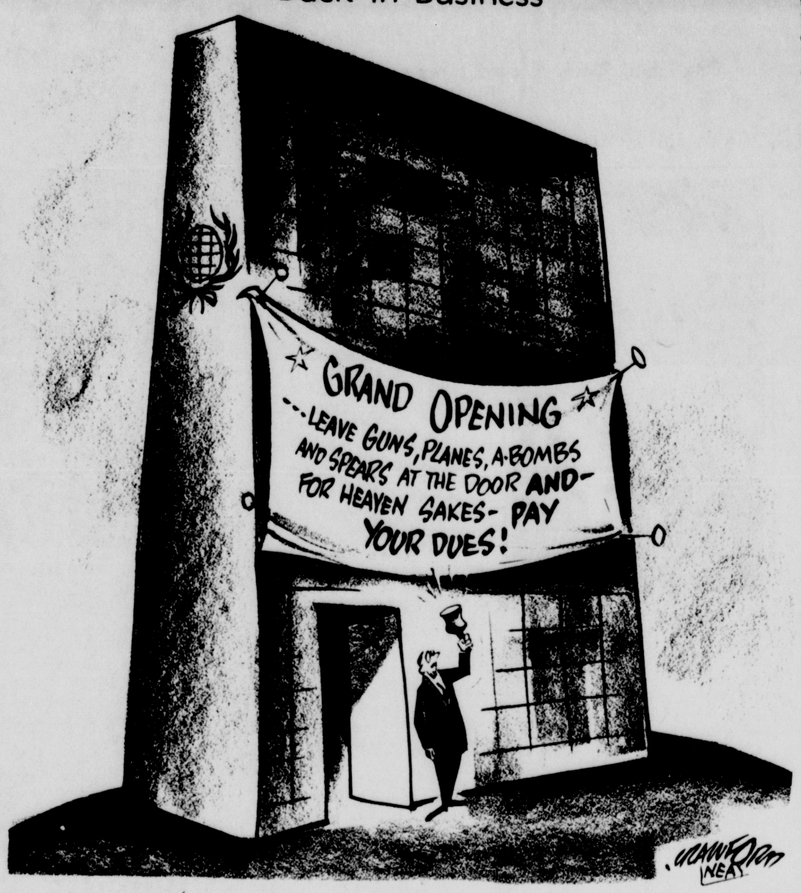
We should recognize the obvious: in a day of modern technology the problems and solutions arising in our society take on a different appearance from those of 200 years ago. On the other hand, let us not overlook the fact that the underlying causes of those problems are still the same: unchanging human nature.

An old saying throws a little light on human nature: "If you would have a thing done well, do it yourself." This simply states that no one else can apply himself to your interests as wholeheartedly as you. This holds true in regard to individual freedoms as well as elsewhere. Therefore, if you would have your personal interests in government protected fully, you will not simply sit back and let the "experts" guide you. Your individual freedoms are most important to you, and it is necessary for you to be your own "expert."

This in this age of specialization, every citizen must extend his range of specialties to include his government in order to wield the voice in its affairs to which he is justly entitled.

Granted, the town hall form of government is no longer practical, and we do elect "experts" to leadership in our government to speak for us. However, it is too commonplace for many of us to place a man in office and then expect him to carry the ball alone. We can rectify the situation only through individual action, based on informed opinions expressed frequently to those who represent us.

Back in Business



Is there an issue before your legislature? You should know of it and how it may affect your freedoms.

You should then discharge your responsibility by communicating your conclusions to your representatives. Urge your neighbor to do the same.

No elected official can long ignore the mandate of his constituents; but he cannot know it if he is not informed by his constituents. He never will be accurately informed if each of us chooses to sit back and "let George do it."

The colonist didn't "let George do it" when it came to his personal needs, because George either was no more an expert or was not readily available. Today we must let the experts handle the problems which arise in areas outside our own knowledge and abilities, but like the early Americans, each of us must be knowledgeable in matters of government. The personal participation in government in which the colonists took such pride is still a requisite for our successful and continuing Democracy in a Republic. We must not lose sight of this fact.

To counter the oft-heard argument that today's government is of necessity so much more complex than in colonial times that the individual cannot keep up with it, consider this:

Modern methods of communication far outstrip the facilities available to the colonists who still made it a point to be informed in their day. How much simpler it is to be well informed today on all sides of controversial issues and to communicate conclusions to those in responsible places. There is no basis for excusing modern lethargy.

It is the minority of one -- you, the individual -- which America was uniquely designed to protect. As an American, it is your duty to do it yourself!

NEW YORK (AP) — The office Christmas party today is in about the same plight as the whooping crane.

It isn't extinct — but it's in danger of becoming so.

"What were they really like?" they ask curiously about this time of year. "Were they really as wild as the old-timers say they were?"

That depends. The memories of the survivors of office Christmas parties are as undependable as those of the veterans of any other war, and a tendency to gory up the picture develops as the years pass.

Actually, in the old days — say a quarter of a century ago — many office Christmas parties were so sedate that not one member of the staff wound up with a black eye or broken bone. You might not even have had to call the cops.

But the classic, old-fashioned office Christmas celebration — at least as it is fondly recalled by many — was somewhere in between a Roman orgy, a Sioux scalping raid, and the attack on the Bastille.

Some, or all, of the following events might happen:

Somebody fulfilled the dream of a lifetime and put gin in the office water cooler.

At least 15 employes went up to the boss and told him what they really thought of him — and the boss made a mental note to start off the New Year by giving 15 merit decreases in pay.

Six middle-aged married men suffered ankle sprains chasing the girls from the stenographic pool from desktop to desktop.

By 10 p.m. — the party was supposed to end by 7 o'clock — the place looked like it had been hit by a hurricane, and the office boy was sent out for four more bottles.

By midnight, the boss was wearing mistletoe in his hair, had his arm around the janitor, and was promoting him to executive assistant.

At least five husbands didn't get home until Christmas morning.

Another fellow wouldn't be heard of until the third of January. Then a telegram would arrive from Montreal or Rio de Janeiro saying: "Where am I? Please send money."

It gave the indoor peasants one day on which to blow off 364 days of accumulated steam. It enabled the boss to find out who really loved him for himself, and who merely gave him lip service the rest of the year. It made the girls feel more like girls and less like typewriting robots.

The question arises then as to why these annual staff frolics have practically died out.

Some say it was because of the objections made by wives. Some say it was because of a growing tendency by employes to file suits against management for injuries and other mishaps suffered at the parties or on the way home afterward.

But others find a simpler explanation for the doom of the old-fashioned office Christmas party: the younger generation just doesn't have the stamina to endure them, and the older generation doesn't have the strength left to enjoy them properly.

THE SPARROW'S FALL

Our Government, in its concern with minutia, has yet to mark the sparrow's fall, but through the National Labor Relations Board it has become involved with the passing of dogs and cats.

It seems that the Teamsters Union set out to organize a couple of pet cemeteries in Peoria, Ill., and wanted an N.L.R.B. election. In order for the N. L. R. B. to order such an election, it is necessary for the pet cemeteries to be in interstate commerce to a significant degree.

As few out-of-state owners of defunct animals seem to ship them to Peoria for burial, and as local pets, once laid to rest, remain in Illinois soil, it was a little hard to decide that Cemetery Service Corporation was, indeed, in interstate commerce. But the three Board members who weighed the case were equal to the task.

Aha, they said, so to speak, this outfit does not ship animal cadavers in and out, but they must ship something in and out.

The Board, with some help from the Teamsters and the General Counsel, painstakingly totted up what the cemeteries had bought. Among the items was more than a thousand dollars worth of asphalt, some marble for making mausoleums, and some typewriters for communicating with suppliers and bereft pet owners. Still, more items were needed to reach the $50,000 point at which N. L. R. B. could claim jurisdiction.

Still not enough? Well, how about that statue. Sure enough, toss on the statue and the scales swing. Hooray! The N. L. R. B. won the day, apparently by the heft of an idealized rendering of Rover or Tom. The N. L.-R. B.'s interest in the sculpture didn't extend to saying in its decision whether it was of dog or cat.

The result is that the Teamsters will be privileged to hold their election in a pet cemetery. That's a new twist for Illinois, although the occupants of ordinary cemeteries there have been known to vote in general elections.

Politicians learned long ago that there's nothing like a whipping boy to get them on the front pages. Take any industry that's big enough to have a public "image," place it over the Congressional barrel and get out the paddles. Investigations of the have-you-stopped - beating - your - wife type unfailingly produce restrictive legislation, more paper work and, of course, more Federal jobs.

Francis C. Brown, president of the Schering Corporation, in noting this phenomenon of public life, pointed out to his stockholders at their annual meeting in Bloomfield, N.J., the historic parade of America's whipping boys: the railroads, then the oil companies, then "Wall Street," next our national defense contractors and more recently, the drug industry. Since the sympathetic American people "are essentially considerate of the sick and the unfortunate," said Mr. Brown, the latter show was a great success from the producers' standpoint, resulting in legislation, regulation and red tape that have slowed the introduction of new drugs to the lowest level in 16 years -- and threaten a system of health care unequalled anywhere in the world.

But the Schering chief executive, who admits he is an optimist, suggested to the meeting a practical means of directing the massive Government controls "along a more constructive course." Mr. Brown urged the appointment by the President of a board of distinguished representatives of industry, Government and private practice, to be directly responsible to the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and thus "in an advantageous position to arbitrate grave divisions of opinion between industry and the Food and Drugs Administration or scientific community."

As chairman, he suggested "an outstanding physician, such as Jonas Salk, discoverer of the Salk vaccine, or a Nobel laureate distinguished in the field of biological sciences, such as Dr. Philip Hench, who did the early work on cortisone." In his discussion, Mr. Brown applauded the recent appointment of Dr. Joseph F. Sadusk as medical director of the FDA as "the first real move toward an improvement of the recent climate."

If the dedicated efforts of such a board can assure "optimum protection" for the public and minimum restriction on scientific investigation -- as Mr. Brown believes -- it will not only get the latest whipping boy out of the Congressional woodshed, but will speed the day when the industry will achieve controls for heart and circulatory ailments and cancer -- which still elude us, and are leading causes of death in these United States.

THE CONSUMER'S FRIEND

Milk has gone up five cents a half - gallon at the I. G. A. Foodliner store in the little town of Front Royal, Va., and throughout the land Agriculture Department and White House figures have been speaking out for consumers who pay high food prices.

Oddly, there is no rational connection whatever between these two facts.

The Agriculture Department, through its milk marketing order arrangements allows local commissions to fix milk prices. What they fix is a floor under the prices which must be paid by consumers.

In Front Royal, the price of milk didn't go up at the I. G. A. until the owner, Robert H. Trumbo had been hauled into court and fined $250 for refusing to raise the price. He was also enjoined against selling milk below the official figure.

Those in the government who complain about high food prices seem absolutely oblivious to the part their own actions play in those increases. The Federal government fixes prices high on sugar, coffee, wheat and a number of other commodities. It taxes producers and processors heavily, and such taxes must be covered by prices. It encourages union demands for ever higher wages and more restrictive work rules in food industries.

Is this the kind of friend the consumer needs?

And the end is not yet. A group set up by the Administration to study our farm programs has recommended that the prices of many more commodities be covered by such marketing orders as have just raised the price of milk more than ten percent to housewives in Front Royal.

When food prices go up, there's a chance the weather might have caused it, or some other random factor. But mainly you can bet that Uncle Sam's heavy hand has entered the transaction somewhere.

The dream of building an underwater tunnel from England to the continent dates back a hundred years or more and work was actually begun on such a tunnel back in the 1880's. Sections over a mile long were driven under the channel from both England and France. The project was abandoned not so much because of technical difficulties as because of the apprehension felt by many Englishmen that the tunnel might one day be used for an invasion of their island from France.

The books on an upper shelf were out of the reach of the housekeeper, and so I gave her an assist at dusting time last spring. In handling the books I glanced at the titles and names of the authors. These were books published three and four decades ago.

These are books that meant a lot to me, and therefore were saved when hundreds of other books were discarded because my living quarters shrank.

What impressed me about all the books on this shelf and other shelves was their lack of bulk. In the twenties and before, and in the thirties, an author could say what he needed to say in 250 pages, even less, and the book could be sold for $2, or $3 at the most. Today it seems that an author, who got his Ph.D. only yesterday, needs 500 to 800 pages to say anything, or nothing.

Why is this?

I say it's because a hard-cover book can't be produced and distributed at a price of less than $5. The public won't shell out five or seven bucks for a small book. And so almost all books, including fiction, are fat, wordy, and dull.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1— Within 24 hours of each other, two "pocketbook" stories were published in Washington.

One said that American Telephone and Telegraph Co., due to technological progress and efficiency, is to reduce its long-distance rates by $100 million a year. That was just the latest in a long series of such reductions.

The other said that Postmaster General Grounowski has been ordered to study increasing second- and third-class mail rates by an estimated $300 million a year. And so is contemplated the latest in a long series of such increases.

Meanwhile, any user can tell you that over the years long-distance telephone service has become faster and more reliable, as well as cheaper.

As to the postal service— well, Congress has heard so many complaints lately that a number of Representatives took a full hour to discuss them in the last busy days of the 88th Congress. That it hasn't been better since is attested, ironically, by the Mail Handler's Union which is seeking to set aside representation election results because of the Post Office's slow delivery of the ballots.

All this is only some late data on something that has been developing over a long period—a story which effectively points up the difference between free, profit-making enterprise and Federal operations of services for sale.

Since 1932, the cost of mailing a first-class letter has risen from two to five cents, air mail from five to eight cents. The cost of making a long-distance phone call from Boston to San Francisco, for instance, has dropped from $9.50 to $2.25. (After 9, you can make the call for a dollar.)

The telephone companies have increased their volume of calls by 288 percent since 1930, hiring 77 percent more employees to do it. The Post Office has increased its piece volume of mail 143 percent, and hired 73 percent more people to do it. The additions to the payroll are almost the same percentage—but the increase in the volume of work is about twice in the telephone system what it is in the Post Office.

Well, while the Government was raising prices more than 100 percent on mail, and the telephone companies were reducing prices by far more, how did they make out financially?

Since 1932, the Post Office has lost more than 10 billion dollars which has had to be made up out of taxes or added to the national debt.

The telephone companies have made profits for their stockholders in that period, and in addition have paid more than $22 billion into the Treasury. In other words, taxes on the telephone system have been more than double the deficits of the Post Office operations.

C. Northcote Parkinson, the British economist and humorist, set down as one of his laws: "nationalized industries tend to go bankrupt."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington -- A bitter battle is raging inside the Steelworkers' Union which may affect the entire economy of the nation. President Johnson is watching it carefully. Some advisers would like to have him intervene in order to prevent a serious round of inflation.

The battle is between his friend David McDonald, now president of the Steelworkers' Union, and I. W. Abel, the union's secretary-treasurer, who is challenging Dave for the presidency.

Both sides are doing some colorful name-calling. The opposition to McDonald is calling the handsome, silver-haired Steelworkers' president a "frustrated actor who enjoys glamor more than the grime of the rolling mills." They assert Dave spends more time in Palm Springs, Calif., or the "21" Club in New York than in Pittsburgh or South Chicago.

They also point to McDonald's $50,000 salary plus expenses last year of $30,126.37--total $80,126.37.

They also point to his brother Joe's union salary of $13,219.50 plus expenses of $14,465.26, for a total of $27,684.76.

Finally, they point out that Dave's chief lobbyist, ex-Notre Dame football star Frank "Nordy" Hoffman, gets an expense account of $48,808.22 plus his salary of $16,000. Hoffman's job is to entertain members of Congress and get legislation passed in Washington.

On the other hand, McDonald's supporters accuse Abel of drawing expenses of $20,584.21 plus a salary of $35,000, for a total of $55,584.21.

--MCDONALD'S ACHIEVEMENTS--

What McDonald's critics overlook is that he has done one of the most outstanding jobs in the trade union movement by setting up the Human Relations Council which has ironed out labor disputes without strikes.

However, this type of bargaining has taken McDonald out of the rolling mills and in the DuQuesne Club, the sacred inner sanctum of the steel executives. As a result, if Dave walked through one of the plants outside Youngstown or Chicago today, few of his men would recognize him.

This is what his opponents are making the most of. They are led by Joe Germano of South Chicago and Joe Malony of New York, both close to the picket line and both backing I. W. Abel.

Abel has the reputation of being a trouble-maker, and in his campaign literature against McDonald promises union members that he will give jurisdiction back to the locals. This means more likelihood of strikes.

This is where President Johnson is deeply concerned. It isn't merely that McDonald happens to be a friend who went down the line for him in the recent election.

It's also the fact that either a steel strike or a wage boost would almost certainly lead to an increase in the price of steel.

--DISASTROUS INFLATION?--

Johnson was on the long distance telephone last fall persuading steel executives not to increase prices. So far he has been successful. At one time they were on the verge of a price increase, and it was only Lyndon's compulsive eloquence that persuaded them to change their minds.

But the round of rough bargaining and wage increases that would almost certainly follow the election of the anti-McDonald faction would make it impossible for Johnson to further prevent price increases.

As a young congressman under Franklin Roosevelt, the President vividly remembers what happened when FDR let the steel industry increase prices in 1937. Simultaneously, the Federal Reserve Board upped the discount rate -- as the Federal Reserve Board did last month. The combination led to the disastrous 1938 depression. And it took two years and the war to bring the United States out.

Ten years later, Johnson watched a similar situation under Eisenhower when in 1957 the steel industry raised prices, though operating at only around 50 per cent capacity. In '57, automobile production had been 6.1 million cars. Next year, 1958, auto production dropped to 4.2 million cars.

If there is a steel price increase in 1965 -- as is certain if there is a wage increase -- it will mean higher priced automobiles, less automobile production, less housing construction, and possibly the start of an economic tailspin.

All this is why President Johnson is watching the bitter feud inside the Steelworkers' Union. It's also why he lectured the bankers so eloquently against increasing interest rates that the First National Bank of Boston rescinded its rate hike.

The President may be forced to throw his weight behind McDonald and make clear the reasons he supports him -- namely, that another round of inflation would mean depreciation of labor's pension values, an increase in the cost of labor's food, and increase in the cost of housing. Furthermore, it would affect the pocketbook of every citizen in the nation.

Ours is the age of specialization: a complex era of machines and processes requiring specialized knowledge. The average individual, when confronted by a problem outside his particular specialty, has to call upon outside help. If the car develops transmission trouble, he calls his garageman. If the automatic washer suddenly becomes neurotic, the appliance repairman is a necessity.

The habit of relying on others, however, has its serious disadvantages when applied indiscriminately. Our governmental life, like home life, has grown highly complex and has spawned with it a host of self-styled experts who are only too willing to diagnose governmental ills in the light of their own convictions. The easy way out for John Q. Public is to turn over the important matters of government to these "experts" -- just as one does with the mechanical problems arising in the operation of a household.

But America did not grow the easy way, and it will not persist with a citizenry willing to abdicate individual responsibilities in favor of the "easy" way.

Consider for a moment the general mode of life in the days of this country's founding: the colonial pioneer was largely self-sufficient. He grew his own food and preserved it, cleared his own land and built his own buildings. The fabric of clothing often came from the home spinning wheel. He cut his own firewood, butchered his own meat and cured his own leather. He prepared many of his medicinal home remedies, and often delivered his own off-spring. In essence, he was by necessity the original American "do-it-yourself" practitioner.

This rugged individual, accustomed to making his own decisions in matters of daily living, wanted also to govern himself. He was not kindly disposed toward unnecessary restriction of his personal activities imposed by distant authority, be it autocratic or bureaucratic. Out of this spirit of personal independence came the Revolutionary War and the American Republic.

A basic tent of our early government is becoming obscured today by the overworked idea of "rule by majority." Our Founding Fathers intended majority rule in matters of importance to the populace at large; matters such as diplomatic relations with other countries, questions of war and national protection, tariffs and international trade, and in all areas where government must do what the people cannot do by themselves.

However, an important concept of a true Democratic Republic is protection of the minority. The very foundation of our government was built upon the rights of that smallest and most important minority; the individual. It is those very same minority rights and freedoms which are being eroded gradually by trends of modern government.

Each of us, as an individual, must resist the modern temptation to place our liberties in the hands of erstwhile "experts" in influential places. From the "brain trust" days of three decades ago to the present, personal freedom has diminished in areas which are not the legitimate concern of government -- and the trend continues. The "majority," unthinkingly led by the "experts," have increasingly demanded conformity through edict.

We should recognize the obvious: in a day of modern technology the problems and solutions arising in our society take on a different appearance from those of 200 years ago. On the other hand, let us not overlook the fact that the underlying causes of those problems are still the same: unchanging human nature.

An old saying throws a little light on human nature: "If you would have a thing done well, do it yourself." This simply states that no one else can apply himself to your interests as wholeheartedly as you. This holds true in regard to individual freedoms as well as elsewhere. Therefore, if you would have your personal interests in government protected fully, you will not simply sit back and let the "experts" guide you. Your individual freedoms are most important to you, and it is necessary for you to be your own "expert."

This in this age of specialization, every citizen must extend his range of specialties to include his government in order to wield the voice in its affairs to which he is justly entitled.

Granted, the town hall form of government is no longer practical, and we do elect "experts" to leadership in our government to speak for us. However, it is too commonplace for many of us to place a man in office and then expect him to carry the ball alone. We can rectify the situation only through individual action, based on informed opinions expressed frequently to those who represent us.

Is there an issue before your legislature? You should know of it and how it may affect your freedoms.

You should then discharge your responsibility by communicating your conclusions to your representatives. Urge your neighbor to do the same.

No elected official can long ignore the mandate of his constituents; but he cannot know it if he is not informed by his constituents. He never will be accurately informed if each of us chooses to sit back and "let George do it."

The colonist didn't "let George do it" when it came to his personal needs, because George either was no more an expert or was not readily available. Today we must let the experts handle the problems which arise in areas outside our own knowledge and abilities, but like the early Americans, each of us must be knowledgeable in matters of government. The personal participation in government in which the colonists took such pride is still a requisite for our successful and continuing Democracy in a Republic. We must not lose sight of this fact.

To counter the oft-heard argument that today's government is of necessity so much more complex than in colonial times that the individual cannot keep up with it, consider this:

It gave the indoor peasants one day on which to blow off 364 days of accumulated steam. It enabled the boss to find out who really loved him for himself, and who merely gave him lip service the rest of the year. It made the girls feel more like girls and less like typewriting robots.

The question arises then as to why these annual staff frolics have practically died out.

Some say it was because of the objections made by wives. Some say it was because of a growing tendency by employes to file suits against management for injuries and other mishaps suffered at the parties or on the way home afterward.

But others find a simpler explanation for the doom of the old-fashioned office Christmas party: the younger generation just doesn't have the stamina to endure them, and the older generation doesn't have the strength left to enjoy them properly.

THE SPARROW'S FALL

Our Government, in its concern with minutia, has yet to mark the sparrow's fall, but through the National Labor Relations Board it has become involved with the passing of dogs and cats.

It seems that the Teamsters Union set out to organize a couple of pet cemeteries in Peoria, Ill., and wanted an N.L.R.B. election. In order for the N.L.R.B. to order such an election, it is necessary for the pet cemeteries to be in interstate commerce to a significant degree.

As few out-of-state owners of defunct animals seem to ship them to Peoria for burial, and as local pets, once laid to rest, remain in Illinois soil, it was a little hard to decide that Cemetery Service Corporation was, indeed, in interstate commerce. But the three Board members who weighed the case were equal to the task.

Aha, they said, so to speak, this outfit does not ship animal cadavers in and out, but they must ship something in and out.

The Board, with some help from the Teamsters and the General Counsel, painstakingly totted up what the cemeteries had bought. Among the items was more than a thousand dollars worth of asphalt, some marble for making mausoleums, and some typewriters for communicating with suppliers and bereft pet owners. Still, more items were needed to reach the $50,000 point at which N.L.R.B. could claim jurisdiction.

Still not enough? Well, how about that statue. Sure enough, toss on the statue and the scales swing. Hooray! The N.L.R.B. won the day, apparently by the heft of an idealized rendering of Rover or Tom. The N.L.R.B.'s interest in the sculpture didn't extend to saying in its decision whether it was of dog or cat.

The result is that the Teamsters will be privileged to hold their election in a pet cemetery. That's a new twist for Illinois, although the occupants of ordinary cemeteries there have been known to vote in general elections.

Politicians learned long ago that there's nothing like a whipping boy to get them on the front pages. Take any industry that's big enough to have a public "image," place it over the Congressional barrel and get out the paddles. Investigations of the have-you-stopped-beating-your-wife type unfailingly produce restrictive legislation, more paper work and, of course, more Federal jobs.

Francis C. Brown, president of the Schering Corporation, in noting this phenomenon of public life, pointed out to his stockholders at their annual meeting in Bloomfield, N.J., the historic parade of America's whipping boys: the railroads, then the oil companies, then "Wall Street," next our national defense contractors and more recently, the drug industry. Since the sympathetic American people "are essentially considerate of the sick and the unfortunate," said Mr. Brown, the latter show was a great success from the producers' standpoint, resulting in legislation, regulation and red tape that have slowed the introduction of new drugs to the lowest level in 16 years -- and threaten a system of health care unequalled anywhere in the world.

But the Schering chief executive, who admits he is an optimist, suggested to the meeting a practical means of directing the massive Government controls "along a more constructive course." Mr. Brown urged the appointment by the President of a board of distinguished representatives of industry, Government and private practice, to be directly responsible to the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and thus "in an advantageous position to arbitrate grave divisions of opinion between industry and the Food and Drugs Administration or scientific community."

As chairman, he suggested "an outstanding physician, such as Jonas Salk, discoverer of the Salk vaccine, or a Nobel laureate distinguished in the field of biological sciences, such as Dr. Philip Hench, who did the early work on cortisone." In his discussion, Mr. Brown applauded the recent appointment of Dr. Joseph F. Sadusk as medical director of the FDA as "the first real move toward an improvement of the recent climate."

If the dedicated efforts of such a board can assure "optimum protection" for the public and minimum restriction on scientific investigation -- as Mr. Brown believes -- it will not only get the latest whipping boy out of the Congressional woodshed, but will speed the day when the industry will achieve controls for heart and circulatory ailments and cancer -- which still elude us, and are leading causes of death in these United States.

THE CONSUMER'S FRIEND

Milk has gone up five cents a half-gallon at the I. G. A. Foodliner store in the little town of Front Royal, Va., and throughout the land Agriculture Department and White House figures have been speaking out for consumers who pay high food prices.

Oddly, there is no rational connection whatever between these two facts.

The Agriculture Department, through its milk marketing order arrangements allows local commissions to fix milk prices. What they fix is a floor under the prices which must be paid by consumers.

In Front Royal, the price of milk didn't go up at the I. G. A. until the owner, Robert H. Trumbo had been hauled into court and fined $250 for refusing to raise the price. He was also enjoined against selling milk below the official figure.

Those in the government who complain about high food prices seem absolutely oblivious to the part their own actions play in those increases. The Federal government fixes prices high on sugar, coffee, wheat and a number of other commodities. It taxes producers and processors heavily, and such taxes must be covered by prices. It encourages union demands for ever higher wages and more restrictive work rules in food industries.

Is this the kind of friend the consumer needs?

And the end is not yet. A group set up by the Administration to study our farm programs has recommended that the prices of many more commodities be covered by such marketing orders as have just raised the price of milk more than ten percent to housewives in Front Royal.

When food prices go up, there's a chance the weather might have caused it, or some other random factor. But mainly you can bet that Uncle Sam's heavy hand has entered the transaction somewhere.

DEEP PROBLEM

The dream of building an underwater tunnel from England to the continent dates back a hundred years or more and work was actually begun on such a tunnel back in the 1880's. Sections over a mile long were driven under the channel from both England and France. The project was abandoned not so much because of technical difficulties as because of the apprehension felt by many Englishmen that the tunnel might one day be used for an invasion of their island from France.

The husband was puzzled, but not wanting to doubt the doctor, gave him a hammer. Five minutes later out came the doc with another request, this time for a hacksaw. By now the husband was completely upset and screamed hysterically, "Doctor, you asked for a hammer, chisel, and a hacksaw. What are you doing to my wife?"

"What wife?" asked the doctor. "I'm still trying to open my satchel?"

The books on an upper shelf were out of the reach of the housekeeper, and so I gave her an assist at dusting time last spring. In handling the books I glanced at the titles and names of the authors. These were books published three and four decades ago.

These are books that meant a lot to me, and therefore were saved when hundreds of other books were discarded because my living quarters shrank.

What impressed me about all the books on this shelf and other shelves was their lack of bulk. In the twenties and before, and in the thirties, an author could say what he needed to say in 250 pages, even less, and the book could be sold for $2, or $3 at the most. Today it seems that an author, who got his Ph.D. only yesterday, needs 500 to 800 pages to say anything, or nothing.

Why is this?

I say it's because a hard-cover book can't be produced and distributed at a price of less than $5. The public won't shell out five or seven bucks for a small book. And so almost all books, including fiction, are fat, wordy, and dull.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 — Within 24 hours of each other, two "pocketbook" stories were published in Washington.

One said that American Telephone and Telegraph Co., due to technological progress and efficiency, is to reduce its long-distance rates by $100 million a year. That was just the latest in a long series of such reductions.

The other said that Postmaster General Grounowski has been ordered to study increasing second- and third-class mail rates by an estimated $300 million a year. And so is contemplated the latest in a long series of such increases.

Meanwhile, any user can tell you that over the years long-distance telephone service has become faster and more reliable, as well as cheaper.

As to the postal service—well, Congress has heard so many complaints lately that a number of Representatives took a full hour to discuss them in the last busy days of the 88th Congress. That it hasn't been better since is attested, ironically, by the Mail Handler's Union which is seeking to set aside representation election results because of the Post Office's slow delivery of the ballots.

All this is only some late data on something that has been developing over a long period—a story which effectively points up the difference between free, profit-making enterprise and Federal operations of services for sale.

Since 1932, the cost of mailing a first-class letter has risen from two to five cents, air mail from five to eight cents. The cost of making a long-distance phone call from Boston to San Francisco, for instance, has dropped from $9.50 to $2.25. (After 9, you can make the call for a dollar.)

The telephone companies have increased their volume of calls by 288 percent since 1930, hiring 77 percent more employees to do it. The Post Office has increased its piece volume of mail 143 percent, and hired 73 percent more people to do it. The additions to the payroll are almost the same percentage—but the increase in the volume of work is about twice in the telephone system what it is in the Post Office.

Well, while the Government was raising prices more than 100 percent on mail, and the telephone companies were reducing prices by far more, how did they make out financially?

Since 1932, the Post Office has lost more than 10 billion dollars which has had to be made up out of taxes or added to the national debt.

The telephone companies have made profits for their stockholders in that period, and in addition have paid more than $22 billion into the Treasury. In other words, taxes on the telephone system have been more than double the deficits of the Post Office operations.

C. Northcote Parkinson, the British economist and humorist, set down as one of his laws: "nationalized industries tend to go bankrupt."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington -- A bitter battle is raging inside the Steelworkers' Union which may affect the entire economy of the nation. President Johnson is watching it carefully. Some advisers would like to have him intervene in order to prevent a serious round of inflation.

The battle is between his friend David McDonald, now president of the Steelworkers' Union, and I. W. Abel, the union's secretary-treasurer, who is challenging Dave for the presidency.

Both sides are doing some colorful name-calling. The opposition to McDonald is calling the handsome, silver-haired Steelworkers' president a "frustrated actor who enjoys glamor more than the grime of the rolling mills." They assert Dave spends more time in Palm Springs, Calif., or the "21" Club in New York than in Pittsburgh or South Chicago.

They also point to McDonald's $50,000 salary plus expenses last year of $30,126.37--total $80,126.37.

They also point to his brother Joe's union salary of $13,219.50 plus expenses of $14,465.26, for a total of $27,684.76.

Finally, they point out that Dave's chief lobbyist, ex-Notre Dame football star Frank "Nordy" Hoffman, gets an expense account of $48,808.22 plus his salary of $16,000. Hoffman's job is to entertain members of Congress and get legislation passed in Washington.

On the other hand, McDonald's supporters accuse Abel of drawing expenses of $20,584.21 plus a salary of $35,000, for a total of $55,584.21.

--MCDONALD'S ACHIEVEMENTS--

What McDonald's critics overlook is that he has done one of the most outstanding jobs in the trade union movement by setting up the Human Relations Council which has ironed out labor disputes without strikes.

However, this type of bargaining has taken McDonald out of the rolling mills and in the DuQuesne Club, the sacred inner sanctum of the steel executives. As a result, if Dave walked through one of the plants outside Youngstown or Chicago today, few of his men would recognize him.

This is what his opponents are making the most of. They are led by Joe Germano of South Chicago and Joe Malony of New York, both close to the picket line and both backing I. W. Abel.

Abel has the reputation of being a trouble-maker, and in his campaign literature against McDonald promises union members that he will give jurisdiction back to the locals. This means more likelihood of strikes.

This is where President Johnson is deeply concerned. It isn't merely that McDonald happens to be a friend who went down the line for him in the recent election.

It's also the fact that either a steel strike or a wage boost would almost certainly lead to an increase in the price of steel.

--DISASTROUS INFLATION?--

Johnson was on the long distance telephone last fall persuading steel executives not to increase prices. So far he has been successful. At one time they were on the verge of a price increase, and it was only Lyndon's compulsive eloquence that persuaded them to change their minds.

But the round of rough bargaining and wage increases that would almost certainly follow the election of the anti-McDonald faction would make it impossible for Johnson to further prevent price increases.

As a young congressman under Franklin Roosevelt, the President vividly remembers what happened when FDR let the steel industry increase prices in 1937. Simultaneously, the Federal Reserve Board upped the discount rate -- as the Federal Reserve Board did last month. The combination led to the disastrous 1938 depression. And it took two years and the war to bring the United States out.

Ten years later, Johnson watched a similar situation under Eisenhower when in 1957 the steel industry raised prices, though operating at only around 50 per cent capacity. In '57, automobile production had been 6.1 million cars. Next year, 1958, auto production dropped to 4.2 million cars.

If there is a steel price increase in 1965 -- as is certain if there is a wage increase -- it will mean higher priced automobiles, less automobile production, less housing construction, and possibly the start of an economic tailspin.

All this is why President Johnson is watching the bitter feud inside the Steelworkers' Union. It's also why he lectured the bankers so eloquently against increasing interest rates that the First National Bank of Boston rescinded its rate hike.

The President may be forced to throw his weight behind McDonald and make clear the reasons he supports him -- namely, that another round of inflation would mean depreciation of labor's pension values, an increase in the cost of labor's food, and increase in the cost of housing. Furthermore, it would affect the pocketbook of every citizen in the nation.

Large white satin bows marked the pews of the First Methodist Church of Benton when Miss Sheila Ann McDonald of Benton became the bride of Aubrey Lee Michael, Jr., also of Benton in a beautiful afternoon wedding.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester McDonald of Route 1, Benton and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Lee Michael, Route 1, Benton.

The Rev. Albert Gibbs performed the impressive double ring ceremony on Friday, November 25th at two o'clock in the afternoon before a tasteful setting of flowers and candelabra. Arched candelabra holding lighted cathedral tapers were entwined with greenery and large baskets of white gladioli banked either side of the candelabra. Immediately in front was the prieu dieu where the bridal couple knelt for the benediction.

Miss Lou Ann Lough, pianist, rendered appropriate pre-nuptial selections and the traditional wedding marches while ushers seated guests and lighted candles preceding the ceremony. Miss Lough accompanied the soloist, Miss Judy Alcorn, cousin of the bride, as she sang "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer".

Lester McDonald escorted his daughter down the aisle to the altar where he gave her in marriage. The bride chose for her wedding, a gown of imported re-embroidered Alencon lace and silk tulle. The molded bodice was accented with a sweetheart neckline and small cap sleeves. A full skirt over petti hoops was created of tiers with a dome front skirt adorned with tiny motifs of lace. The back of the skirt fell into a chapel length train.

Her fingertip veil of misty silk was secured to a crown of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of snowdrift pom-poms centered with a white lace Bible.

The bride was preceded down the aisle by her attendants. Miss Susie Michael, sister of the groom, served as maid of honor. Serving as bridesmaid was Miss Connie Chaney, a cousin of the bride of Poplar Bluff. They were dressed in full skirted dresses of taffeta in turquoise and frosted teal. The fitted bodice featured a rounded neckline and cap sleeves. A dropped waistline was accented with pleated fabric in the frosted teal, the darker shade, falling into panels at the back held with three cabbage roses of taffeta with long streamers ending at the hemline.

Master Denny Alcorn served as ring bearer and Tammy Sue McDonald, sister of the bride was flower girl. She wore a dress of turquoise velvet and taffeta like the attendants fashioned by her grandmother, Mrs. Ellis Alcorn. Her headdress was a headband of taffeta and net. She wore white gloves and carried a basket of white pompoms.

The groom chose Mike McDonald, brother of the bride, as his best man. Groomsmen were Norbert Ziegler of Benton. Ushers were Jerry Taylor, and Joe Stuckey of Benton. The men of the wedding party wore formal attire of dark trousers and white dinner jackets.

Mrs. Mike McDonald of Sikeston, Mrs. Bill Alcorn of Effingham, Ill., and Miss Diane Swinger of Benton assisted with the serving.

Miss Janie Michael, sister of the groom was in charge of the guest book. The table was covered in white overlaid with turquoise net and wedding bells. Also placed on the table were silver trays holding rice bags. Miss Linda Michael, sister of the groom and Van Chaney, cousin of the bride of Poplar Bluff passed out the rice bags.

Upon their return they will make their home at 424 Missouri Ave. Sikeston. The former Miss McDonald is a student at Kelly High School and Mr. Michael is engaged in farming.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Alcorn of Morley, aunt and uncle of the bride, entertained the McDonald-Michael wedding party with a rehearsal dinner. Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Lester McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Mike McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chaney, Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Ziegler, Jerry Taylor, Joe Stuckey, Van Chaney, Denny Alcorn, Connie Chaney, Miss Judy Alcorn, Miss Lou Ann Lough, Miss Diane Swinger, Miss Tammy McDonald, and Miss Pat Fodge. At this time the bridal couple presented gifts to their attendants.

The table was beautifully decorated with branched silver candelabra. A cake was decorated with the names of Sheila and Aubrey enscribed.

Francis Schumacher

His interest in acting began at Sikeston High School his freshman year in "Tom Sawyer". He participated in a number of plays including "Our Town" and Shakespearian production while attending Christian Brothers College in Memphis. While in Alaska, he was active in the Anchorage Community College Little Theatre, which was a semi-pro group. This group usually hired the Broadway productions. However, Francis played the leading role in "Tea House of the August Moon".

His interest in drama continued at Cape State where he took courses in modern drama, principles of direction, and theatre techniques. He also appeared in several plays there, including "Henry IV".

Season's tickets for Sikeston Little Theatre are still available and may be obtained from Mrs. Barbara Smith, GR 1-1077, or by sending your check to "Sikeston Little Theatre, Box 126, Sikeston". The cost of tickets for the season is 1 for $3.50, 2 for $6.00, 3 for $9.00.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Does the octopus have a shell?

A—None whatever, although all its closer relatives have at least a trace of one.

Q—When did the term "United States" become official?

A—On Sept. 9, 1776, the Continental Congress approved a resolution that all continental commissions and other instruments use the words "United States" instead of "United Colonies."

Q—What American tree has the longest thorns?

A—Honey locust.

A—No.

Youth is a time of ferment, not cement. On the college campus we should disturb at every turn the cementing process, and encourage in every way the right kind of fermenting activity.

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Lee Michael, Jr.

Large white satin bows marked the pews of the First Methodist Church of Benton when Miss Sheila Ann McDonald of Benton became the bride of Aubrey Lee Michael, Jr., also of Benton in a beautiful afternoon wedding.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester McDonald of Route 1, Benton and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Lee Michael, Route 1, Benton.

The Rev. Albert Gibbs performed the impressive double ring ceremony on Friday, November 25th at two o'clock in the afternoon before a tasteful setting of flowers and candelabra. Arched candelabra holding lighted cathedral tapers were entwined with greenery and large baskets of white gladioli banked either side of the candelabra. Immediately in front was the prieu dieu where the bridal couple knelt for the benediction.

Miss Lou Ann Lough, pianist, rendered appropriate pre-nuptial selections and the traditional wedding marches while ushers seated guests and lighted candles preceding the ceremony. Miss Lough accompanied the soloist, Miss Judy Alcorn, cousin of the bride, as she sang "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer".

Lester McDonald escorted his daughter down the aisle to the altar where he gave her in marriage. The bride chose for her wedding, a gown of imported re-embroidered Alencon lace and silk tulle. The molded bodice was accented with a sweetheart neckline and small cap sleeves. A full skirt over petti hoops was created of tiers with a dome front skirt adorned with tiny motifs of lace. The back of the skirt fell into a chapel length train.

Her fingertip veil of misty silk was secured to a crown of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of snowdrift pom-poms centered with a white lace Bible.

The bride was preceded down the aisle by her attendants. Miss Susie Michael, sister of the groom, served as maid of honor. Serving as bridesmaid was Miss Connie Chaney, a cousin of the bride of Poplar Bluff. They were dressed in full skirted dresses of taffeta in turquoise and frosted teal. The fitted bodice featured a rounded neckline and cap sleeves. A dropped waistline was accented with pleated fabric in the frosted teal, the darker shade, falling into panels at the back held with three cabbage roses of taffeta with long streamers ending at the hemline.

Master Denny Alcorn served as ring bearer and Tammy Sue McDonald, sister of the bride was flower girl. She wore a dress of turquoise velvet and taffeta like the attendants fashioned by her grandmother, Mrs. Ellis Alcorn. Her headdress was a headband of taffeta and net. She wore white gloves and carried a basket of white pompoms.

The groom chose Mike McDonald, brother of the bride, as his best man. Groomsmen were Norbert Ziegler of Benton. Ushers were Jerry Taylor, and Joe Stuckey of Benton. The men of the wedding party wore formal attire of dark trousers and white dinner jackets.

Mrs. Mike McDonald of Sikeston, Mrs. Bill Alcorn of Effingham, Ill., and Miss Diane Swinger of Benton assisted with the serving.

Miss Janie Michael, sister of the groom was in charge of the guest book. The table was covered in white overlaid with turquoise net and wedding bells. Also placed on the table were silver trays holding rice bags. Miss Linda Michael, sister of the groom and Van Chaney, cousin of the bride of Poplar Bluff passed out the rice bags.

Upon their return they will make their home at 424 Missouri Ave. Sikeston. The former Miss McDonald is a student at Kelly High School and Mr. Michael is engaged in farming.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Alcorn of Morley, aunt and uncle of the bride, entertained the McDonald-Michael wedding party with a rehearsal dinner. Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Lester McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Mike McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chaney, Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Ziegler, Jerry Taylor, Joe Stuckey, Van Chaney, Denny Alcorn, Connie Chaney, Miss Judy Alcorn, Miss Lou Ann Lough, Miss Diane Swinger, Miss Tammy McDonald, and Miss Pat Fodge. At this time the bridal couple presented gifts to their attendants.

The table was beautifully decorated with branched silver candelabra. A cake was decorated with the names of Sheila and Aubrey enscribed.

Francis Schumacher

His interest in acting began at Sikeston High School his freshman year in "Tom Sawyer". He participated in a number of plays including "Our Town" and Shakespearian production while attending Christian Brothers College in Memphis. While in Alaska, he was active in the Anchorage Community College Little Theatre, which was a semi-pro group. This group usually hired the Broadway productions. However, Francis played the leading role in "Tea House of the August Moon".

His interest in drama continued at Cape State where he took courses in modern drama, principles of direction, and theatre techniques. He also appeared in several plays there, including "Henry IV".

Season's tickets for Sikeston Little Theatre are still available and may be obtained from Mrs. Barbara Smith, GR 1-1077, or by sending your check to "Sikeston Little Theatre, Box 126, Sikeston". The cost of tickets for the season is 1 for $3.50, 2 for $6.00, 3 for $9.00.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Does the octopus have a shell?

A—None whatever, although all its closer relatives have at least a trace of one.

Q—When did the term "United States" become official?

A—On Sept. 9, 1776, the Continental Congress approved a resolution that all continental commissions and other instruments use the words "United States" instead of "United Colonies."

Q—What American tree has the longest thorns?

A—Honey locust.

Q—Is Saint Peter's death recorded in the Bible?

A—No.

Youth is a time of ferment, not cement. On the college campus we should disturb at every turn the cementing process, and encourage in every way the right kind of fermenting activity.

Richland And Puxico Win

RICHLAND TOURNEY--Richland and Puxico opened the tournament action last night, Richland winning easily, 92-53.

Richland, though beaten earlier by Fisk, was out in front to stay in the opening minute of the game. Before the first quarter of play had ended, they were leading 28-13. The Rebels were to win, and in a big way, again outscoring the Pirates in the second period 21-13, making the score at the half 49-26.

In the third frame, the Rebels went to their reserves, being outscored 18-16 by Fisk. The final quarter Richland went back to their starters to finish the game, scoring 27, limiting Fisk to 9.

The second game was fought and fought hard, between Puxico and Notre Dame. Puxico won it in an overtime, 58-50.

Down by 8 points going into the second half, Notre Dame got hot, led by Flaker, who drilled 14 for the night, and caught up in the closing minute of play to tie the score at 47. From there, it was Indian time, Puxico getting 11 while Notre Dame managed 3 in the overtime period.

Chance Gave Up 51 Over The Season

Chance yielded only 51 earned runs in 278 innings for a 1.65 mark, the best since Spud Chandler of the New York Yankees finished with 1.64 in 1943. Chance was named winner of the Cy Young as the majors' outstanding pitcher in 1964 last month.

The Angels' star also pitched the most innings, 278, the most complete games, 15, and the most shutouts, 11. Five of his 20 victories were by 1-0 scores, tying a major league record.

Joel Horlen of the Chicago White Sox was second in the ERA competition with 1.88. He was followed by Whitey Ford of the Yankees, a two-time earned run king, 2.13; Gary Peters of the White Sox 2.50, Juan Pizarro, another Chicago left-hander, 2.56, and rookie Wally Bunker of Baltimore, 2.69.

Bunker had the highest winning percentage, .792, on a record of 19 victories and only five defeats.

Major College Top Ten

By BOB GREEN

Michigan's powerful, veteran Wolverines, who have romped through three games without major diffculty, dominated The Associated Press' first regular season basketball poll today and confirmed their pre-season selection as the nation's best collegiate crew.

The Wolverines, who lost only one regular from the team that finished third in the nation last year, gained 32 of the 34 first-place votes cast and had a whopping 100-point margin over second-place Wichita.

Michigan, which already has survived two major tests, gained 337 points in the balloting on the basis of 10 points for first, 9 for second, 8 for third etc. Wichita, winner of its only start this season, moved up from third in the pre-season poll to second with 236 points.

A flock of upsets and surprises in the first week prompted a major shuffling of the first weekly ratings from the pre-season poll, with only top-ranking Michigan and 10th ranked St. John's of New York holding on to the same spots.

Three of the pre-season elite, fourth-ranked Davidson, No. 7 Syracuse and No. 8 Kansas State, split their two first-week starts and dropped from the top ten. UCLA, the defending national champion and No. 2 in the pre-season picks, also split, plummeted to No. 7 after an opening loss to Illinois, 110-83.

The top ten, with first-place votes in parentheses, and points:

1. Michigan (32)	337
2. Wichita	236
3. Vanderbilt	189
4. St. Louis	170
5. San Francisco	140
6. Minnesota (1)	133
7. UCLA	86
8. Duke	83
9. Kentucky	62
10. St. John's, N.Y.	59

Kansas State used a zone defense for an impressive 61-4 victory over Southern Illinois and top - ranked Michigan knocked Missouri from the unbeaten ranks as Big Eight basketball teams gained an even break in four non - conference games Monday night.

Michigan had little trouble clipping Missouri 91-61 at Ann Arbor. Potent Indiana beat Oklahoma 87-69 at Bloomington and Nebraska beat South Dakota 74-63 at Lincoln in other games.

It's a six-way tie at 2-1 in the non - league standings among Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma State, K-State and Nebraska, with Oklahoma and Iowa State both 0-2.

The conference teams will be idle tonight, but Wednesday Missouri is at Air Force, Iowa State at Kentucky and Arkansas at Oklahoma State.

At Manhattan, K-State moved in front for good, 49-48, on a 15-foot goal by 6-foot-8 Gary Williams with 5:50 left, then reeled off 12 more points in a row to clinch the game. Meanwhile SIU was choked by the Wildcat zone defense. Williams led K-State with 17.

Michigan simply had too much height, strength and shooting skill for Missouri. George Flamank led the Tigers with 14.

Indiana threw a full court zone defense and fast break at Oklahoma and jumped to a 10-0 lead in the first 86 seconds. The top OU scorer was Jim Gatewood with 16.

Nebraska had unexpected trouble with South Dakota in the second half but sophomore Fred Hare came to the rescue with 15 points and some excellent floor play.

Cards Chances Rest On Saturday

ST. LOUIS, Mo. -- The banner that hung from the upper deck in Busch Stadium last week said "Dec. 27 Here" and the Football Cardinals hope they have a chance to make it come true when they wind up the 1964 season against the Philadelphia Eagles here Sunday.

Kickoff is scheduled for 1:05 p.m., with radio originating over KMOX Radio and television over KMOX-TV.

A victory for the Browns would clinch the Eastern Division crown for Cleveland and make the Browns the host for the Dec. 27 title game against the Baltimore Colts. The Big Red, in second place, would represent the East in the playoff Bowl at Miami on Jan. 3, 1965 against either the Green Bay Packers or the Minnesota Vikings, both of whom are still in the running for second place in the West.

A tie between the Browns and Giants, plus a Cardinal victory against the Eagles, would make the Eastern Division race wind up a tie as the teams would post 9-3-2 records. That would necessitate a one-game playoff between the Browns and Cardinals on Dec. 20 at a site still to be determined.

A loss for the Browns against the Giants would put the Big Red in a spot to pick up all the marbles. If the Browns lose, either a victory or a tie for the Cardinals would produce the division crown.

A Cleveland loss would leave the Browns with a 9-4-1 record. A Cardinal victory would make the Big Red 9-3-2, and a Cardinal tie would leave St. Louis at 8-3-3. On a percentage basis, that would give the Cardinals the crown, .727 to .692.

When the Cardinals and Eagles met earlier this season, at Philadelphia, the Big Red notched a 38-13 victory as Charley Johnson connected on two touchdown passes to Bobby Joe Conrad, and Bill Thornton had his best day as a pro with 128 yards in 12 carries, including a 31-yard touchdown run.

The Cardinals own a five-game winning streak over the Eagles, but the Philadelphians came up with a big victory over Dallas last Sunday as rookie Jack Concannon had a sterling day in his first appearance as a quarterback. Concannon completed 10 of 20 passes, including two touchdown tosses, and also ran for 99 yards in eight carries.

Looking to Sunday's game, Jim Bakken will set a team record with his first conversion. The blond from Wisconsin has converted 81 consecutive times, matching the team career mark set by Pat Harder in 1948 and 1949.

John David Crow, who lugged the ball 21 times for 72 yards against the Browns, now is the hardest-working ball carrier in Cardinal history. The big guy has carried the ball on 767 rushing plays in his seven seasons, and he passed Ollie Matson's old standard of 761 against the Browns last week.

The halftime program Sunday will be presented by the Kemper Military School marching band, and a special rugby match will serve as post-game entertainment.

Richland And Puxico Win

RICHLAND TOURNEY--Richland and Puxico opened the tournament action last night, Richland winning easily, 92-53.

Richland, though beaten earlier by Fisk, was out in front to stay in the opening minute of the game. Before the first quarter of play had ended, they were leading 28-13. The Rebels were to win, and in a big way, again outscoring the Pirates in the second period 21-13, making the score at the half 49-26.

In the third frame, the Rebels went to their reserves, being outscored 18-16 by Fisk. The final quarter Richland went back to their starters to finish the game, scoring 27, limiting Fisk to 9.

The second game was fought and fought hard, between Puxico and Notre Dame. Puxico won it in an overtime, 58-50.

Down by 8 points going into the second half, Notre Dame got hot, led by Flaker, who drilled 14 for the night, and caught up in the closing minute of play to tie the score at 47. From there, it was Indian time, Puxico getting 11 while Notre Dame managed 3 in the overtime period.

Bragg City Opens

BRAGG CITY -- Action was plentiful down here as three games were played.

Led by hotshot Carroll, who sank 23, Senath-Hornersville downed Southland 64-56 in a come from behind effort in the opening game.

In the second game, Hayti found themselves overly matched, going down to defeat at the hands of Braggadocia, 74-53. Russell and Watkins led the Eagle attack with 42 big points scored between them.

The third and final game was fought out between South-Pemiscot and Greenway, with South Pemiscot winning from the much taller Arkansas team, 74-52, with a strong second half effort. Crawford and Fullerton led the South Pemiscot scoring with 19 each.

Chance Gave Up 51 Over The Season

Chance yielded only 51 earned runs in 278 innings for a 1.65 mark, the best since Spud Chandler of the New York Yankees finished with 1.64 in 1943. Chance was named winner of the Cy Young as the majors' outstanding pitcher in 1964 last month.

The Angels' star also pitched the most innings, 278, the most complete games, 15, and the most shutouts, 11. Five of his 20 victories were by 1-0 scores, tying a major league record.

Joel Horlen of the Chicago White Sox was second in the ERA competition with 1.88. He was followed by Whitey Ford of the Yankees, a two-time earned run king, 2.13; Gary Peters of the White Sox 2.50, Juan Pizarro, another Chicago left-hander, 2.56, and rookie Wally Bunker of Baltimore, 2.69.

Bunker had the highest winning percentage, .792, on a record of 19 victories and only five defeats.

Al Downing, the Yanks' southpaw fireballer, was the strikeout leader with 217. He also issued the most bases on balls, 120.

Baltimore reliever Stu Miller gave up the most intentional bases, on balls, 14, while Bill Monbouquette of Boston allowed the most hits, 258. Orlando Pena, veteran Kansas City right-hander, permitted the most runs, 126, and home runs, 40.

Major College Top Ten

By BOB GREEN

Michigan's powerful, veteran Wolverines, who have romped through three games without major diffculty, dominated The Associated Press' first regular season basketball poll today and confirmed their pre-season selection as the nation's best collegiate crew.

The Wolverines, who lost only one regular from the team that finished third in the nation last year, gained 32 of the 34 first-place votes cast and had a whopping 100-point margin over second-place Wichita.

Michigan, which already has survived two major tests, gained 337 points in the balloting on the basis of 10 points for first, 9 for second, 8 for third etc. Wichita, winner of its only start this season, moved up from third in the pre-season poll to second with 236 points.

A flock of upsets and surprises in the first week prompted a major shuffling of the first weekly ratings from the pre-season poll, with only top-ranking Michigan and 10th ranked St. John's of New York holding on to the same spots.

Three of the pre-season elite, fourth-ranked Davidson, No. 7 Syracuse and No. 8 Kansas State, split their two first-week starts and dropped from the top ten. UCLA, the defending national champion and No. 2 in the pre-season picks, also split, plummeted to No. 7 after an opening loss to Illinois, 110-83.

The top ten, with first-place votes in parentheses, and points:

1. Michigan (32)	337
2. Wichita	236
3. Vanderbilt	189
4. St. Louis	170
5. San Francisco	140
6. Minnesota (1)	133
7. UCLA	86
8. Duke	83
9. Kentucky	62

Kansas State used a zone defense for an impressive 61-4 victory over Southern Illinois and top-ranked Michigan knocked Missouri from the unbeaten ranks as Big Eight basketball teams gained an even break in four non-conference games Monday night.

Michigan had little trouble clipping Missouri 91-61 at Ann Arbor. Potent Indiana beat Oklahoma 87-69 at Bloomington and Nebraska beat South Dakota 74-63 at Lincoln in other games.

It's a six-way tie at 2-1 in the non-league standings among Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma State, K-State and Nebraska, with Oklahoma and Iowa State both 0-2.

The conference teams will be idle tonight, but Wednesday Missouri is at Air Force, Iowa State at Kentucky and Arkansas at Oklahoma State.

At Manhattan, K-State moved in front for good, 49-48, on a 15-foot goal by 6-foot-8 Gary Williams with 5:50 left, then reeled off 12 more points in a row to clinch the game. Meanwhile SIU was choked by the Wildcat zone defense. Williams led K-State with 17.

Michigan simply had too much height, strength and shooting skill for Missouri. George Flamank led the Tigers with 14.

Indiana threw a full court zone defense and fast break at Oklahoma and jumped to a 10-0 lead in the first 86 seconds. The top OU scorer was Jim Gatewood with 16.

Nebraska had unexpected trouble with South Dakota in the second half but sophomore Fred Hare came to the rescue with 15 points and some excellent floor play.

Cards Chances Rest On Saturday

ST. LOUIS, Mo. -- The banner that hung from the upper deck in Busch Stadium last week said "Dec. 27 Here" and the Football Cardinals hope they have a chance to make it come true when they wind up the 1964 season against the Philadelphia Eagles here Sunday.

Kickoff is scheduled for 1:05 p.m., with radio originating over KMOX Radio and television over KMOX-TV.

A victory for the Browns would clinch the Eastern Division crown for Cleveland and make the Browns the host for the Dec. 27 title game against the Baltimore Colts. The Big Red, in second place, would represent the East in the playoff Bowl at Miami on Jan. 3, 1965 against either the Green Bay Packers or the Minnesota Vikings, both of whom are still in the running for second place in the West.

A tie between the Browns and Giants, plus a Cardinal victory against the Eagles, would make the Eastern Division race wind up a tie as the teams would post 9-3-2 records. That would necessitate a one-game playoff between the Browns and Cardinals on Dec. 20 at a site still to be determined.

A loss for the Browns against the Giants would put the Big Red in a spot to pick up all the marbles. If the Browns lose, either a victory or a tie for the Cardinals would produce the division crown.

A Cleveland loss would leave the Browns with a 9-4-1 record. A Cardinal victory would make the Big Red 9-3-2, and a Cardinal tie would leave St. Louis at 8-3-3. On a percentage basis, that would give the Cardinals the crown, .727 to .692.

When the Cardinals and Eagles met earlier this season, at Philadelphia, the Big Red notched a 38-13 victory as Charley Johnson connected on two touchdown passes to Bobby Joe Conrad, and Bill Thornton had his best day as a pro with 128 yards in 12 carries, including a 31-yard touchdown run.

The Cardinals own a five-game winning streak over the Eagles, but the Philadelphians came up with a big victory over Dallas last Sunday as rookie Jack Concannon had a sterling day in his first appearance as a quarterback. Concannon completed 10 of 20 passes, including two touchdown tosses, and also ran for 99 yards in eight carries.

Looking to Sunday's game, Jim Bakken will set a team record with his first conversion. The bloand from Wisconsin has converted 81 consecutive times, matching the team career mark set by Pat Harder in 1948 and 1949.

John David Crow, who lugged the ball 21 times for 72 yards against the Browns, now is the hardest-working ball carrier in Cardinal history. The big guy has carried the ball on 767 rushing plays in his seven seasons, and he passed Ollie Matson's old standard of 761 against the Browns last week.

The halftime program Sunday will be presented by the Kemper Military School marching band, and a special rugby match will serve as post-game entertainment.

Libya Is A Country That is Overwhelmed by Money

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) —With the coming of darkness, the muezzin's Koran chant floats nightly from the hilltop Gurgi mosque calling the Islamic faithful to the day's final prayer.

It has been thus in Tripoli for centuries — even before it was famed as the Barbary Coast, a lair for pirates.

Nowadays, a new and discordant refrain is added.

"Craps, snake eyes, Little Joe" rises from the Italian-run casino almost in the shadow of the minaret. Boisterous American oilmen crowd the city's busy roulette wheels; slot machines jangle merrily.

Until the oil boom the casino had been sliding gloomily downhill for years. Its current gaudy affluence emphasizes what is happening in Libya —a placid Mediterranean country being overwhelmed with money.

Horse-drawn gharries that once provided leisurely transportation are giving way to meter taxis, with New York rates. Women clutch their veils tightly in public, peering at the world through one exposed eye. But beneath their shroudlike "barracans" some are now sporting sheer stockings and Dior gowns.

A few years ago Zelten and Dahra were oases known only to desert Bedouins. Now the names designate oilfields famed wherever oilmen gather. They have put this once little-known nation among the world's top 10 oil countries.

As recently as 1960 the bureaucrats of ascetic King Idriss got along on $50 million yearly — half of it from American and British handouts and rental for military bases.

Since then, the oil companies, mostly American, have spent more than a billion dollars here. This year Libya will get $150 million in oil income. Next year it will be $230 million. The Esso company is preparing to invest many more millions for plants to liquefy natural gas and ship it to Europe in refrigerated tankers -- insuring even more millions for Libya.

All this in a nation with less than 1.5 million mostly illiterate people. These are scattered over 1,500 miles of coastline and deserts almost the size of Western Europe.

It is proving too much. The economy is spiraling wildly. United Nations figures make Tripoli the 13th most expensive city in the world to live in — and getting worse.

Last month the government added to the spiral by doubling civil service salaries. A top bureaucrat will now get about $9,000 yearly, an unthinkable salary only a few years ago. The government newspaper which announced the happy tidings was hardly on the streets before merchants began marking up prices.

Responsible oil company officials shudder to think they are sitting on political quicksand. They can handle only about 10 per cent of Libya's labor force. The government bureaucracy and private business take in a few more. The rest, now flocking into the cities and, in many cases abandoning farms, are being squeezed by the inflation.

National sensitivity is also mounting over the big U.S. air base at Tripoli and a British base agreement. Money from base rentals is no longer needed and increasingly vocal Arab nationalists want them out.

Preferring the isolation of his palace at Tobruk, he rules by long distance and with Oriental suspicion, frequently juggling his ministers.

Such situations are increasingly irksome to the slowly growing number of young officials and students. Until recently politics in Libya largely revolved around separatist movements in the provinces of Tripolitania and Cyrenaica. Now they swirl around the monarchy, particularly the crown prince, the king's nephew.

The king's popularity dropped sharply this year at parliamentary elections. His police arrested possible opposition candidates on the eve of the day they were to register.

The U.S. Embassy is watching all this nervously. With more than a billion-dollar investment to protect, it has reasons. The Libyans, however, are more and more disdainful of advice, even from such agencies as the United Nations.

Washington, D. C.-- A Merry Christmas followed by a Happy New Year is in prospect for almost all businessmen, according to all the available evidence.

Christmas selling by retailers is booming along, and merchants up and down the Main Streets of America are forecasting a record season, with dollar volume up 6 to 10 per cent over last year.

Personal income hit a new peak last fall and is expected to continue to rise, although perhaps at not so rapid a pace as in the recent past. Part two of the income tax cut takes effect in 1965 and is sure to provide a further stimulus.

National Retail Merchants Association makes an annual survey of its members from coast to coast on prospective Christmas sales volume. The finding this year was the most optimistic in three years, with 94 per cent of those responding forecasting higher volume this season than last.

Merchants are "imbued with Christmas cheer", according to the association, and their composite forecast is for a 6 per cent rise over 1963 volume. Some soothsayers regard this figure as conservative and predict a 10 per cent increase.

PROSPERITY 46 MONTHS OLD

As Democratic politicians keep reminding us, the economic upswing has lasted for an unprecedented period. The trend has been up for 46 consecutive months now. Some economists have had to throw away their rules because on the record there should have been a downturn by now.

President Johnson, a beneficiary of good times, is a leading cheerleader for an onward-and-upward economy. He said recently: "The coming holiday season will find our economy setting new records for production, employment, income and sales."

Automobile strikes in October and November did take their toll but the President conceded only that the stoppages "dampened our economic performance" and pointed to "encouraging evidence that the underlying economic forces remain strong."

Department of Commerce forecasters predict that business barometers which slumped this fall due to the auto strikes will bounce back to new highs in December. Preliminary figures suggest that automobile sales are recovering nicely since General Motors and Ford got back into full production.

INDUSTRY BETS ON '65 RISE

Optimistic talk is one thing but optimistic action is more convincing. One of the best barometers for determining the future climate is the capital spending plans of industry. There is good news on that front for 1965.

The annual McGraw-Hill Publishing Company survey of plans for new plants and equipment points to a 5 per cent rise next year, which would mean a new record of $46.9 million invested in productive equipment. This comes on top of three boom years for industrial investment -- up 9 per cent in 1962, 5 per cent in 1963, and 14 per cent this year.

According to the McGraw-Hill survey, business plans to raise the prices of the goods and services it sells by only 1 per cent next year, although expecting to pay 3 per cent more than this year for new plants and equipment added in 1965.

Nation's Business, the magazine for the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, surveyed 314 business leaders and reported "most top businessmen believe our current prosperity will continue into the new year and beyond." In fact, 80 per cent expect the rising trend to continue beyond 1965.

Reasons for optimism vary, the magazine found. Some businessmen cite the tax cut while others point to heavy investments by business and the generally healthy financial position of consumers.

STEEL STRIKE A THREAT

Some forecasters are hedging their '65 bets by pointing to one big "if". This is the possibility of a prolonged steel strike next year. Steel is a basic raw material and if supplies are cut off, the whole economy slows down.

A leadership fight within the United Steelworkers of America complicates the outlook. The result may be prohibitive demands from the union. Wage negotiations start in January and a strike could begin as early as May.

The Administration will do everything it can to prevent a crippling steel strike. But there is no certainty these efforts will succeed.

Univ. of Missouri Modifies Campus for Handicapped

Lightest Mexico

by John Abney

Mexico City -- We have here before us a letter from a fellow in Minnesota who says the snow is so thick around him he can scarcely get out of the house without a shovel and he wants to know how is the weather in Cozumel. Also, he wants to know about hotels there and the chances of getting quarters as well as what's the fishing like.

The weather in Cozumel is nice and tropical so don't bother with your snow shovel. Just bring a fishing pole and some magazines. This time of year you should write ahead and check for reservations. In the town (it's San Miguel; the island is Cozumel) you have the Hotel Isleno and Hotel Plaza. If you like coconut groves on a beach away from civilization, try the Hotel Playa Azul. Fishing is good the year around and skin diving is superb. The water is so clear you can spot a pin on the bottom thirty feet down and you can charter boats for deep water fishing. Sailfish and marlin, or small ones. A press agent's dream.

SHOULD WE WRITE AHEAD FOR RESERVATIONS IN OAXACA FOR SPRING? WHICH HOTELS WOULD YOU RECOMMEND?

It wouldn't hurt to have reservations although in the Spring you probably won't find things overflowing. Holy Week (just before Easter) will be jammed. I prefer the Hotel Monte Alban, just half a block off the main plaza in the center of town. It's a modernized old bishopry with atmosphere, up-to-date plumbing, food and rates are very respectable.

WOULD LIKE TO DO SOME TROPICAL HUNTING AROUND PACIFIC COAST; IS THERE A PLACE WHERE WE CAN FIND GUIDES AND GOOD ACCOMODATIONS?

You might try Zihuatanejo, a short distance up the coast from Acapulco. It still is relatively undiscovered although a local airline makes regular runs and they have good bus service. The Hotel Safari has guides and all sorts of equipment plus a bar where you can swap lies about the one you almost shot. Deer and jaguar hunting is supposed to be good in the mountains a little way inland. If you need more details, you can write the Hotel Safari, Zihuatanejo, Guerrero, Mexico.

PLAN ON DRIVING TO SEVERAL POINTS ON GULF COAST NEAR VERACRUZ AND WOULD LIKE TO VISIT TUXPAN. DOES IT HAVE A HOTEL?

Check the Yacht Club in Tuxpan. They have pretty good accomodations and food but if it doesn't appeal to you, Veracruz is close enough to drive back.

MY HOBBY IS GEM CUTTING AND I WOULD LIKE TO KNOW WHERE YOU BUY ROUGH STONES OR CRYSTALS IN MEXICO; ALSO IF THERE ARE ANY RESTRICTIONS ON TAKING THEM OUT OF THE COUNTRY?

Queretaro is a mining center for all sorts of semi-precious stones so you can buy rough items from dealers there. No restrictions on taking them out but getting them into the U.S. is a matter to settle with American Customs. Be sure to get a receipt for anything you buy to show with your declaration.

Gas line freeze can happen to anybody, but when you're young and in a hurry, it's a disaster. Here's what gas line freeze is. Moisture collects in a gas line. It freezes. The flow of fuel to the engine of the car is choked off, frozen tight. You're stopped cold. Luckily, there's a simple solution to this wintertime worry. Be a steady user of either American Regular Gasoline or American Super-Premium. They contain the real thing—DE-ICER—to prevent gas line freeze. No extra cost. No wonder Standard Oil Dealers say: "My advice, sir-get DE-ICER!"

WOULD LIKE TO DO SOME TROPICAL HUNTING AROUND PACIFIC COAST; IS THERE A PLACE WHERE WE CAN FIND GUIDES AND GOOD ACCOMODATIONS?

You might try Zihuatanejo, a short distance up the coast from Acapulco. It still is relatively undiscovered although a local airline makes regular runs and they have good bus service. The Hotel Safari has guides and all sorts of equipment plus a bar where you can swap lies about the one you almost shot. Deer and jaguar hunting is supposed to be good in the mountains a little way inland. If you need more details, you can write the Hotel Safari, Zihuatanejo, Guerrero, Mexico.

PLAN ON DRIVING TO SEVERAL POINTS ON GULF COAST NEAR VERACRUZ AND WOULD LIKE TO VISIT TUXPAN. DOES IT HAVE A HOTEL?

Check the Yacht Club in Tuxpan. They have pretty good accomodations and food but if it doesn't appeal to you, Veracruz is close enough to drive back.

MY HOBBY IS GEM CUTTING AND I WOULD LIKE TO KNOW WHERE YOU BUY ROUGH STONES OR CRYSTALS IN MEXICO; ALSO IF THERE ARE ANY RESTRICTIONS ON TAKING THEM OUT OF THE COUNTRY?

Queretaro is a mining center for all sorts of semi-precious stones so you can buy rough items from dealers there. No restrictions on taking them out but getting them into the U.S. is a matter to settle with American Customs. Be sure to get a receipt for anything you buy to show with your declaration.

Gas line freeze can happen to anybody, but when you're young and in a hurry, it's a disaster. Here's what gas line freeze is. Moisture collects in a gas line. It freezes. The flow of fuel to the engine of the car is choked off, frozen tight. You're stopped cold. Luckily, there's a simple solution to this wintertime worry. Be a steady user of either American Regular Gasoline or American Super-Premium. They contain the real thing—DE-ICER—to prevent gas line freeze. No extra cost. No wonder Standard Oil Dealers say: "My advice, sir-get DE-ICER!"
You expect more from Standard and you get it

She Means What She Says

"Don't write much about me," said Edna Pinnell, District 10 secretary and Highway News reporter. "I don't do much."

She smiled so disarmingly that you'd almost believe her. Almost. But it turned out that the disarming smile hid two things --a completely false picture of her duties and a way of meaning what she said about not writing much.

Her "not doing much" consists of handling stenographic chores for Dale Carney, District 10 engineer; and Mark Weston and Deane Sprout, both district engineer's assistants. On top of that, she answers the ever-ringing telephone, greets the many visitors to the district office and "whatever else there is to do."

She's been doing "not much" since 1950 when she started with the Department as a stenographer for the District 10 office manager. In 1954 she was promoted to secretary to Merrit Gwinn, then district engineer. Before that she worked for the Federal Lank Bank of Sikeston and the Bank of America in Compton, Calif.

And one who means what she says.

Goodwill Truck To Make Stop In Town Dec. 29th

The silver and yellow truck from Goodwill Industries will be in Sikeston area December 29.

Residents of this area will have an opportunity to contribute used clothing, shoes, and other small household items. These will be used by Goodwill Industries to provide opportunities for training, rehabilitation and sheltered employment for handicapped men and women.

Contributors will receive yellow reminder cards in the mail. These should be returned to Goodwill Industries so that the driver will know where to stop.

For those who have not contributed to this program a post card addressed to Goodwill Industries, 4140 Forest Park Blvd., St. Louis, Mo. 63108, will serve as a notice for the truck to stop.

All materials should be marked "For Goodwill" and on the front porch by 8 A.M. on the date scheduled. It is suggested that contributions be placed so they can be easily seen from the street by the driver.

Goodwill Industries can continue its program only as long as interested persons contribute the necessary materials. Handicapped men and women who are being trained and rehabilitated thru the Goodwill Program sincerely appreciate all contributions.

Homemakers Class Have Xmas Party; Install Officers

The Homemakers Class met December 1st at the home of Mrs. Estalee Mulcahy with 8 present and one guest. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Thelma Black. A Christmas basket, tree and clothes were decided upon to give to a family for Christmas.

An installation service was solomized by Mrs. Thelma Day. The topic "The Convoy" was used by Mrs. Day as she called each officer and presented them with a ship that had been floating in a dish of blue water. Using Bible verses from Proverbs and Psalms she told how important each officer should be. Installed were: Mrs. Thelma Black, president, vice president, Mrs. Mary Rister; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Evelyn Kinsey; penmanship and stewardship, Mrs. Evelyn Kinsey; publicity chairman, Mrs. Estalee Mulcahy, group captains, Pat Clark and Guynell Beal; extension chairman, Mrs. Dixie Wheeler; and teacher Mrs. Thelma Beaird.

Mrs. Day closed the installation by calling Mrs. Mary Louise Alsup to close with prayer. Christmas gifts were then exchanged and then presented Mrs. Day with a beautiful broach and Mrs. Beaird with a lovely blouse. The refreshments were served from a decorated table using the theme of the holiday season.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: A few days ago I witnessed an incredible scene. A hulk of a middle-aged man, about 60 pounds overweight, was sprawled across the form of his critically ill mother as she lay semiconscious in a hospital bed. The man was sobbing uncontrollably, begging his mother to try to remember what she had done with her will -- the one leaving everything to him.

The other members of the family were outraged by his indecent display of avarice. Suddenly he pulled himself together and bellowed, "I hope you have good hospitalization insurance, Mother. These lingering illnesses can cost a fortune."

His brothers and sisters want nothing more to do with him and he has asked me to patch things up. He said his mother loved peace and harmony and that she would be unhappy about the trouble in the family.

I believe they are justified in drumming him out of the tribe. What shall I do? -- THERE

Dear There: Stay out of this meat grinder. Whatever truce you might negotiate would be short-lived at best. This is their problem and it should be settled by them.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a married woman with two teenage children. Five years ago I became involved with a bachelor and became pregnant. My doctor told me I had a tumor -- until I was seven months along. You can imagine my shock when he told me I would have a baby within eight weeks.

The little boy is almost three years old, and unfortunately, is a carbon copy of my bachelor friend. No one has said anything but a person would have to be blind not to see the resemblance.

Should I tell the boy who his real father is as soon as he is old enough to go to school? I'm afraid if I don't tell him someone else will and I'd hate to have the child hurt that way. I need your advice -- VIRGO

Dear Virgo: Many look-alikes are not related. Because of your guilty conscience you probably are exaggerating the resemblance in your mind's eye.

Don't tell the child -- or anyone else -- that your husband is not the boy's father. And for heaven's sake, get another doctor !!!

Dear Ann Landers: My wife is one of the sweetest girls in the world. Delores has given me a fine family and we have just about everything we could ask for.

The problem is that whenever we go to a party Delores passes out cold as a mackerel after two cocktails. The poor girl gets into arguments and says insulting things to her best friends. When she begins to remember what she said and did she goes into a depression.

I know Delores is not an alcoholic because she never drinks at home -- only when we go out. Moreover, if she were an alcoholic she'd be able to hold more than two drinks, wouldn't she?

This has been going on for two years. Every time it happens Delores takes an oath on her mother's life that she will never touch another drop of alcohol but when she gets out of my sight at a party she's as good as passed out. What can I do to help her? D.F.L.

Dear D.F.L.: Your wife's form of alcoholism is unusual. And she needs help. It's useless, however, to try to force help on people who do not believe they need it. When (and if) she expresses the need for help, suggest A. A.

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married live, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 ¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A Good Smoke

igarettes are a health menace all smokers and those who e them are risking cancer the lungs and larynx and sociated ailments.

study conducted by 10 ientists recruited by the ited States Public Health rvice has come up with some resting findings, but, as rgeon General Luther Terry ys, the Service has no power impose regulations but hopes at a program of general lucation will result in de-reased use.

io, another bone of contention is been tossed to Congress hich is already up to its ears problems which have a more opular appeal, such as taxes id civil rights.

I suppose some effort will be ade to secure Federal leg-slation but my guess is that s of this year the cigarette ssue will be tossed into a pigeonhole to await "further study."

Meanwhile, we will have to endure the routine of television and radio commercials which extol each particular brand as the best as to satisfaction and stimulation.

The Public Health Service panel, however, was specific when it said "there is simply no evidence that filters on cigarettes have had any effect in reducing the health hazard from smoking."

So there you have it, and my guess is that the uninhibited smokers will still go their merry and satisfying way, but prospective smokers -- the teen agers -- may not take up the habit if the ding-dong about the menace is continued.

I cannot become too excited over the hullabaloo. As a truck driver told an inquiring Globe-Democrat reporter: "I have smoked cigarettes for 50 years and I don't have cancer of the lungs, so I'll continue. If cigarettes don't get me, something else will." This reflects, I believe, a popular sentiment.

A comparative few will stop the habit, some will not acquire it because of the warning, but cigarette manufacturers will not be forced out of business, although the Federal Trade Commission may insist on modification of advertising.

The scientists may be right but I predict no serious legislative action against the sale and use of cigarettes. We have not forgotten the fiasco of Prohibition. But the Food and Drug Administration might get into the act.

I am a cigar smoker and the renowned panel of scientists said nothing to discourage me. The committee's findings were that cigar and pipe smoking have little significance in comparison with cigarettes. The lung cancer death rate of cigar and pipe smokers is approximately that of non-smokers probably because they don't inhale.

Cigars are a luxury and pleasure I do not intend to discontinue. I probably smoke too many per day but my doctor has not banned them. So I continue to puff and enjoy myself, one of the aids to contentment and meditation left to me.

The habit becomes particularly active during the Christmas season, as relatives and friends who are aware of my addiction keep me in abundant supply. My situation is complicated by the fact that my birthday comes shortly after Christmas and cigars are the accustomed and welcome gift. I am just now recovering from my annual binge.

My case history of smoking is probably average. My father smoked cigars and I learned as a boy the hard way. I collected the cold butts he left around the house, took them to a secluded spot where I wouldn't be watched, lit up and was in business. Even today, after years of practice, I can't do what I did then -- smoke a cigar that has been lighted, burned to a butt and allowed to cool. But I did it many times, was nauseated an equal number of times but was not discouraged.

Years later I learned that my parents knew what I was doing, were not alarmed at my sickness and decided the best way to cure me of the habit was to let me smoke until I decided a sick stomach wasn't worth the pleasure of playing like a man.

So, I started smoking like every other American boy novice. I went through the routine of corn silks wrapped in any kind of paper, grape vine, catalpa pods and almost any twig through which smoke might be inhaled. I graduated to Cubebs and Sweet Caps and tried rolling my own with Bull Durham and Duke's Mixture.

I tried to imitate cowboys I saw in pictures -- this was before the days of the Westerns which later cluttered the movies and television. I could not roll them successfully with two hands, let alone one as the experts do it. Along the way I tried cigars again, but this time they were fresh and were not so vicious as those butts I shot cold.

Before I entered high school father stopped smoking to set me a good example -- and he never smoked again the rest of his life, except one cigar each Christmas. It was at this time that I really launched my smoking career.

I tried them all -- Home Runs, Picayunes and Piedmonts. By the time I entered college my favorite cigarettes were Melachrinos, with straw tips. They were quite fashionable and went well with my derby hat, peg-topped trousers and yellow shoes. Not to mention my pink shirt with a high collar pinched together in the front from which was suspended a black string tie.

Just the things to go along with the Charleston, the new dance craze. However accoutered I may have been to be a jazz-bo kid, I really was no Fred Astaire on the dance floor. I did considerable sitting out dances during those days when a cigarette was my best friend. The girls did not object. They said they liked to smell cigarette smoke -- nice girls didn't smoke them.

None of us knew anything about the filtered product which is the chattering content of cigarette commercials these days. Nor did we have to look at the back of the pack to influence our opinion as to the best brand.

While still in college I took up pipe smoking, a habit I retained until I made a final surrender to cigars. Pipes were also a chic contribution to the well-dressed fellow, along with a raccoon coat -- if one could afford one which I couldn't. My pipes were really collegiate--curved stems which I remember they called bulldogs. Classy, eh?

There is something about a pipe smoker that sets him just a little apart from his fellows. Gives him a touch of dignity and urbanity.

General MacArthur smokes a corncob. I assume some of his collection came from Washington, Mo., where making such pipes is an industry with sales running into millions annually. The corncob kind is not restricted to hillbilly country or men in overalls and one gallus, although I have seen plenty of such in the Ozarks, including both men and women.

Ever smoke a clay pipe? Nor have I but I am told they "taste good," like a certain advertised beer. Andrew Jackson's wife Rachel smoked a pipe, probably a clay, but this was just one of the unkind comments made by the critics of "Old Hickory" and his family.

I am told that many women today have taken up cigar smoking, not as a fad but because they like them. And they don't smoke those little fellows that are the size of a cigarette, but the big boys which are strong and a challenge to the innards.

The first time I ever saw a woman smoke a cigar was years ago in Mexico City. I was late arriving at a dinner party given by the American colony, and when I entered the dining room there sat "Lady Margaret" at the head of the table, puffing a cigar with the nonchalance born of long acquaintance. She was a highly respected dowager who had no fear of violating custom. She smoked cigars because she liked them, as women do today.

More power to them! If they can drink our highballs, why can't they smoke our cigars?

The warning against cigarettes doesn't touch me personally. They provide me with about as much satisfaction as eating lettuce.

But I do like cigars, even those black ropes of Italian origin and the almost impossible creations they call cigars in Guatemala. Years ago one of my favorites was made in the Philippines.

I'ms with former Vice-President Marshall who is credited with saying: "What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar." Amend it to read: "a good cigar at any price."

A Good Smoke

THE GLOBE-DEMOCRAT

Cigarettes are a health menace to all smokers and those who use them are risking cancer of the lungs and larynx and associated ailments.

A study conducted by 10 scientists recruited by the United States Public Health Service has come up with some arresting findings, but, as Surgeon General Luther Terry says, the Service has no power to impose regulations but hopes that a program of general education will result in decreased use.

So, another bone of contention has been tossed to Congress which is already up to its ears in problems which have a more popular appeal, such as taxes and civil rights.

I suppose some effort will be made to secure Federal legislation but my guess is that as of this year the cigarette issue will be tossed into a pigeonhole to await "further study."

Meanwhile, we will have to endure the routine of television and radio commercials which extol each particular brand as the best as to satisfaction and stimulation.

The Public Health Service panel, however, was specific when it said "there is simply no evidence that filters on cigarettes have had any effect in reducing the health hazard from smoking."

So there you have it, and my guess is that the uninhibited smokers will still go their merry and satisfying way, but prospective smokers -- the teen agers -- may not take up the habit if the ding-dong about the menace is continued.

I cannot become too excited over the hullabaloo. As a truck driver told an inquiring Globe-Democrat reporter: "I have smoked cigarettes for 50 years and I don't have cancer of the lungs, so I'll continue. If cigarettes don't get me, something else will." This reflects, I believe, a popular sentiment.

A comparative few will stop the habit, some will not acquire it because of the warning, but cigarette manufacturers will not be forced out of business, although the Federal Trade Commission may insist on modification of advertising.

The scientists may be right but I predict no serious legislative action against the sale and use of cigarettes. We have not forgotten the fiasco of Prohibition. But the Food and Drug Administration might get into the act.

I am a cigar smoker and the renowned panel of scientists said nothing to discourage me. The committee's findings were that cigar and pipe smoking have little significance in comparison with cigarettes. The lung cancer death rate of cigar and pipe smokers is approximately that of non-smokers probably because they don't inhale.

Cigars are a luxury and pleasure I do not intend to discontinue. I probably smoke too many per day but my doctor has not banned them. So I continue to puff and enjoy myself, one of the aids to contentment and meditation left to me.

The habit becomes particularly active during the Christmas season, as relatives and friends who are aware of my addiction keep me in abundant supply. My situation is complicated by the fact that my birthday comes shortly after Christmas and cigars are the accustomed and welcome gift. I am just now recovering from my annual binge.

My case history of smoking is probably average. My father smoked cigars and I learned as a boy the hard way. I collected the cold butts he left around the house, took them to a secluded spot where I wouldn't be watched, lit up and was in business. Even today, after years of practice, I can't do what I did then -- smoke a cigar that has been lighted, burned to a butt and allowed to cool. But I did it many times, was nauseated an equal number of times but was not discouraged.

Years later I learned that my parents knew what I was doing, were not alarmed at my sickness and decided the best way to cure me of the habit was to let me smoke until I decided a sick stomach wasn't worth the pleasure of playing like a man.

So, I started smoking like every other American boy novice. I went through the routine of corn silks wrapped in any kind of paper, grape vine, catalpa pods and almost any twig through which smoke might be inhaled. I graduated to Cubebs and Sweet Caps and tried rolling my own with Bull Durham and Duke's Mixture.

I tried to imitate cowboys I saw in pictures -- this was before the days of the Westerns which later cluttered the movies and television. I could not roll them successfully with two hands, let alone one as the experts do it. Along the way I tried cigars again, but this time they were fresh and were not so vicious as those butts I shot cold.

Before I entered high school father stopped smoking to set me a good example -- and he never smoked again the rest of his life, except one cigar each Christmas. It was at this time that I really launched my smoking career.

I tried them all -- Home Runs, Picayunes and Piedmonts. By the time I entered college my favorite cigarettes were Melachrinos, with straw tips. They were quite fashionable and went well with my derby hat, pegtopped trousers and yellow shoes. Not to mention my pink shirt with a high collar pinched together in the front from which was suspended a black string tie.

Just the things to go along with the Charleston, the new dance craze. However accoutered I may have been to be a jazzbo kid, I really was no Fred Astaire on the dance floor. I did considerable sitting out dances during those days when a cigarette was my best friend. The girls did not object. They said they liked to smell cigarette smoke -- nice girls didn't smoke them.

None of us knew anything about the filtered product which is the chattering content of cigarette commercials these days. Nor did we have to look at the back of the pack to influence our opinion as to the best brand.

While still in college I took up pipe smoking, a habit I retained until I made a final surrender to cigars. Pipes were also a chic contribution to the well-dressed fellow, along with a raccoon coat -- if one could afford one which I couldn't. My pipes were really collegiate--curved stems which I remember they called bulldogs. Classy, eh?

There is something about a pipe smoker that sets him just a little apart from his fellows. Gives him a touch of dignity and urbanity.

General MacArthur smokes a corncob. I assume some of his collection came from Washington, Mo., where making such pipes is an industry with sales running into millions annually. The corncob kind is not restricted to hillbilly country or men in overalls and one gallus, although I have seen plenty of such in the Ozarks, including both men and women.

Ever smoke a clay pipe? Nor have I but I am told they "taste good," like a certain advertised beer. Andrew Jackson's wife Rachel smoked a pipe, probably a clay, but this was just one of the unkind comments made by the critics of "Old Hickory" and his family.

I am told that many women today have taken up cigar smoking, not as a fad but because they like them. And they don't smoke those little fellows that are the size of a cigarette, but the big boys which are strong and a challenge to the innards.

The first time I ever saw a woman smoke a cigar was years ago in Mexico City. I was late arriving at a dinner party given by the American colony, and when I entered the dining room there sat "Lady Margaret" at the head of the table, puffing a cigar with the nonchalance born of long acquaintance. She was a highly respected dowager who had no fear of violating custom. She smoked cigars because she liked them, as women do today.

More power to them! If they can drink our highballs, why can't they smoke our cigars?

The warning against cigarettes doesn't touch me personally. They provide me with about as much satisfaction as eating lettuce.

But I do like cigars, even those black ropes of Italian origin and the almost impossible creations they call cigars in Guatemala. Years ago one of my favorites was made in the Philippines.

I'ms with former Vice-President Marshall who is credited with saying: "What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar." Amend it to read: "a good cigar at any price."

Talk New Plan For Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor and South Vietnamese Premier Tran Van Huong yesterday opened planning talks expected to lead to bombing of Viet Cong supply lines in Laos.

Taylor returned to Saigon Sunday from Washington amid increasing speculation that the war against the Communists would be broadened. It was believed that President Johnson had ruled out attacks against North Viet Nam, but the Red supply routes through southern Laos were considered likely targets.

Taylor on his return said new measures by both the United States and the South Vietnamese would be discussed. He refused to say what they were.

The ambassador said Johnsor had "reaffirmed the basic U.S. policy of providing all possible useful assistance to the South Viet Nam people and the Huong government in their struggle to defeat the externally supported insurgency and aggression being conducted against them."

Thousands of police were strung out along Taylor's route from the airport into town. There had been rumors that Buddhists planned a demonstration against the Huong government. None materialized.

The South Vietnamese forces scored a major victory against the Viet Cong in a fierce nine-hour battle Saturday on the Ca Mau Peninsula, at the southern tip of South Viet Nam. The government said 115 Communists were killed in the encounter at Tan Lac village, about 150 miles southwest of Saigon.

South Vietnamese officials said their side suffered 86 casualties, but the battle was regarded as a psychological boost for the government's war effort, which had been sagging badly.

Six U.S. airmen were wounded in the attack as U.S. helicopters raked the Communist battalion with rockets and light bombers dropped 500-pound bombs. Communist fire damaged 14 helicopters.

In another weekend battle at Binh Ghia, 40 miles southeast of Saigon, government forces ambushed a Communist hamlet, killing 23 Viet Cong and seizing 16 civilian hostages. The government lost seven men and five were missing. Fourteen were wounded.

The population of the world in mid-1964 was an estimated 3,283,000,000 people.

Each year the world total is now increasing by some 65 million people, enough to populate a new nation larger than West Germany or the United Kingdom.

Over 56 percent of the world's people -- 1.8 billion -- live in Asia. Latin America and Africa account for another 16 percent. The remaining 28 percent are in Europe, Northern America, Oceania and the Soviet Union.

In 1980, world population will approximate 4.3 billion, according to a new United Nations projection. Latin America is expected to have the largest proportional gain between 1964 and 1980, 58 percent. The populations of Northern America and Latin America were each about 200 million in 1960. By 1980, Latin America's 374 million people will exceed Northern America's total by over 100 million!

These and other facts are contained in the 1964 World Population Data Sheet issued by the Population Reference Bureau, Washington, D. C., to mark the 19th session of the United Nations General Assembly at which the population question is scheduled for debate.

The Data Sheet shows the current population projected to 1980, and birth, death and growth rates for 129 countries. These data are derived from the most recent United Nations statistics.

Since 1960, nearly every country in the world has had a census. There are a few exceptions, Ethiopia being one nation which has the distinction of never having had a census. The Bureau cautioned that the registration of births and deaths remains unreliable in many developing countries and that the quality of censuses leaves much to be desired. In the African area, for instance, the tiny island of Mauritius, a British territory, has the demographic distinction of being the only entity which is classed as having good data on births and deaths. Nevertheless, information about the population of the world is far more accurate than when the United Nations began the regular compilation of world statistics in 1948.

Among Asian lands, only Israel, Ceylon, Malaysia, Taiwan, Japan and Hong Kong have reliable birth and death statistics. Virtually every European nation has excellent data; and in the Americas, about half of the Latin American nations have adequate vital statistics.

Africa, Asia and Latin America have birth rates ranging from 40 to 50 births per 1,000 population per year. European birth rates are generally below 20. Birth rates in Northern America, Oceania and the U. S. S. R. are 20 to 25 per 1,000 population. Death rates range from over 20 per 1,000 in Africa and Asia to below 10 in Europe and Northern America (U. S. and Canada).

One of the most important facts concerning world population is that today about a third of the world's people have gained -- or are gaining -- control of the birth rate. Two-thirds of the people have not. And the high-birth-rate areas are the developing countries, with low levels of living.

No accurate information is available for the population of mainland China. The latest estimate is 690 million. There is no question that China is by far the most populous nation in the world of today. By p980, mainland China is expected to add another 150 million people -- equivalent to the total U. S. population in 1950.

India, the world's second largest nation with a 1964 population of 468.5 million, gains an additional 10 million people each year. This number is larger than the population of Sweden.

Ranking behind China and India among the world's ten largest nations are the U. S. S. R. (229 million people); the United States (192); Indonesia (102); Pakistan (101); Japan (97); Brazil (80); West Germany (56); and the United Kingdom (54).

There has been an increase in the number of countries with city - size populations. Malta, Kuwait, Luxembourg, Iceland, and Gabon have populations smaller than that of Atlanta, Georgia (487,000). Altogether about two-thirds of the countries have populations less than metropolitan New York's 11 million.

In all the millennia of human existence on earth prior to the 20th Century, world population grew at less than 1 percent per year. World population at the time of Christ was only about 250 million. The first billion mark was reached after 1800. Today, world population is growing at a rate of over 2 percent a year. At this rate, a population doubles in only 35 years. If today's growth trend continues unchanged, the number of people on earth will double to nearly 7 billion by the year 2000.

A wide range exists in growth rates of different countries. The highest rates of increase are in some Latin American countries. Brazil, the South American giant, has a 3 percent rate of growth. This would double Brazil's population every 23 years.

The current population of Mexico of 40 million is expected to grow to 71 million by 1980. This means that Mexico's 3.1 percent annual rate of growth will increase further to add over 30 million new Mexicans in only 16 years.

Nigeria's 1963 census pulled a startling surprise for that country's planners. The census counted 56 million people -- a number 19 million more than the highest estimate had anticipated (37 million). Such expected and enormous growth poses severe problems for those straining to raise standards of living.

On the other end of the scale are the countries with the slowest rates of growth -- 0.5 percent or less. Belgium, Sweden and Hungary fall in this group. Their populations would take 140 years to double.

Japan has the lowest rate of growth in Asia, 0.9 percent a year. The United States rate of 1.6 percent a year is about twice the growth rate of most European countries.

Nevertheless, information about the population of the world is far more accurate than when the United Nations began the regular compilation of world statistics in 1948.

Among Asian lands, only Israel, Ceylon, Malaysia, Taiwan, Japan and Hong Kong have reliable birth and death statistics. Virtually every European nation has excellent data; and in the Americas, about half of the Latin American nations have adequate vital statistics.

Africa, Asia and Latin America have birth rates ranging from 40 to 50 births per 1,000 population per year. European birth rates are generally below 20. Birth rates in Northern America, Oceania and the U. S. S. R. are 20 to 25 per 1,000 population. Death rates range from over 20 per 1,000 in Africa and Asia to below 10 in Europe and Northern America (U. S. and Canada).

One of the most important facts concerning world population is that today about a third of the world's people have gained -- or are gaining -- control of the birth rate. Two-thirds of the people have not. And the high-birth-rate areas are the developing countries, with low levels of living.

No accurate information is available for the population of mainland China. The latest estimate is 690 million. There is no question that China is by far the most populous nation in the world of today. By p980, mainland China is expected to add another 150 million people -- equivalent to the total U. S. population in 1950.

India, the world's second largest nation with a 1964 population of 468.5 million, gains an additional 10 million people each year. This number is larger than the population of Sweden.

Ranking behind China and India among the world's ten largest nations are the U. S. S. R. (229 million people); the United States (192); Indonesia (102); Pakistan (101); Japan (97); Brazil (80); West Germany (56); and the United Kingdom (54).

There has been an increase in the number of countries with city - size populations. Malta, Kuwait, Luxembourg, Iceland, and Gabon have populations smaller than that of Atlanta, Georgia (487,000). Altogether about two-thirds of the countries have populations less than metropolitan New York's 11 million.

In all the millennia of human existence on earth prior to the 20th Century, world population grew at less than 1 percent per year. World population at the time of Christ was only about 250 million. The first billion mark was reached after 1800. Today, world population is growing at a rate of over 2 percent a year. At this rate, a population doubles in only 35 years. If today's growth trend continues unchanged, the number of people on earth will double to nearly 7 billion by the year 2000.

A wide range exists in growth rates of different countries. The highest rates of increase are in some Latin American countries. Brazil, the South American giant, has a 3 percent rate of growth. This would double Brazil's population every 23 years.

The current population of Mexico of 40 million is expected to grow to 71 million by 1980. This means that Mexico's 3.1 percent annual rate of growth will increase further to add over 30 million new Mexicans in only 16 years.

Nigeria's 1963 census pulled a startling surprise for that country's planners. The census counted 56 million people -- a number 19 million more than the highest estimate had anticipated (37 million). Such expected and enormous growth poses severe problems for those straining to raise standards of living.

On the other end of the scale are the countries with the slowest rates of growth -- 0.5 percent or less. Belgium, Sweden and Hungary fall in this group. Their populations would take 140 years to double.

Japan has the lowest rate of growth in Asia, 0.9 percent a year. The United States rate of 1.6 percent a year is about twice the growth rate of most European countries.

Shopping Spree For the Disabled

NEW YORK AP -- Alexander's department store threw open its doors and cleared the aisles on a Christmas shopping day for 400 disabled oldsters and 30 handicapped children Sunday.

Proceeds from the third annual Sunday open house -- which helps the customers who can't walk to their Christmas shopping without the usual weekday hustle and bustle - went to the 12-non-profit hospitals and homes from which the shoppers came.

Board Okehs Jr College District

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Board of Education today approved plans for a new junior college district and nine reorganized public school districts.

The board accepted the plan of expanding the St. Joseph Junior College District to encompass all of Buchanan County and the southern part of Andrew County. It set the date for an election Jan. 19 for local residents to approve or disapprove the change.

These local reorganization plans were approved, with the local school boards required to set the dates of local elections providing they come within 60 days:

Jasper County R-8, encompassing Duenweg and two common school districts in Newton County.

Laclede County R-3, including 28 common school districts, a part of one common school district, two consolidated elementary districts and the Lebanon High School District.

Schuyler County R-1, encompassing all the present districts in the county.

St. Francois County R-7, the Farmington district and one common district in Ste. Genevieve County.

Webster County R-1, including 12 common districts, part of two and the Marshfield High School district.

Webster County R-2, including Seymour, part of two common districts and all of three common districts.

Webster County R-3, two common school districts and Fordland district.

Webster County R-5, Niangua and three common school districts.

You're an old-timer if you can remember when setting the world on fire was a figure of speech. --Franklin P. Jones

Today in U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1775, Colonial forces led by Gen. Richard Montgomery and Benedict Arnold opened a siege of Quebec. Montgomery was killed in the first assault on Dec. 31.

On this date:

In 1863, President Abraham Lincoln issued his Proclamation of Amnesty and Reconstruction.

In 1925, Adolf Hitler's "Mein Kampf" was published.

In 1944, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced that his forces had landed on the west coast of Leyte Island, splitting Japanese lines.

Ten years ago—The U.N. approved free elections for all Korea over Soviet objections.

One year ago — Eighty-two persons were killed in the crash of a Pan American Boeing 707 near Elkton, Md.

Dictionary Helps You Learn Many New Words

Even though English is our native tongue, we find numerous occasions when it is necessary to refer to an English dictionary. When you are learning a foreign language, this need occurs much more frequently.

The new SPEED SPEECH dictionary—one of the three tools of learning conversational Spanish quickly—gives you the words you will need to express yourself clearly in Spanish. Only the words used frequently by Spanish-speaking people is in this dictionary. You are thus able to obtain a working vocabulary which will enable you to speak fluently in any Spanish speaking country.

The dictionary is available through The Daily Sikeston Standard, along with William Archer's proven SPEED SPEECH textbook, and a set of two 45 rpm records which aid substantially as a pronunciation guide. Each item, offered by The Daily Sikeston Standard as a public service, costs only $2.95 plus nine cents sales tax, or a total of $3.04. Use the coupon in The Daily Sikeston Standard today, or come by the office.

You will enjoy learning, with all the family, or with friends, this amazingly simple way of mastering the Spanish language. The most basic step of understanding the people of any country is to understand their language.

NEW YORK (AP) — Winter's first onslaughts may be putting a crimp on construction here and there but not in the industry's confidence that still another good year lies ahead.

Construction poured about $62 billion into the economy in 1963, and in the first 11 months of this year was running 6 per cent ahead of that.

Once feared as a possible drag on 1965's economic growth because of a slowdown in home building, construction in general now is billed to add at least a moderate lift next year.

Housing accounts for about one-third of the total and may be less than spectacular. Many elements in the other two-thirds continue to boom.

Census Bureau figures for November show actual construction, figured at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, running at $65.6 billion, ahead of both October 1964 and November 1963.

This helps offset the pessimism generated by the October tract awards. These had dropped 7 per cent from a year ago, largely because of the sharpest decline of this year in the residential field.

Contract awards point ahead and any drop if prolonged is disturbing. But economists point out that other forward-looking signs are good. Spending for several other forms of construction seem sure to rise.

These include new highways, school building, manufacturing plants. Plans have been announced for expansion in all three fields.

Office building has topped out in some regions, continues at a fast pace in others. For the nation as a whole, office building may stay around this year's rate — far from a drag on the economy, but still no boost.

And the utilities should spend more for expansion because Americans go right on talking more on the phone and using more electricity and gas.

Much of the slowdown has been charged to overbuilding in some communities, and largely in apartment houses where vacancy rates have been rising.

All of this is expected to change in the next few years as the many who were born in the middle and late '40s become young adults and move, first into apartments, and then into homes of their own.

But next year, if construction is to help the economy grow, the accent will be more on spending by federal, state and local governments, and expansion by industries.

ticipate in such activities as civil rights demonstrations in the South because they feel they are worthy though unlawful.

Only the regents can change the regulations.

Free Speech Movement demonstrations, protest rallies and picketing have produced turmoil on the campus over the past two months.

The group staged a sit-in at the university's administration building which was broken up with the arrest last Thursday of 814 demonstrators on orders of Gov. Brown.

Those arrested included 590 students, 89 teaching assistants, researchers and university employes, and 135 persons not connected with the university.

The Alameda County district attorney's office said that because of the large number arrested it has been unable to identify the 135 non-students.

At a mass arraignment Monday the total number dropped to 768 with dismissal of charges against teen-agers caught in the sit-in.

Municipal Judge Ruppert Crittenden told the 768 they face charges which "may seriously affect your future." He continued their cases to Monday so attorneys could prepare their defense.

In a dramatic convocation in the university's Greek Theater Monday, university president Clark Kerr offered a peace plan drafted by the Council of Department Chairmen which included dropping of university charges against four student leaders of the Free Speech Movement.

As he finished, the FSM president, Mario Savio, sought to address the crowd of about 17,000 over the microphone just relinquished by Kerr.

Campus police quickly seized Savio and hauled him offstage as members of the audience booed and shouted: "Let him speak."

He was released moments later and allowed to speak. He said that all he wanted to do was announce an immediate student rally. Savio said he had been "hustled off" by the police and had not been struck.

Savio later told the rally the peace proposal was "totally unacceptable."

Kerr said after the incident he noted unfavorable crowd reaction to the police action which took place in full view of the audience.
